"We can merge the outdoors and the indoors today in ways that weren't always possible," he reminds.

"Think of French doors, sliding doors, screened porches that can be closed in in winter without losing the garden view."

But suppose there's no outside view to lose? No problem, says Hura, a New Yorker who can create comfy country-flavored rooms even in the unbucolic heart of Manhattan. Advice from his bag of professional tricks:

- Plants, plants and more plants. "Etagerés overflowing with plants. They add life — not to mention oxygen — to your rooms."
- Investigate the new stone-look tiles. "Real naturals for a garden look...especially if you can run the tiles right in from the outdoors (even if "outdoors" is just an apartment balcony).
- Collect garden artifacts and use them creatively. "How about garden gates hung on a wall? Or a large old urn as a base for a glass table?"
- Install rustic and weathered textures. He favors whitewashed barn siding and rough crating boards with a lath nailed over the seams.

Another big texture booster is Don Haynie, co-owner of Buffalo Springs Herb Farm in Raphine, Va. Haynie and partner Tom Hamlin keep a steady stream of garden groupies crunching up their gravel drive in the Shenandoah Valley, looking for new ways to bring the great outdoors in.

Herbs, dried flowers, twig furniture and such are for sale in the farm's restored barn. But decorating ideas are free all over the complex, which includes herbal theme gardens, an 18th century house and a cabin built by a homesteader in 1830. Free, abundant and definitely natural.

"Don't even bother with silk flowers. You can get color but not texture," Haynie says.

He urges his natural design students to create subtle contrasts between textures in a room, for example, silhouetting twigs and branches against a smooth plaster wall.

Haynie also advocates sprays of dried materials hung over inside doors, evergreens and bare branches mixed in tall containers, and garden wreaths hung in place of more predictable paintings, posters, and photos.

"Take down that awful picture you don't like anyway, or that mirror that scares you every time you walk by," Haynie suggests with a smile.

"Put up a wreath or two or three instead, and you can keep that garden feeling going on all year long."

Flowers Aren't the Only Bulbs Blooming This Spring

Spring is just around the corner and with that comes the task that many people dread: spring-cleaning. Not this year! Make spring-cleaning fun by redecorating with light and create a fresh new look. The right light can make any home look like it had a complete spring make-over, hassle-free.

Philips Lighting Company is offering a free book that provides simple, decorative lighting tips around the home. Get ready to roll up your sleeves for some spring-cleaning with these tips:

• Lighting adds an element of drama to any room in the home - Projected light through a plant can soften a room by creating interesting shapes and shadows. Simply place a light behind a vase of flowers or a potted plant and aim it at the ceiling to create unusual shadows around the room.

•Brighten the room with a longer lasting Halogen bulb - Allow the vibrant colors in your home to come alive by using a whiter, brighter light. Guaranteed to last for two years - approximately three times longer than a standard incandescent - Philips Halogena™ bulbs can fit into any incandescent fixture.

•Either indoors or outdoors, compact fluorescents can light the way - Imagine being able to install outdoor lighting around the house and patio area without having to think about replacing the bulb for years. Even in the home, Philips' line of EarthLight\R\ compact fluorescent lamps (CFL) provides soft, white light, and with an average life span of five to seven years, you most likely would use 13 incandescent bulbs during the life of one EarthLight CFL.

•Accent the boundary of your home to celebrate its beauty - Uplighting the trees that surround your property is a decorative way to use outdoor lighting. By placing a well-aimed, concealed spotlight below the surrounding trees, attention will be brought to the beauty of your home. And, to make the task even easier, install lights on your trees before the foliage is in full bloom.

To receive a copy of the book, "Seeing Your Home in a New Light - How to Use Lighting as a Decorating Tool," call the Philips Consumer Information Network at 1-800-555-0050 or visit the Web site at http://www.lighting.philips.com/nam.

The time to be concerned about how to keep from using so much heating fuel is when you build. Use Panelcraft's Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs).
SIP structures are known for their structural integrity. Nature's storms, earthquakes, tornados, etc., just need a little greater force to do the same amount of damage to SIP structures versus conventional.

Simple Steps Provided To Help Protect Your Home

By Elizabeth Scheibner

Many homeowners spend thousands of dollars beautifying their home but neglect one important thing — protecting their property against burglary and fire.

The cost and effort to keep your home safe is small in comparison to the expense, hassle, and grief of replacing personal belongings. While no house is immune to theft, there are simple precautions you can take to discourage would-be burglars from breaking into your home. For example, outdoor lighting can be very effective in deterring nighttime prowlers. Experts suggest keeping your front porch light on all night and installing sensor-controlled floodlights for the back and sides of your home.

Burglars normally spend one minute attempting to break in. By making it more difficult to gain access, you have a greater chance of thwarting a potential break-in. Make sure your front door is made of metal or solid-core wood. Hollow-core and paneled wood doors offer little in the way of protection. If your doorjambs are made of wood, replace them with a metal frame to strengthen them and make break-ins more difficult.

The type of lock you have on your door is also important. A deadbolt or rim lock makes it harder for an intruder to break in. If you have sliding glass doors, be sure to place bolts at both the top and bottom.

Unfortunately, windows pose little deterrent to intruders. However, you can make them more secure by installing locks or sliding sashes to hold the two frames together.

For small windows, place the lock as close to the center as possible, and for larger windows, place the lock at both ends of the window.

Make sure windows on the second floor are also secured. One-third of burglary attempts occur in the upper floors.

If you're going to be out of town for any length of time, it's important to give the impression that someone is home by using automatic time switches that will turn lights on and off several times over a 24-hour period. Another important safety measure is installing a wide-angle door viewer that allows you to identify visitors before opening the door.

Many people feel more secure with an alarm system. The good news is that protecting your home against intrusion doesn't necessarily require an expensive and elaborate alarm system. Many homeowners rely on a simple battery-operated alarm that buzzes loudly when a door or window is opened.

Another popular type of alarm uses radar technology to detect when an intruder comes within 20 feet of the house and sounds a shrill pulsating alarm.

If your neighborhood doesn't already have one, consider forming a neighborhood watch group, which can be an effective deterrent against potential burglars. Contact your local police department for information on how to establish a watch group in your area.

A police officer will come to your neighborhood to discuss home security and crime prevention.

PROTECTING YOUR HOME AGAINST FIRE

Domestic fires claim thousands of lives each year, but experts say the majority of these fires could be prevented by taking simple precautions, such as installing smoke detectors and fire extinguishers.

Smoke detectors have saved countless lives by identifying the presence of smoke long before flames have even ignited. Self-contained, battery-operated smoke detectors are inexpensive and easy to install.

The best place to position smoke detectors is on the ceiling near a potential source of fire — namely the kitchen, garage, and in hallways near bedrooms. Smoke detectors should be placed away from drafts, heat vents, and shower areas (the steam can trigger the alarm) and affixed to ceiling joists. Be sure to test the alarm monthly to make sure it's working properly and to replace the batteries every six months.

If fire does break out in your home, a fire extinguisher is your best defense in preventing the fire from spreading. Experts say most small household fires can be doused safely with a multipurpose dry chemical fire extinguisher (make sure it is approved by Underwriters Laboratories).

For optimal safety, hang fire extinguishers in several locations in your house, including the kitchen, garage, workshop, and basement. Make sure you and your family know how to use the device and that you check the pressure gauge monthly to ensure that the canister is fully charged.

Many home fires start as a result of faulty electrical wiring. Make sure your electrical installations and equipment are in good working order and that you have ground-fault circuit interrupters, or GFCIs, in all damp areas such as the kitchen, bathroom, laundry room, and workshop.

GFCIs protect you from electrical shock by detecting the smallest leakage of electrical current and turning off power to that circuit or receptacle.

Since the 1970s, electrical codes have required GFCIs to be installed in all new homes. If you have an older home, it's important that you upgrade your circuits to include GFCI protection. You can install a GFCI breaker, which protects everything on that circuit, or you can install a GFCI receptacle that protects the outlet it is in and all outlets after it on a circuit. Both devices have a test button that simulates a ground fault. Be sure to test the button monthly and replace any GFCI that fails to trip.

Just A Few Tips

An environment-friendly way of washing vinyl kitchen floors is using a solution of one part vinegar to four parts hot water.

Rotate your mattress on a quarterly basis to prolong its life.

And throw a few tennis balls into the dryer when drying pillows, duvets, and comforters. The bouncing balls help to fluff up the items as they dry.

Buyer Beware

Spring is the time when a person's thoughts most often turn to home buying, but prospective buyers need to look past the fresh coat of paint and new landscaping to learn what problems may lurk in that potential dream house. Professional home inspectors who do pre-purchase examinations of a home's structural and mechanical condition are recommended.

The American Society of Home Inspectors has identified 10 of the most frequent house problems. Improper surface grading and drainage is the most frequently found problem, according to 35.8 percent of the home inspectors surveyed. Improper electrical wiring was sited by 19.9 percent of the inspectors. Roof damage, faulty heating systems, poor overall maintenance, structurally related problems, plumbing, exteriors, poor ventilation, and an ominous category called miscellaneous were also listed.

It's easy to furnish a room that will grow with your child. Choose full-size bunk beds for older children that can later be disassembled into attractive twin beds for use as a guest room.

Room to Grow

New Children's Furniture Is a Cradle-to-College Investment

Children are growing up faster these days - and their furniture is keeping pace.

As children's needs have grown more complex - computer tables and entertainment centers for the under-8 set - furniture makers have responded with a sharp upturn in range and quality of children's furnishings.

The result? Parents are investing in high-quality adaptable pieces designed to grow with a child.

The reasons are numerous. For one, an empty nest doesn't always stay empty. Postcollege babies are moving back into childhood rooms, for a few months or an extended stay - and a toddler bed just won't cut it. Additionally, when childhood rooms are abandoned, parents want to adapt the furniture to other uses - to furnish a home office or guest bedroom. Or, children may move their furniture with them - to fill out a dorm room or first apartment.

"There has been a real increase in demand for better quality kids' furniture," says Russ Page of Maine-based Moosehead Manufacturing, which has a large line of solid-wood children's furniture. "People are looking for groups that can be coordinated throughout a child's life. These are pieces kids can take with them when they go to college or start a career - or pieces the parents can adapt to a spare bedroom when the children have grown."

"Our new youth bedroom is designed to be used throughout the entire growth of the child," says Earl Berns, with Ashley Furniture's Case Goods Division. "It's really a spin-off of our master bedroom suite, with the same good value and clean looks."

"It makes sense when you think of it," adds Page. "People are just looking for the same quality furniture in their children's rooms that they have in their own rooms, and that's a big change from years past."

How can you furnish a room that grows with your child? Here are some helpful hints, courtesy of The Home Furnishings Council:

•Rather than buying "baby-only" furniture, personalize a young child's room with bright wall hangings, posters and throw rugs that can be exchanged for a more grown-up decor in time.

•Don't choose temporary toddler furniture: After the crib, invest in a solid twin bed and put a removable side rail on it for toddler safety.

•Look for dressers with a removable changing-table top, which can be stowed away when the baby's out of diapers.

•Choose full-size bunk beds for older children that can later be disassembled into attractive twin beds for use as a guest room.

•Use low, open bookshelves for toy storage, which can be turned over to books and papers as children reach their teens.

The bottom line? Don't kid around. Quality furniture may be the only thing your children never will outgrow.

Simplify Wood-Flooring Selections

New homeowners can simplify their wood-flooring selection by knowing the basic advantages and disadvantages of engineered hard wood vs. traditional solid wood floors, of a high shine vs. a satin finish. Also, wood-flooring selections like Mannington's bevel-edged Oregon Oak pattern (left) and the square-edged Vermont Maple pattern (right) offer consumers distinct flooring visuals.

Buying a new home and selecting all its various components can be an exciting, but overwhelming experience. New homeowners are asked to make decisions about everything from cabinetry and appliances to bath fixtures and countertops. Then they must sort through all the various options in each category.

According to Mario Gonzalez, Mannington Wood Floors marketing director, you can simplify the process by doing your homework before you get in the builder's showroom. This way, you'll understand which items will have the greatest effect upon your satisfaction with your new home. For many new homeowners, flooring is just such a "make or break" option.

"Wood flooring is a great decorating choice and adds value to a home more than any other flooring type. As it grows in popularity with new homeowners, builders are making more and more selections available, so it's important that homeowners choose the wood flooring that suits their lifestyle needs, and how much foot traffic or use each room will be supporting," says Gonzalez. He suggests the following:

1. Know the difference between engineered wood floors and traditional solid wood floors. The advantage of engineered wood flooring is that it can be installed, by a variety of methods, anywhere in the home from basement to attic. Comprised of several layers of cross-grained hardwood plies, engineered wood floors are highly stable and less affected by seasonal weather changes. So, homeowners can expect to experience fewer incidences of gaping between boards than with solid wood floors - an important consideration in areas of the country with large temperature and humidity swings. Also, the beautiful, wide variety of wood species, like oak and maple, designer colors, and consistent factory finishes are highly complementary to a wide range of traditional and contemporary decor motifs.

2. Consider which rooms of your home will be appropriate for wood flooring. Today's engineered wood floors feature no-wax, stain-resistant finishes and can be appropriate for every room in a house, except for full baths. If your lifestyle includes heavy traffic through certain rooms or if you have pets and young children, select the construction, color and finish that is best suited for heavy use.

3. Know your gloss levels. High-gloss wood floors are gorgeous additions to any home, and some homeowners simply prefer the elegant high-shine look. They are, however, more suited to "easier living" than a semi-gloss or satin-finish wood floor, which are better at camouflaging signs of an active household. "Mannington offers a range of gloss levels because consumers have different preferences and lifestyles and it is the one feature that influences overall satisfaction the most," says Gonzalez.

4. Be prepared to choose between square or bevel edges. This almost is entirely a visual preference. Square-edged wood flooring is the more traditional choice and gives a room an attractive uniform look. Bevel edges add definition to each plank and provide some texture to the flooring visual. So, try to see installed floors with both edge types before making a final decision about whether or not this is a priority feature. It will help narrow your selection.

With all the advances in wood-flooring design and performance, it is not surprising that the surface that floored our nation more than 200 years ago continues to be a popular choice for new homes. You just don't have to clear-cut your backyard to get one. For more information about Mannington Wood Floors, call 1-800-814-7355 or visit the Web site at http://www.mannington.com.

Tips for a Green Lawn and a Greener Wallet

When spring arrives, it's time to get your yard in shape. Everyone wants a lush, green lawn, but beware of the hidden expense of water waste. If you follow a few simple steps for water conservation inside and outside your home, you'll end up with that great-looking yard without the big expense when the water bills come.

Money Down the Drain

Every year, the average American family wastes around 32,000 gallons of water - that's the volume of a medium-sized swimming pool. Most of that waste occurs in the bathroom, sometimes because we leave the water running without thinking (do we really need to let it run the whole time while we're brushing our teeth?). Other times, the water and money is draining away without us even knowing it.

The chief culprits are:

* running toilets
* inefficient fixtures
* leaking plumbing
* excessive lawn-watering

Hosin' Around the Yard

It takes 660 gallons to water a typical 1,000 square-foot lawn with 1 inch of water - the same amount of water you use inside your house in a week. It's easy to cut this in half and save money by remembering these basics:

•Use the right equipment. While most sprinklers do a pretty good job, there is a difference in hose nozzles. When you're washing the car or spraying your garden, a pistol-type nozzle is best because you can adjust the flow rate or stop it completely to answer the phone or chat with a neighbor.

•Set a schedule. Your lawn doesn't need dousing every day. Watering every other day is fine, especially if you do it in the early morning or evening when the sun won't evaporate the water before it can soak in.

•Maximize water usage. If you have a smaller lawn and more plants, you should use irrigation hoses. These target smaller amounts of water right at the root level of your garden. Mulching around trees and shrubs also will maximize your water usage by reducing the amount of water lost through evaporation. Additionally, "recycling" rainwater from roof downspouts for watering your garden will help you cut back.

Go With the Flow

Indoors, you can start saving water immediately by tackling one of the biggest water-wasters first - your toilet. If your old one has had it, buy a new low-flow model. These toilets use about 1.5 gallons per flush, as opposed to the standard version that sinks 4 gallons per use. Otherwise, try these methods for conserving water and saving money in the bathroom:

•Install a toilet dam to reduce the holding capacity of your tank and use less water per flush. No need for a plumber or fancy contraption from the hardware store. Just use an old 1/2-gallon plastic soda bottle. Fill it with water and drop it in the tank, but be sure to leave at least 3 gallons of water, or you might be plunging until next spring.

•Leaks and drips from your toilet add up. A running toilet can waste up to 100 gallons a day, and jiggling the handle only is a short-term fix. Get the right replacement parts (usually just a new flange) and do the job in less than 10 minutes.

•Some leaks from the tank to the bowl are slower and quieter. Here's a tip on how to check for slow leaks: squeeze a couple drops of food coloring into the tank, then wait. If color appears in the bowl, you're sitting on a problem.

•Just like it's a good idea to inspect your car's belts and hoses, you occasionally should check all the plumbing connections. If you don't have plumbing tools, large-jawed VISE-GRIP® locking pliers let you get around all the various-sized pipes and couplings, and will make freeing frozen or rusted bolts easier. Be sure to check basins, sinks and all pipe connections in the basement.

Water Down the Drain: A Waste of Energy

Hot water accounts for almost 20 percent of energy lost in the home, and about half of that is from shower use. Most showers run at around 5 gallons per minute, which is twice as much water (and energy) as you could be using. Check your flow rate by running the shower into a measurable bucket for 30 seconds and doubling the measurement. Any good plumbing-fixture store will carry 2.5-gallon shower heads to cut the flow and save you money.

Don't forget your faucets, either. Installing faucet aerators effectively halves the volume of water but adds bubbles so that the flow appears the same. And, if you run the dishwasher or clothes washer without a full load, it's like pouring money and water down the drain.

Making plans and taking precautions to save water around the home and yard this spring may seem like a headache, but it won't hurt nearly so much as a big water bill at the end of summer.

Bright Tips For Spring-Cleaning

Spring is the time to cast-away winter's dull shadow, and when it comes to spring-cleaning, there's no better way to make things bright than by polishing the metal throughout the home.

From the brass chandelier to the silver candlestick holders to the copper pans to the stainless steel appliances in the kitchen, metal enhances the home with beauty and style. Following are some helpful tips to ensure that these household items and other favorite treasures maintain their lustrous appearance for generations, courtesy of Mr. Metal, an all-metal cleaner from Northern Labs Inc.

•Keep metal dry to prevent tarnishing. When oxygen and moisture combine and come in contact with metal, oxidation occurs, causing a damaging coating that can dull or destroy the metal's surface.

•Don't mix stainless and sterling in the dishwasher. If they touch, it creates a chemical reaction that can leave black spots on the silver.

•Don't use abrasive cleaners that can scratch and dull metal surfaces.

•Unless specified for a particularly durable type of metal, avoid using steel wool or scouring pads to clean.

•Wear cotton gloves when cleaning metal. Otherwise, acid in the skin can tarnish the surface.

•Rub metal with straight, back-and-forth motions, rather than in circles. This helps maintain a uniform appearance.

•Prevent undiluted dishwashing detergents from coming into contact with metal, as it can damage the finish.

•Apply metal cleaner with a clean, soft, lint-free cloth. Turn frequently to avoid reusing the soiled portion.

•For ornate objects, apply metal cleaner generously and allow to dry. Rinse the cleaner with a wet sponge.

Cleaning House Is Simple With The Right Tools

Investing in the proper equipment can make cleaning the house a simple task. According to "10,001 Hints & Tips for the Home" (DK), "Cleaning does not have to be hard if you follow a few basic rules. Invest in the right equipment, and take care of it."

Following are the essential items needed for keeping a house clean. Buying a plastic storage box with a handle to store all the items makes carrying the equipment around your home simple. For houses that have more than one level, consider investing in two sets of cleaning supplies. This way, you won't have to lug them up and down the stairs. In order to keep the tools in good shape, be sure to clean each one after use.

- Household dust cloths
- Chamois leather
- Dustpan and brush
- Sponge mop
- Long-handled broom
- Acrylic dusting brush
- Cloths for wet work
- Rubber gloves
- Floor-cleaning cloth
- Scrubbing brush
- Bucket

Swing Sets Can Be Hazardous

A carefree symbol of childhood, swing sets can be fraught with safety hazards unless you know what to look for.

Parents looking to ensure a safe ride for their children need to be vigilant when shopping around for a swing set.

To reduce the risk of head entrapment and strangulation, make sure any sizable gaps are larger than 9 inches. Make sure bolts don't protrude to avoid the possibility of a child snagging their clothes and strangling. Pad the legs of a swing set with a protective layer of foam to lessen impacts. Enclose any elevated platforms with guardrails.

And to ensure a comfortable swing ride, consider replacing rigid plastic seats or wooden ones with soft plastic belt or sling-type seats.

GCC Land-Based Programs To Gain New Headquarters

Officials from Garrett Community College gathered for a ground-breaking ceremony recently to mark commencement of construction of a home for the college's Agriculture, Adventure Sports (AVS), and Natural Resource and Wildlife Technology (NRWT) programs. When completed this coming fall, the Center for Sustainable and Alternative Land Use headquarters will house offices, classrooms, labs, and storage areas for the college's three land-based signature programs.

"This project will help us develop the synergy that's already been building from bringing these programs together as degree offerings at GCC," college president Dr. Steve Herman commented. "Each program has as its basis an environmental ethos that will carry our students, as well as their fields, into the next century.

"Putting the signature programs together under the same roof will help the flow of ideas and information between them, which is vital as each has basically the same underlying goal in mind—that wise management of natural resources can provide economic as well as environmental benefits here in western Maryland," said Herman.

Construction of the $265,000, 60-by-136-foot pole building is being funded entirely by the college. The structure will be located on the campus near the recently constructed buildings that house the rabbit and goat pens and the aquaculture fish tank.

"This is the culmination of several years of planning and working together to make this building a reality," said Jim Allen, GCC's director of technology. "It

"THE TRUMPETS SHALL SOUND" when the Northern Middle School Band takes the stage for its annual spring concert on Monday at 7 p.m. Under the baton of Sharon McLaughlin, the student musicians will present a variety of sounds, from the orchestral airs of an overture to the jazzy strains of a James Bond tune. Middle school band members will be joined by elementary and high school musicians for parts of the performance. Proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter Could Have Major Impact On Oakland, County

by David Foster

Wal-Mart has transformed the face of rural America and the face of the retail world as well. With preliminary surveying and engineering work being conducted on the site of a proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter at Route 219 at Fourth Street (old Route 219) next to Food Lion, a report on the possible effects of a Wal-Mart may provide insight for those considering how Garrett County may weather such a change in the economic climate of our community.

It must be stressed that to date there has been no confirmation of Wal-Mart's intentions, nor has any time frame been established for the possible construction of a store near Oakland.

A Supercenter's Scope

A Wal-Mart Supercenter, such as the 152,415 structure proposed on paper for Oakland, is "a blend of a discount store with groceries and such additional services as restaurants, Vision Centers, Lube Express, hair styling, dry cleaning, shoe repair, and banking," according to the 1997 Wal-Mart Annual Report, which calls Supercenters "the industry's hottest shopping format, [and which will] lead our company into the future of retailing."

Wal-Mart Online, the company's own web site, reports that "Supercenters feature 36 general merchandise departments including a complete apparel department with accessories, an extensive fine jewelry department, a lawn and garden center, a large health and beauty aids department, a full line of electronics, and a pharmacy department. In addition, grocery areas usually feature a bakery, delicatessen, frozen food section, and meat and dairy and fresh produce departments. Supercenters also often include Wal-Mart Specialty Shops such as our Vision Center, Tire & Lube Express, and One-Hour Photo Processing."

"It's one-stop shopping for most people," a Wal-Mart spokesperson quoted in the annual report said. "Before, you needed to go to a grocery store and any number of specialty retailers to get what you needed. Now you can just go to the Supercenter."

Closer examination reveals that the benefits of one-stop shopping may be a trade-off when the effects on the larger community are taken into account.

Frostburg's Example

Frostburg mayor John Bambacus, whose city has seen the effects of the 116,000 square foot Wal-Mart that opened in 1993 in LaVale, six miles from his city, urged local officials and citizens to take a cautious approach when considering the possibility of a Wal-Mart locating near Oakland.

"Of course we live in a real world of competition," the Frostburg mayor said, "and I support that—but a community has to realize that there is a price to pay

Lawmakers Attend Press Conference Hosted By Hafer

A press conference involving four area state legislators took place Monday morning at the John J. Hafer Funeral Home in Frostburg. Senator Hafer hosted the event, which was attended by Delegate George Edwards, Speaker of the House Casper Taylor, and Allegany Delegate Kevin Kelly.

The four men provided a wrap-up discussion of this year's General Assembly, which came to a close on April 12. The chief issues of the conference included the controversy and complexity of Governor Parris Glendening's tobacco tax-supplemental budget ultimatum, the deregulation of electric utility companies, the passage of Taylor's One Maryland program, and several funding allotments.

The men also discussed a pending announcement having to do with Garrett County's proposed adventure sports complex, which is to be located on Marsh Mountain. While the legislators could offer no details, they were united in their assurance that a private developer is in the final discussion stages with the Department of Natural Resources, and that a major development ($30-35 million) is on the horizon.

Several topics were discussed by the lawmakers, and a complete story covering the session, as well as a local legislative wrap-up, will appear in next week's issue of The Republican.

Oakland Council Votes To Annex Northern Tract

The Oakland Town Council held a public hearing Monday evening to hear comments on the proposed annexation of properties near the northern town limits along Rt. 219. After some discussion, the council members voted unanimously to proceed with the process. As is mandated by the town's ordinances, property owners now have 45 days to oppose the plan and put it to referendum. Twenty percent of the affected owners would have to be in favor of referendum to proceed.

Approximately 17 individuals came to the meeting and most spoke in favor of the annexation, which will provide water and sewer services to the properties, as well as other town services. The property owners will also be responsible to pay town taxes. Councilman Jay Moyer said the annexation will give the council more control over what comes into the area, which is a benefit because of the increased interest in the town from outside businesses, he

Commissioners Hold Constant Yield Hearing

The Garrett County commissioners held a mandated hearing on Tuesday to announce that they will reject the $2.51 constant yield rate and keep the county tax at $2.59. This will bring in an estimated added revenue of $622,460.

Because of continued growth in the county, the fiscal year 1998-99 assessable base went to an actual assessable tax base of $785,056,316 in FY 99-00. In other words, the assessable base the county ended with in FY 98-99 was not the same assessable base figure that FY 99-00 started with. The estimated revenue was $775,965,348, but the actual was $785,056,316, which constitutes a 4% increase. If the tax rate remained in line with the constant yield, it would be lowered to $2.51. But because the budget requests have been high and the commissioners are already working to fit these requests that total over $30 million into their expected $20,955,418 income, they will keep the rate at $2.59.

In holding the tax rate the same, the county will accrue an additional $622,460.

The final budget for the county is to be set on May 4 at a public hearing in the commissioners' courthouse meeting room.

Bear Creek Bridge Replacement Work Begins This Week

Construction work began this week to replace the Route 219 bridge that spans Bear Creek. The existing bridge, which is nearly 40 years old and has been showing signs of deterioration, is slated to be replaced by a new bridge 18 feet to its west. Construction will continue through the rest of this year and will be completed by next spring if weather permits.

Route 219 traffic will continue to utilize the old bridge throughout the construction process, and temporary single-lane closures may occur on the highway between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Traffic along Fish Hatchery Road will be detoured along Pud Miller Road and Route 219 at certain dates during the project, and both Fish Hatchery and Bear Creek roads may be subject to intermittent daylight single-lane closures as well. Flag people, arrow boards, variable message signs, traffic cones, and barrels will guide motorists through the work zone.

The $3.3 million project is being carried out by Corman Construction of Annapolis Junction, which was awarded the contract by the Maryland State Highway Administration in a competitive bidding process.

County Offices Make Requests For Fiscal Year 2000 Budgets

Over the past several weeks, representatives of various Garrett County offices have made their formal budget requests for fiscal year 2000. In addition to the education board's budget proposal (reported in the March 25 issue of The Republican), the following offices/organizations have made public requests for funding: the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, the Ruth Enlow Library, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Commission for Women. In all, the Garrett County commissioners have reported that the combined requests of all agencies and offices total over twice as much as the expected revenue for the county. Commissioner Chairman Ernest Gregg reported this week, however, that the board has nearly completed the budget after reviewing the requests thoroughly.

"I have never participated in such an intense budget process," Gregg said, noting that in his commissioner career, he has worked on 12 other county budgets. He said each request was reviewed "line by line" and cuts were made as prudently as possible. The approved budget for FY 2000 is to be announced on May 4 at a public hearing, also at which the amended FY 1999 budget is to be adopted. The tax rate will be set at that meeting as well, and is expected to remain at $2.59. (See related story.)

Representatives of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce made their pitch last week, asking the fiscal authority for a total of $380,000 for FY 2000. The sheriff's office and detention center request came in two weeks ago at a total of $2,632,055, and the Ruth Enlow Library system is in need of $473,315. The Commission for Women has made a request for $3,500, having met with the fiscal authority three weeks ago. These requests are in addition to a number of other mostly smaller applications for funding, conveyed to the fiscal authority via letters.

The roads department request is for $17,120,425, up from last year's allotment of $14,767,440. Further coverage of that request will appear in next week's issue.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

In a meeting last week with the commissioners, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce was represented by Ken Wishnick, executive director; David Moe, president; Jerry Geisler, vice

Dental Office In Grantsville To Stay Open

The Family Dentistry office of Dr. Terry E. Dornburg, Grantsville, will remain open and continue to provide service to patients. Though located in the Grantsville Health Center facility, the dental office will not be affected by the closing of medical offices at that site.

An article in the April 1 issue of The Republican reported on the decision by Conemaugh Health System to terminate its community medical services in Grantsville. However, Dr. Dornburg is in no way affiliated with the Conemaugh system.

Tim DeWitt To Guest Perform With SHS Band

Dr. Timothy DeWitt, a Garrett County native and accomplished professional musician, will be the guest performer at the annual spring concert of the Southern Garrett Band, under the direction of Richard Clever. The concert, originally slated for April 30, has been rescheduled for Tuesday, May 4, at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

A graduate of Southern High School and former member of the Southern Highlander Band, DeWitt has been a member of the West Virginia Symphony Orchestra, Charleston, since 1985. Formerly, he has performed with the Maryland Symphony Orchestra under Barry Tuckwell, the Bedford Springs Festival Orchestra, and the West Virginia Symphonette. Chamber music performance has included the West Virginia Symphony Brass Quintet, the Appalachian Chamber Ensembles of Clarksburg, and the Tower Brass Quintet, Bowling Green, Ohio. In the summer of 1995, DeWitt and pianist Heawon Stuckenbruck were featured with the Symphony at Deep Creek of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival in a performance of Piano Concerto No. 1 by Shostakovich.

Graduating in 1993 with a doctor of musical arts degree in performance and literature (trumpet) from the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, Dr.

GGBA To Host Rocky Gap's Sales Manager

Lisa Yarbrough, sales manager and public relations director for Rocky Gap State Park in Allegany County, will be the guest speaker at next Tuesday's meeting of the Greater Grantsville Business Association. Among her other responsibilities at the new facility, Yarbrough arranges day trips for guests.

The GGBA invited Yarbrough to the monthly general meeting to inform the Grantsville area business owners about the facilities and activities of the neighboring state-owned resort and conference center. In addition to gathering information, GGBA members will be able to discuss with Yarbrough what Granstville can offer the visitors at Rocky Gap, association president Lindy Moebs explained.

"We are hoping it will be an opportunity for some good give and take. There are some beautiful facilities at Rocky Gap that we should know about and our (GGBA) brochures are displayed right in the their lobby," she noted.

Moebs also said that she hopes all the members of the group whose businesses have something to offer to visitors or tourists will come to the breakfast meeting Tuesday and bring their information and brochures.

"Rocky Gap will be building the business at its conference center. Spouses coming to the center may want to take day trips while seminars are going on," she said. Moebs added that the proximity of Grantsville to Rocky Gap easily accommodates a day excursion.

The GGBA will print new brochures within the next few weeks. Any members who wish to be included must pay their dues by April 30.

The GGBA holds a general membership meeting on the last Tuesday of each month at Penn Alps Restaurant beginning at 8:30 a.m.

The 38 members of the sixth grade band will continue the concert with "Roman Overture," "American Folk Trilogy," "Jurassic Park," and "School Spirit March."

The 80 members of the seventh and eighth grade band will then take the stage, opening with "Glorioso" by Robert W. Smith. The program will continue with "Our Heritage March," "Chorale Prelude: For the Beauty of the Earth," "Sabre Dance" from the ballet Gayane by Khatchaturian, "Ashokan Farewell," and "James Bond Returns."

Underage Party In Swanton Ends With Citations

A Saturday night party in Swanton came to an end as Garrett County sheriff's deputies issued a total of five citations for underage drinking.

Deputies responded to the Lower White Oak Road residence at 1 a.m. Sunday morning when a citizen complained of loud noise coming from the home. Upon arrival they found evidence that several persons under the age of 21 were consuming alcohol on the premises. The citations were issued after breath tests were administered.

Ricky Allan Vecchioni, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, and Michael George Lollar, 18, Keyser, were each issued underage drinking citations and released. Three juvenile females were also cited for underage consumption and were released to their parents.

Agency On Aging Earns Grant For Delivering Meals

Community Action Committee's Area Agency on Aging has received a "Severe Weather Alert" grant in the amount of $2,300. The grant is part of the Senior Helpings initiative sponsored by Philip Morris Companies Inc., in partnership with the National Meals on Wheels Foundation.

The grant enables the agency to purchase emergency shelf-stable meals to be provided to seniors receiving home delivered meals. The emergency meals will assure seniors have food available in the event that severe weather prohibits regular delivery.

The AAA will purchase six emergency shelf stable meals for each of its 150 home delivered meal recipients. The meals will be distributed in late October or early November, prior to the onset of bad weather.

An agency spokeswoman said that every attempt is made to not disrupt the delivery schedule, but adverse weather often precludes the agency from reaching many of the elderly clients. "Our agency can certainly rest easier knowing we have been able to provide emergency meals to cover those events," she said.

The AAA spokeswoman said that the agency has successfully applied for several grants through the Senior Helpings initiative. "The partnership between Philip Morris Companies Inc. and National Meals on Wheels Foundation has had a very positive impact on our agency," the spokeswoman said.

The agency is awaiting notification about a second grant proposal in the amount of $46,700.

Elected Officials Speak At Annual LWV Meeting

The League of Women Voters of Garrett County held its 29th annual meeting on Saturday, April 17, following a legislative wrap-up by Del. George Edwards and Sen. John Hafer. Oakland Mayor Asa McCain also briefed the audience on town developments and activities.

Some of the legislation Edwards and Hafer covered dealt with electric utility deregulation, a bond bill for the Oakland train station, increased liquor control board fines, coal mining permits, Program Open Space funds, foster parents and delinquent child support payments, the cigarette tax increase and tobacco settlement funds, semiannual property tax payments, funding formula for higher education, and high-tech fiber-optic connections with all schools and many businesses.

McCain discussed plans for Oakland's upcoming sesquicentennial celebration, efforts to annex land north of Oakland, plans for TDEC to move to the Southern Garrett Industrial Park for expansion, and the possible move of the health department to McHenry.

Outgoing league president Virginia Grove chaired the annual meeting, during which the following officers for 1999-2001 were elected: Susan Athey-Oxford, president; Dorothy Leighton, first vice president; Kathy Helbig, second vice president; and Roberta Andersen, secretary. Henrietta Lease will return to the board after a leave of absence. Continuing as treasurer is Edith Brock, and the other directors are Barbara Flinn and Donna Aspinall.

LWV members adopted the following local program for the coming year: action as needed for planning and zoning, economic development, health care (including mental health), status of children, and women's issues.

The League of Women Voters is a multi-issue organization that encourages the informed and active participation of citizens in their government. The league does not support or oppose any political party or candidate. It is open to any person, male or female, who is a U.S. citizen at least 18 years old. For more information, persons may contact any board member listed above or write to LWVGC, P.O. Box 115, Oakland, MD 21550.

Guidelines: Safe Medicine Use by the Elderly

Health statistics indicate that older persons take more prescription and over-the-counter medicines than any other age group. While persons over age 65 make up about 11% of the US population, they take 25 to 30% of all medicines sold. As compared to younger adults, this age group tends to have more long-term illnesses such as diabetes, arthritis, and heart disease. And as a result of the aging process, older adults may be more "sensitive" to the effects of medicines. Kidney function, for example, often declines, causing some medicines to remain in the body longer and leading to more side effects.

The Poison Prevention Council provides these guidelines for safe medicine use in older Americans: • Take exactly the amount of medicine prescribed by your physician. • Never take the medicines prescribed for friends or relatives, even though your symptoms may be the same. • Always tell your doctor about past problems associated with medicines (e.g., rashes, dizziness). • Make lists of all medicines used. Keep one copy with your medicines and keep one copy in your wallet or purse. • Make sure you understand the directions printed on all medicine containers. • Discard old medicines because they lose effectiveness over time.

Boogie Express Concert Slated At Garrett CC

A concert by boogie woogie pianist Mike Lange and Boogie Express will be presented in the Garrett Community College auditorium at 8 p.m. on Saturday, May 8. The co-curricular event is open to the public.

Influenced by the music of Louis Jordan and Jerry Lee Lewis, Mike Lange and Boogie Express perform a variety of boogie woogie, swing blues, and old time rock and roll tunes. Lange's boogie woogie piano style has been acclaimed by audiences and music critics wherever the band has performed, and, as one critic put it, "When Mike Lange sits down to play, you hear all 88 keys come to life."

Lange, who has been playing piano since 1967, has performed with many of the area's top bands and as a freelance musician. For several years prior to forming Boogie Express in 1992, he performed as the lead vocalist and pianist for Loaded Roller, a popular swing dance band.

The line-up of Boogie Express includes saxophonist Phil Porter, guitarist Rick Chapman, drummer Mike D'Amato, and bassist Jeff Stearn, described as some of the area's top veteran musicians. One of the few boogie bands currently performing in the mid-Atlantic region, Mike Lange and Boogie Express has performed at festivals, swing dances, nightclubs, yacht clubs, and private parties throughout the region.

The admission charge for the concert is $3, and the event is funded in part by the Garrett County and Maryland State arts councils.

GCSO Traffic Stops Net DWI, Drug Charges

A separate pair of traffic stops by Garrett County sheriff's deputies led to two arrests on driving while intoxicated (DWI) charges, and additional drug charges were filed after marijuana was reportedly discovered on the individuals involved.

John Wayne Wilburn, 35, Terra Alta, W.Va., was arrested for speeding and DWI at 4:15 a.m. on Thursday after being stopped on Nest Lick Acres Road. A search uncovered a small plastic bag of suspected marijuana in Wilburn's jacket pocket, and a second bag of suspected marijuana, rolling papers, and a sizeable amount of cash in his car.

Wilburn was charged with DWI, speeding, possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute, and possession of drug paraphernalia. He was released from jail after posting a $1,500 bond.

An early Wednesday morning traffic stop on Garrett Highway at the Arrowhead Market led to the arrest of Tammy Lynn Fogle, 38, Oakland, on DWI and possession of marijuana charges. While she was being searched at the jail after her 2:30 a.m arrest, a small bag of suspected marijuana was found in her pocket.

Fogle was subsequently released on her own recognizance.

In other DWI arrests, a Friendsville woman was charged with DWI and violation of an alcohol restriction after an accident Thursday night.

Deputies responding to a report of disorderly conduct by several individuals in the intersection of Sand Flat and Pysell Crosscut roads shortly after 10 p.m. found a car that had been operated by Sharon Denise Lowe, 27, disabled after it had run into a ditch. Further investigation revealed that Lowe and all three of her passengers had been consuming alcohol.

Lowe was subsequently released on her own recognizance. Maryland State Police assisted on the call.

Charles Markwood Madigan, 34, Swanton, was charged with DWI after deputies had observed him and Terry Sharpless, 37, Crellin, riding together in a vehicle on Maryland Highway at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday.

A passing deputy who recognized Sharpless stopped the vehicle because Sharpless was wanted on a failure-to-appear bench warrant. Sharpless was taken into custody at the same time Madigan was arrested for DWI.

A final DWI arrest was that of Paul Timothy Everly, 31, Loch Lynn.

Grantsville Man Arrested For Assault

A Grantsville man was arrested Monday and charged with second degree assault, following an incident involving two other Grantsville residents.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, released information that at about 4 p.m. Clarence R. Guthrie, 34, the accused, was arguing with Clarence R. Guthrie Sr. and Roger Dale Guthrie Sr. Allegedly the accused gestured with a closed fist and threatened to strike and harm Clarence Sr. The accused then reportedly argued with Roger Guthrie and struck him with his fist.

Clarence Guthrie Jr. was charged with two counts of second degree assault and later released on his own recognizance.

Mtn. Lake Park Domestic Dispute Ends In Arrest

A Mountain Lake Park man arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies late Thursday night after a domestic incident faces several charges, including assault on a police officer.

Ricky Dale Kent Sr., 36, was arrested shortly before midnight at the West Third Street residence he shares with his girlfriend. Deputies reported that upon their arrival they could hear the sound of a female pleading with Kent inside, and when the door was opened an unarmed Kent allegedly attacked a deputy.

Kent reportedly continued to fight about being arrested and continued to struggle as he was taken into custody with handcuffs. He was charged with two counts of second degree assault, one on his girlfriend and one on the deputy; one count of resisting arrest; and one count of disturbing the peace.

Kent is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Detention Center on a $20,000 bond, set by a district court commissioner.

In other sheriff's news, a domestic incident in Deer Park at approximately the same time as the aforementioned assault resulted in the arrest of an Oakland man.

Deputies responding to a burglary and assault complaint at an Edgewood Drive residence met with a woman who said she had arrived home at 10:30 p.m. to find her car's windshield broken out and numerous items destroyed in her residence.

While deputies were interviewing the woman, her husband, Albert C. Paugh, 38, from whom she is separated, drove into the driveway and allegedly punched a man in the face.

Paugh was arrested and charged with fourth degree burglary and malicious destruction of property. He was released from jail after posting a $4,500 property bond.

A guest staying at the Will O' the Wisp hotel along Deep Creek Lake was arrested after a domestic incident at approximately 1 a.m. on Sunday.

Randy Lawrence Walden, 21, Port Deposit, was arrested by deputies who reported that he allegedly assaulted his girlfriend when she attempted to leave the hotel. Walden also allegedly acted disorderly in the hotel and outside along Garrett Highway at the time of the arrest.

Walden, who was subsequently released after posting a $2,000 bond, faces one count of second degree assault and two counts of disorderly conduct.

Roy Norman Cheshire, 19, Oakland, was charged with failure to obey a lawful order, disturbing the peace, and possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia after being arrested at his Oakland Drive residence at 9 a.m. on Tuesday.

Deputies responding to a domestic complaint arrived to find Cheshire outside yelling at his wife, surrounded by her clothing which he had allegedly thrown out into the yard. When the pair was taken indoors for interviews, the deputies found that numerous belongings inside the house had been upset and destroyed, and a damaged door showed signs of being repeatedly struck.

Cheshire refused to comply with repeated requests to sit down and be quiet while his wife was being questioned, and was placed under arrest. Marijuana was allegedly a contributing factor in the incident. The report also noted that the couple's 15-month-old daughter was present throughout the proceedings.

Cheshire was released on his own recognizance.

Ferdinand George Bauman, 32, Oakland, is currently being held on a $20,000 bond after being arrested on Friday and charged with three counts of manufacturing drugs with the intent to distribute, and failure to appear on drugs and firearms charges. The arrest was the result of an investigation that began last year, and further details were not available.

Curtis Lynn DeWitt, 25, Oakland, was arrested Tuesday and charged with second degree assault, and was released on his own recognizance. Further details were not available.

THE LEWIS FAMILY, known as the nation's first family of gospel bluegrass, will be among the performers at a Grand Ole Opry-style concert being sponsored by the Southern Band Boosters and slated for Friday, May 7, at 8 p.m. at Southern High School. The Lewis Family, which holds a spot in the Georgia Music Hall of Fame, has recorded over 50 albums and three music videos. The members have been featured nationally on television broadcasts of CBS, TNN, and NBC. Advance tickets for the program are now available at Englander's Pharmacy in Oakland, Bill's Marine Service at Deep Creek Lake, the Plaza Drug Mart in Kingwood, and Cannon's Ace Hardware in Keyser, or by calling 301-387-9275.

To Perform

DeWitt studied under Charles Geyer, former member of both the Chicago and Houston symphony orchestras. He also holds a master of music degree in performance from Bowling Green State University, where he was a student of Edwin Betts, and a bachelor of music degree in performance from West Virginia University, where he studied with Roger Sherman, currently of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

Dr. DeWitt is an associate professor of music at Alderson-BroaddusCollege, Philippi, W.Va., where he teaches applied brass, music history, and brass methods, directs the Alderson-Broaddus College Brass Choir and Quintet, and has served as coordinator for recruitment and music scholarships. Under his direction, the Brass Choir was one of four student honor groups chosen, by taped audition, to perform at the 1995 West Virginia Music Educators Association (WVMEA) meeting in Morgantown, and has appeared locally as part of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival concert series. A subgroup of the Brass Choir, the Alderson-Broaddus College Trumpet Quintet, was accepted to compete in the Trumpet Ensemble division at the 1997 National Trumpet Competition at George Mason University. DeWitt has been among the artist faculty for that yearly event since.

Private students he has coached have been named winners at state and divisional levels in the brass division of the Music Teachers National Association (MTNA) collegiate competitions in music performance, and have therefore competed at national conventions of that organization. One was named a 1996 Yamaha Young Performing Artist, one of 13 students nationwide to receive this honor, and was accepted to the Kingsville (Texas) International Competitions in music performance. Former students have performed or are currently performing with prestigious ensembles, including the River City Brass Band, the United States Army Band, the United States Navy Bands, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, and the Glenn Miller Orchestra.

DeWitt has served as a visiting instructor at West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, and on the summer faculty at the Eastman School of Music. An active clinician, adjudicator, recitalist, and free-lance performer, he recently researched and presented lecture-recitals on the trumpet literature of Bach and Haydn, and has served as presenter and host for several state brass conferences in West Virginia.

Tickets for the concert, which may be purchased at the door, will cost $2 for adults and $1 for students. The program will feature selections from both classical and popular styles.

will be good for the future of our signature programs to have this facility where they can be housed together. We expect that these programs will expand and flourish in the years to come."

Allen also acknowledged the service of the late Bill Nedrow, former director of GCC's physical plant, in supervising the preparation of the site, including the grading, installation of water and electric lines, and in the cost-saving measures Nedrow implemented. The construction of the building will now be supervised by consultant Roger Skipper and John Furr, interim director of the physical plant.

"GCC is very proud to build this facility for our community in support of local agriculture and alternative land use," Herman commented.

Freedom and Responsibility...

There is little dispute that what makes our nation great is the fact that its very foundation consists of a variety of guaranteed individual freedoms. Our constitution, and particularly the amendments to that constitution, spell out those freedoms, many of which are not enjoyed in a number of other countries.

Unfortunately, though, too many of our citizens believe that freedom simply means that each person is entitled to basically do what he wants, as long as he stays within the law. They don't realize or don't accept the fact that with freedom comes responsibility. A few examples in point:

Freedom of speech must be considered among our most precious. But the irresponsibility as a result of that freedom is that all of us, including our children, are now literally surrounded by crude, immoral, corrupt, depraved and/or violent behavior, or at least its portrayal, in the majority — the majority — of our movies and television programs. One can count on one hand the number of G-rated movies produced in an entire year. Our magazine racks, video games, rock music, and now, the Internet, are also loaded with the same kind of material, all of which is seemingly desensitizing our children to the point that they have trouble distinguishing between what behavior is truly good, what is acceptable, and what is intensely evil.

The legal right to bear firearms is another liberty guaranteed by our constitution. But because of the irresponsibility of many gun sellers, gun owners, and occasionally law enforcement personnel, weapons continually fall into the hands of the wrong people, causing either accidental or calculated injury and death, as was so poignantly and tragically demonstrated this week in Colorado.

Dress codes in most of our public schools are today either non-existent or considerably lax, as more and more authority for such things is sapped away from school officials by organizations like the American Civil Liberties Union, all under the guise of guaranteeing the individual rights of students. And today in our society, if one does not get what he wants, he files a lawsuit.

Specifically in regard to the shootings this week in Colorado, one could probably cite many for acting irresponsibly: the parents of the young shooters, the school administration, and to some extent, even their fellow students and the rest of their community. In fact, because of the situations described earlier, perhaps our entire society is at least partially to blame. There are far too many angry, frustrated children in our communities, who for a variety of reasons feel unimportant and unloved. We can blame their own parents for not reaching out to them and providing for their emotional needs, but evidently they were also ignored, or chastised, by just about everyone else in their lives. We, all of us, as parents, as grandparents, as uncles and aunts, as family friends, and certainly as members of churches, must become more responsible in learning the warning signs and then responding quickly and appropriately to others, both children and adults, who are literally crying out for help. Parents also must become more responsible in regulating their children's exposure to all of the unwholesome material that exists in our society, ironically because of our precious freedoms. And when are our rock musicians, television writers, and movie producers going to become more responsible?

Freedom does not mean freedom from all responsibility.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I'm writing in regard to Mrs. Craver's letter and the letter that R.C. Speicher wrote a few weeks ago.

Yes, marijuana grows in the ground. Yes, people have eaten poison ivy and poison oak. My husband has and yet to this day has not gotten any poison.

You know that tobacco grows in the ground and it is legal. Wheat and barley grow in the ground and are used as an ingredient in alcohol. In my opinion, if we can make tobacco and alcohol legal, why not marijuana? If it were packaged like cigarettes and sold by the pack, they would make enough money to pay off the national debt.

Mrs. Craver's point of view was to express the way the justice system deals with marijuana users and alcohol users here in Garrett County.

Sincerely,
T. Sliger

To the Editor:

Many days are filled with hurry, money, and stress. We rush about trying to meet deadlines and for some, trying to find fulfillment. However, there are those among us who take the time to show that they care.

These fine people are known to us as volunteers. They are the folks who touch our lives at the Goodwill Mennonite Home.

When reading the Goodwill News in this newspaper, you will see many names of groups and individuals who come to the Home for parties, chapel, and afternoon and evening programs.

Along with these great people are those who volunteer in crafts, current events, one-on-one visits, exercise, Bingo, balloon tennis, ceramics, and numerous times throughout the month.

Today the Goodwill Mennonite Home wants to honor our volunteers for their dedication and for the joy they bring to us. May God bless you for the kindness and loving hours of service to our residents.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

The time-honored tradition of National Crime Victims' Rights Week is scheduled for April 25-May 1, 1999. This year's theme, "Victims' Voices: Silent No More," emphasizes the power of the personal story of victims, and how their individual and collective voices have improved our justice system and made our communities safer.

Just 20 years ago, crime victims were afforded few rights; their voices were muted, and limited services were available to provide them with support and assistance. This mask of silence has been lifted in our halls of justice, in state houses, and in communities where the voice of the victim is valued today for the vision it provides for true justice. The results are impressive. Today, over 10,000 organizations provide quality services and assistance to victims of crime, including over twelve in our county. Thirty thousand laws have been passed at the federal and state levels that define and protect victims' rights, including constitutional amendments in 32 states, including Maryland, that offer a range of participatory rights for victims.

While most crimes have decreased in our nation, those who have been touched by crime know today that other victims, service providers, and justice professionals stand ready to serve them, and to listen to their voices.

Victims' voices offer each of us a vision of justice that is inclusive, respectful, and fair. When victims speak out in their own cases, it reminds us of the personal, human suffering caused by crime. And when victims speak out for justice for all, the end result is responsible public policy and increased services that support victims and communities who are hurt by crime.

Maryland's observance of the 1999 National Crime Victims' Rights Week will commence with a memorial service, which will be held simultaneously at three locations across the state on Sunday, April 25, to honor the memory of innocent victims who have lost their lives to violent crimes in Maryland. The western region service will be presented in Westminster, Carroll County, at the New Windsor Conference Center.

Sincerely,
Lisa Thayer Welch
State's Attorney for Garrett County

To the Editor:

Every year in the United States, around 683,000 women are raped, and one out of every eight women will be raped in her life. Many women who are raped never report their attack, even though to report it should bring justice to their attackers. This is the way it should be.

However, this is not always the way it works in our court systems. In October 1997, a good friend of ours fell victim to a rape, and her attacker was a long-time friend. She followed all of the necessary precautions after the rape and went straight to the police to report it. This is when the trouble began.

For an entire year we watched her go through hell. The trial was delayed time and time again, and many times it seemed as though she was being put on trial instead of her attacker. They asked her demeaning questions about her life while no questions were asked about her attacker. This went on for over a year and seemed to bring her more emotional pain than the rape itself. Finally, in November 1998, it seemed as though the light at the end of the tunnel had come, as he was found guilty and put in jail.

The intense pain of that night could be put to rest and she could finally have time to put her life back together. The final shocking blow came this week when she received a phone call saying that her attacker had been let out of jail, less than five months after he was found guilty. The court did not even call her to tell her that he was let out; she had to call and find out herself. She now lives in fear of where he is and if he will come back to the university.

Women are encouraged to report their attacks, but with the court system in Allegany County being what it is, there seems to be no hope for justice. How can women stand up for what is right and find justice when so many times the rapist wins? How can women who are raped find security and peace of mind knowing that their attackers will not be punished for their actions? How can these women keep their pride? We can only hope that the court system in this county (Allegany) will become more sympathetic towards these cases and justice will be found for other rape cases.

Sincerely,
Bridget B. Nolan

To the Editor:

Your editorial in last week's paper concerning the location of our new Garrett County Health Dept. has brought about some concerns on what is important for (all) individuals. And yes, your editorial does show favoritism.

First, we would like to commend the appointed committee for looking at a site that would best suit the needs of our people. I realize some will travel more than others. But our friends and neighbors in Finzel, Avilton, Grantsville, as well as other areas involved, would welcome the new site as a more convenient central location for all of Garrett County. At the present location you need only to drive five or six miles west and you are in West Virginia, while going northeast toward the Finzel area you will travel approximately 40 miles. The site is very important to our elderly folks and the ones who need to call upon a neighbor or friend for transportation. It seems our culture has led us to regard the past as being more important than meeting the needs of our people. The "Main Street Program" comment about funding problems if the Health Dept. moves to a new central location, the "like it or not, Oakland is the county seat" comment doesn't carry much weight to someone ill or in a wheel chair or has other special health needs through the Garrett County Health Dept.

All Garrett County residents will benefit from one central location with less operating expenses as well as personal needs through our Health Dept. With all the technology of computers, communications, etc., all county agencies involved should be able to adapt very well with the new McHenry site. The Maryland State Police chose a site in McHenry for their new Garrett County barracks, which serves all of the county very well.

Whether we live north, south, east, or west in Garrett County, we are all God's people and noted for being a friendly area. We need a new central health department building site, so please urge our commissioners to go with their committee's recommendation for a McHenry or central location to all. May God bless you real good.

Respectfully,
Harold & Linda Swauger

To the Editor:

I am appalled at the thought of a Wal-Mart in our hometown. It will do the community no good. Sure, it will offer some jobs, but it will take away many more. Many jobs offered are part-time with no benefits. At least our jobs offer the benefit of the money earned staying in our community. Wal-Mart sends its money to Arkansas.

Students of Garrett County are proud of their heritage. We don't want it ruined by a company we don't need. If you think we need a Wal-Mart, stroll downtown and just take a look. Flip through some tales provided by the Book Mark'et. Eat a bacon cheeseburger and chocolate shake at Englanders, where all the waitresses not only know your name but what you want for breakfast after church. You are greeted by friends and neighbors in familiar places downtown and not a greeter hired by Wal-Mart to hand you sales literature. Stroll through Naylor's and look up and down the aisles at all the power tools and other fun grown-up and kids' toys. Pick out a card for your favorite person at Proudfoot's. Do you think a Wal-Mart employee would take the time and have the knowledge of Gregg's Pharmacy to explain and help you find medicine? How many times has Gregg's allowed a church or school group to hook up a hose and have a car wash to raise money? What about all the other businesses that donate to these type of activities?

What a good thing we have in our small community. When you come down the road toward Oakland, you know you are home. Who needs a huge square building with acres of asphalt parking lot to greet you? Occasionally driving to Cumberland or Morgantown for out-of-town shopping is okay with me if it means saving our community. I wish with all my heart that our wonderful community would not follow the same path as others and begin to look like any other place. I love growing up in this small neighborhood and wish others would have the same opportunity. That is why a group of students at Southern High School decided to write the following letters. We are the future of Garrett County and wanted to let others know how we feel.

Sincerely,
Katelin Taylor Moomau

Editor's Note: The following four letters, mentioned by the writer above, were accompanied by six additional unpublished letters with similar statements.

To the Editor:

I have lived in Garrett County all my life. Oakland is a small, caring, and "everyone knows everyone" kind of town. Now plans are being made that a Wal-Mart is coming in. Don't get me wrong, I love Wal-Mart, but my family and I are just fine driving to Keyser to go there. To put a Wal-Mart in the center of our town, is in my opinion, wrong. I don't want to see all our little shops and grocery stores go out of business. I also don't want to have one place to get everything. I am all for Wal-Mart, but not for one in my town.

Sheila Nolan
SHS

To the Editor:

The "family" on the mountaintop doesn't need a Wal-Mart.

This town is made up of many wonderful stores that our community has proudly built. A Wal-Mart would hurt these businesses and our friends who own them. Sure, it would be easy just to go to Wal-Mart for our needs, but it would be just as easy to go to the stores we already have.

Our area doesn't need any more "chain" businesses. We have a nice town that doesn't need to be smothered by big businesses that can't guarantee they will stay open. (Does Bausch & Lomb ring a bell).

Cortney Tressler
Senior, SHS

To the Editor:

I know that there are two sides to the issue of the new Wal-Mart coming to Oakland, so I am going to support both issues.

First off, I think Wal-Mart will be a good shopping place for the community. We'll save gas money by not having to drive to Cumberland.

However, the Wal-Mart will be quite a destruction to many different nearby pharmacies, and will kill the idea that Oakland is a small scenic town that makes a great place for children to grow up. In fact, if the Wal-Mart is built, traffic will put kids' lives in danger.

I guess if I had the power to vote, I'd probably vote Wal-Mart out of Oakland.

Amen,
Jason Lottmann

A NIGHT OF A LITTLE MUSIC

Once a year I blow the dust off my snare drum, and warm up on flams, paradiddles, rolls, and other drumming rudiments. The occasion is the Night of Music at our church. For a number of years now we have scheduled this event for the evening of the second Sunday after Easter.

The event itself is a broadening of our church's programs to include cultural activities with a religious theme rather than restricting ourselves to purely religious activities. Over the years we have listened to the children in our congregation who are studying piano, clarinet, violin, viola and — as was the case this year — trombone.

For some reason, known to the providence of God, we have had a bounty of drummers in our little church. Some years we have actually sported a four- or five-member percussion ensemble. This year, in addition to my snare drum solo, another drummer, one far my superior, joined me in a duet.

The choir provides the core of the musical offerings. This year we sang a rendition of St. Francis's prayer that begins, "Lord make me an instrument of thy peace...." and "Let there be peace on earth," both especially appropriate this year. We also sang a medley under the heading "Down By the Riverside."

Music has played an important part in my life for a very long time. The reason I chose drums back in the fourth grade was that I really wanted to play Scottish bagpipes. Since they were not being offered at my school, I decided to play drums since they were the only other instrument in a bagpipe band.

I was a great counter in those days (One-Two-Three-Four-OneTwo...). People came to our elementary school band concerts just to watch me count. I slammed the cymbals together rather dramatically, too, if I remember correctly.

In junior high my parents started taking me for paid music lessons. By high school I had branched out to other percussion instruments, especially the kettle drums (timpani). I would love to have a set of timpani today, but they cost thousands of dollars and they take up a lot of room.

My father used to say to me back in those days when he helped me haul my drum set around, "Why couldn't you play the piccolo?" The other question I have asked myself is why I didn't play the piano or guitar? No one ever calls me and invites me over to play the snare drum. No visitor to my home (other than my nieces and nephews occasionally) have ever said, "Play your drums for us."

Somewhere along the line — one summer during college, I think — I did take some piano lessons, to help me with music theory and to help me play the percussion keyboard instruments. After college my participation in music fell by the wayside, though as a listener it continued to be important.

A few months ago when I was back in Prague for a winter vacation I realized how much I had missed making music. I have written in this space about music from time to time, but I have kept a dirty little secret. I am one of those weird people who likes opera. When I was in Prague for eight nights I went to the opera five times.

So I came home, and started playing the piano again. I have just about recovered the skills acquired during that summer nearly 25 years ago. So last Sunday night the pastor sat at the piano and played three beginner's pieces for the Night of Music.

Perhaps I shall never be able to play an operatic score, but it would be nice just to be able to bang out a few hymns or Christmas carols from time to time.

The rat-a-tat-tat of the drum, the scratches of the violin, the enthusiastic, but shy, songs of children, as well as the more polished musical offerings lift us out of ourselves and alongside others. It is not enough to know the words of life; we need to know the music, too.

County Budget

president; Diane Wolfe, director of events and promotions; and Charlene Pullias, membership services manager.

The organization was allotted $245,000 for fiscal year 1999, an amount which was then amended by the addition of $20,000 in February to help the chamber cover the salary cost of the new executive director position. Last year's allotment did not include the remainder of Wishnick's salary, which, according to Moe, equates to $48,000 annually. The final amount also did not include a $38,031 lease agreement for the new visitors' center, which apparently takes effect in FY 2000.

The increased request this year of $380,000 is to cover these noted costs, as well as to fund a major tourism development plan. Moe explained that the Maryland Office of Tourism Development (MDOTD) currently has a mechanism in place that allows each jurisdiction to be reimbursed up to $20,000 in the engagement of a consultant and the development of a five-year strategic tourism development plan. However, the recipient must first engage the consultant and pay for the entire program (which must then be accepted by the MDOTD) before reimbursement is made. The local chamber hopes to engage in this process with the FY budget allotment.

Other monies are designated for a significant increase in advertising and marketing efforts with radio and television in the Baltimore/Washington area, as well as the Pittsburgh/Ohio region. In the chamber's effort to be more effective in promotional services and coordinated economic development endeavors, the "front-end costs" will increase, the representatives said. The officials expect increased personnel needs to cover the visitors' center, increased travel to expand networking opportunities, and increased advertising and printing costs.

Moe said this year's request of $380,000 represents 49.9% of the admission/amusement tax and accommodations revenues. He then reiterated a request made to the previous board of commissioners that the chamber be automatically allotted 50% of these two revenue sources annually. The prior commissioners had deferred the decision to the new board.

"This would be an incentive to all chamber businesses," Moe said, explaining that merchants and proprietors would be motivated to improve business so that the amusement and accommodations taxes would increase. "This way we would basically live or die by what we do."

The revenue generated by these taxes currently is earmarked for distribution among the towns and to the economic development offices, and also goes toward the funding of the chamber, the historical society, arts council, and other special promotions.

Moe also advised that the chamber will most likely raise its member dues from $100 to $150 per year. The staff expects to lose about 10% of the membership because of the increase, but still realize an additional net gain of $20,250. The organization will also be sponsoring a fireworks display on Dec. 31, in additional to its traditional July 4 show.

In the expenses category, the chamber leaders wish to fund the executive director position, and to increase one part-time staffer to full time "to support new initiatives," the budget report states. They also wish to hire one full-time person to support the PIVOT Schools-to-Careers program — a position previously half-supported by grant funds.

Commissioner Fred Holliday commented that the $380,000 "seems like a big chunk of taxpayers' dollars." In a later conversation with Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator, he indicated that the salary funding for the executive director position was never formally agreed to.

"When the chamber came to the commissioners last February, they asked for county funds to help get the executive director position funded," Pagenhardt said. "The commissioners agreed to amend the chamber budget by adding the initial $20,000. However, there was no formal agreement made at that time that the county would ever completely fund that position." Concerning the suggested 50% amusement tax allotment to the chamber, Gregg indicated that he was doubtful the board would agree to a set percentage.

"You can get into trouble down the road with percentages," he said.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Sheriff Richard Sanders and several members of his staff met with the commissioners two weeks ago to discuss the law enforcement's FY 2000 budget request. For the sheriff's office, the requested amount is $1,455,309. This is made up of $1,181.46 in operating funds, $252,500 for capital projects, and another $21,663 in debt service for lease agreements on four office vehicles. Last year the office was allotted a total of $990,384.

The amount requested for the detention center is $1,176,746. This consists of $1,140,202 in operating expenses and $36,544 in capital. Last year's allotment for the detention center was $726,921.

The significant increase of this year's request is chiefly a result of the office's need for several new hires, as explained in detail by Lt. Larry Gnegy and Major Gary Berkebile. Gloria Burns, administrative assistant, reviewed the office's current progress and highlighted various budget items, and Captain Don Tucker explained current automotive and computer needs.

Through grants and other funding sources, the sheriff's office expects to generate several hundred thousand dollars, which would go into the county's general fund. The office can also obtain a "Cops' Grant" to help with the hiring of three new deputies. This grant would give the office $75,000 per hire over a three-year period. Approximately 80% of costs associated with the new hires for training, clothing, lodging, and other expenses can be reimbursed through the State Police Aid, the officers explained.

The staff hopes to hire three new deputies in light of the continuing rise in local crime, as well as the "burn-out" rate for current deputies who are often overworked, the sheriff noted. While the county remains one of the safer jurisdictions in the state, the population is growing and this ultimately results in more crime, the officers said. There was a 40.3% increase in reported incidents from 1993 to 1998.

Gnegy offered information on the need for more correctional officers, noting that the total of inmate days in FY 1995-96 was 14,933. In FY 1997-98, the total was 17,156, constituting a 15% increase.

"This is a rising trend that will probably continue into the future," Gnegy said. With the new addition to the jail, the facility can now legally house 90 inmates. He said a recent Maryland Standards Commission manpower study of the detention center indicated the need for at least 19 correctional officers for optimum safety conditions. The center currently has 13 correctional officers, in addition to the warden and assistant warden. Currently there is also no one designated to maintain the facility, and Gnegy said there is a definite need for someone to fill this role. Therefore, the staff is asking for five new officers and one maintenance worker.

"It would be great if a correctional officer could also have a good background in plumbing and electrical systems," Gnegy said.

With capital funding, the officers hope to replace five vehicles and purchase three new radar units and mobile radios. Various computer upgrades and Y2K protection programs are also on the wish list, as are two laser printers for the jail and two new camera and monitor systems.

At the close of the officers' presentation, Commissioner Wendell Beitzel asked if they believed the budget request was "reasonable and attainable."

"Is it attainable? I don't know," the sheriff said. "But I know it's what we need. I can only do what I feel is a good job as sheriff, and I feel these things are what we need to maintain the safety of this county. I really couldn't see coming in here asking for less. Whether we get it all or not, I don't know.

"Our budget process has been very hard, and we've been very diligent," Sanders said. Holliday then asked why the sheriff and his staff had not met with the county's finance officers before presenting their budget to the commissioners, as was recommended by the three officials.

"I figured if I was going to get cut, then you ought to be the ones to cut me," Sanders answered. "I'm elected, you're elected — we're supposed to be working on this together and in public. If I'm going to get cut, then I want you to be the ones to do it."

The commissioners commended the sheriff and his staff for their current budget status, as the office has used just 61% of its FY 1999 budget allotment, even though the projected use for this time of year indicates they should be at about 67%.

RUTH ENLOW LIBRARY

Martha Makosky, director of the Ruth Enlow Library, and several members of her staff and the Friends of the Library organization met with the commissioners two weeks ago to outline the needs of the local system. Makosky's chief concern, she said, was the status of pay for the employees of the library, who are the lowest paid library workers in the state. Having obtained a grant to do so, Makosky had the Singer Group conduct a salary survey of the staff, and at the time of her presentation to the commissioners, the survey was not complete. She has since met again with the fiscal authority with the results of that project, which indicate that an allotment of $147,000 is needed to bring the salaries up to a more appropriate level. This would be added to the original request for $473,315, which includes capital and debt service funds.

After salary increases and better insurance packages for the staff, Makosky listed the necessity of an office manager. There is no one currently hired for secretarial or office management work in the five-branch library system, and the director said the need for such an individual is great. The next item on the list is a new delivery van (bookmobile). The current vehicle is a 1984 van with milage over 195,000 which requires extensive and continuous maintenance, she said. The staff is asking for $22,000 to purchase a replacement vehicle.

Makosky would like to increase the deliveries of books and materials from the current twice per week schedule to five per week. She said this will become more important as the Finding A Better Way To Help...

For generations we have been dedicated to helping families cope with the loss of a loved one. It's a commitment we're proud to keep today. We know that making funeral arrangements can be a very difficult experience, so we're always looking for better ways to help. Because selecting a casket can be the most painful part of the experience, it was also a natural place for our improvements to start.

Over the last few months, we've been working to do just that. We've renovated our facilities and completely redesigned our casket selection room. We're using an entirely different approach, one that has been extensively tested with people like you -- people from families all over the country who describe this new approach as a "simpler," "kinder" and "better way to choose a casket."

We're proud of both our new facilities and the difference they're going to make for families in the communities. We invite you to visit and see for yourself how we're finding better ways to help.

Gabby's Gift On Tour, Final Stop Washington, DC

An original musical, Gabby's Gift, written by Friendsville Elementary School music teacher Dan Taylor and spotlighting the talents of the elementary school chorus, took to the road this week to debut in Garrett County and other nearby schools. The final stop for the theatrical troupe will be Washington, D.C., where a special performance will be given for Sen. Paul Sarbanes.

Taylor's musical unravels the story of 8-year-old Gabby, who encounters Luther, a strange man, whom only she can see. "He turns out to be an advocate of wrong doing. He is always trying to get Gabby to do the wrong things so that he, in turn, can earn special buttons for his accomplishments," explained Douglas Gaither, Friendsville principal and actor portraying Luther.

The Friendsville production offers the school audiences both musical entertainment for the students and an instruction tool for the teachers. Information packets precede the arrival of the cast at each elementary school on the tour. Included in the transmittal is a synopsis of the play, a vocabulary list of words that appear in the script and musical selections, and descriptions of the main characters, setting, and plot.

Among the new vocabulary words, which teachers may review with students prior to the show, are: accountable, integrity, influence, accomplishments, and prompt. The plot is described as: "(basic) Good triumphs over evil when we make the right choices."

Gaither also sends follow-up lesson plans along to teachers along the tour route. "The musical is an extension of our character education, Virtue of the Month, program that was started this school year. As you see, all aspects and areas of the school have become involved with this virtue program, including the resource areas of instruction," Gaither stated in a cover letter to other principals.

Taylor has written several musicals for the students and staff at Friendsville Elementary to produce. Last year's cast performed for Gov. and Mrs. Parris Glendening at Government House in Annapolis.

The schools listed on the itinerary of the Friendsville Elementary chorus production are Route 40, Keyser (W.Va.), Yough Glades, Dennett Road, Accident, and Grantsville elementary schools.

LITTLE VOICE

Rated R - Running time: 1:36

Little Voice is one of those films that deserves more credit than it's going to get in this country. Like Waking Ned Devine, The Boxer, and The Full Monty, it is an excellent film, but not very accessible to Americans because of its very "foreign" style. Little Voice is set in England and features an all-British cast (including Michael Caine and Jim Broadbent), but contains a caliber of acting not seen every day. Brenda Blethyn was nominated for an Oscar for supporting actress, and Jane Horrocks, who plays the title character, is astounding not so much for her acting, but her impressions of famous female singers. The thick accents take a bit of getting used to for us Yanks, but if you get a chance to see it, this low-profile gem directed by Mark Herman (Brassed Off) is well worth the trouble of a little careful listening.

Little Voice (Horrocks) is a young woman who suffers from serious introversion. Her real name is Laura, but she is called "LV" by her loud, bawdy mother Mari (Blethyn), who is the only person who ever sees her. Since the death of her beloved father, LV spends most of her life in her bedroom listening to his vast collection of LPs. His favorites were Marilyn Monroe, Sheila Bassett, and Judy Garland, so those are LV's favorites, too. But she doesn't just listen. Over the years, she has grown so familiar with the tunes, she has developed an uncanny ability to mimic the famous artists.

No one knows about LV's talent until Mari meets up with a lustful man in a bar named Ray Say (Caine). Ray is a small-time agent and producer who hires strippers to dance at the nightclub owned by his friend Mr. Boo (Broadbent). When he comes over to Mari's place for a little drunken sexual escapade, he overhears LV singing upstairs. Mari just thinks of the girl as an impediment to her social life, but Ray immediately recognizes her talent, so he asks Mr. Boo over to hear her. LV is reluctant at first (she can hardly stand being around other people), but she gets a spiritual message from her dad that it's all right, so she performs. In an immensely satisfying scene at the club, she breaks out of her cage (literally) and is a smash hit in front of a packed house.

LV is also being romantically pursued by a young phone repairman named Billy (Ewan McGregor), who suffers from his own acute shyness. He raises homing pigeons, and LV is the first person he's ever met who is as quiet and delicate as his birds. So while Mari, Ray, and Mr. Boo are busy exploiting LV for all she's worth, Billy assures her that she need not perform to win his love.

At the close of the film, the credits assure us that Jane Horrocks performed all her own singing. This is necessary, because she sounds so much like Garland, Monroe, Bassett, Deitrich, etc., that one would swear the scenes were overdubbed. In fact, I daresay this film, written by director Herman (and the play The Rise And Fall Of Little Voice, on which it is based, by Jim Cartwright), was designed solely to showcase Horrocks's ability. But thank goodness Herman didn't skimp on supporting talent. Horrocks's impersonations are incredible, but what makes this a wholly satisfying film are the performances by Blethyn, Caine, and Broadbent, who add astounding energy and depth.

Little Voice is an amazing feat of impressionism. It's a truly funny comedy. It's a heartwarming romance. But its time at your local theatre will be fleeting. If you can't see it there, be sure to put it on your "must rent" list when it comes out on video. ★★★★½

LIFE

Rated R - Running time: 1:48

Given the reputations of Eddie Murphy and Martin Lawrence, and the trailers promoting their new collaborative effort, I expected Ted Demme's Life to be a newer version of Stir Crazy: a yuk-it-up comedy full of bathroom humor and cheap laughs. I was astounded. Though it is hysterically funny at times, and incorporates some of Murphy's and Lawrence's "soul man slapstick," it's also an insightful and well-made film about the life journey taken by two innocent men caught up in unfortunate circumstances. There are good performances by a large supporting cast, and the script (by Robert Ramsey and Matthew Stone) is smart and unpretentious.

Life begins, if you will, in Harlem in 1932. A sly con man named Ray Gibson (Murphy) and a relatively straight arrow named Claude Banks (Lawrence) have only one thing in common: They can't pay their tabs at Spanky's night club. When they are about to be dealt some street justice, Ray makes a deal with the proprietor to do some bootlegging for him. The two will travel to Mississippi to pick up some premium moonshine and deliver it in 3 days. But soon the two get into trouble again: They accidentally stumble upon a dead man, and then the police stumble upon them.

They are convicted and sentenced to life in prison, and this was when "life sentence" was taken literally. The rest of the film has them growing old together in Mississippi State Prison Camp 8, making friends and enemies with their fellow inmates, and attempting various escapes over the years. There may be some sanitizing of the portrayal of prison life (there are none of the atrocities we have seen in Sleepers and The Shawshank Redemption), but it is clear that escape attempts and other rule-breakings are dealt with sternly.

Besides good supporting performances all around, especially by Obba Babatundé and Miguel A. Núñez Jr. as fellow inmates, Life is technically above average. The old age makeup by Rick Baker is superlative as usual; he knows there is more to aging someone than frosting the hair and adding a few wrinkles. The costume design by Lucy W. Corrigan is evocative of the changing periods of the film; also noteworthy is the production design by Dan Bishop. There was obviously a concerted effort on his part to research period building and automotive designs and various other set elements; the entire film moves cohesively through the years. The cinematography (by Geoffrey Simpson) and editing (by Jeffrey Wolf) also deserve notice—there are some really interesting camera angles and unconventional visual emphasis, and some tricky cuts during the scenes showcasing Ramsey's and Stone's clever dialogue. The soundtrack is quite enjoyable too, incorporating blues, rap, and swing, as well as original music by Wyclef Jean.

Life is comparable to, perhaps, Fried Green Tomatoes, if Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau had been involved. Murphy and Lawrence have a great connection, and their comic symbiosis makes for a truly enjoyable experience. The script and Demme's directing are highly sensitive to the changing face of race relations (and prison conditions) in the Deep South, and Demme doesn't fall into the trend of making the protagonists perfect and the villains purely evil. There are varying levels of racism in different characters, as in life, and some attitudes change as time goes on. The film contains plenty of foul language, as one would expect in any prison movie, but also great humor and some important messages about friendship and adversity. ★★★★½

BABY GENIUSES

Rated PG - Running time: 1:34

Thanks to computers, we have seen some dazzling special effects in films lately, but even the best medicines can have unwanted side effects. In this case it's Baby Geniuses, a film built around one slightly amusing trick. This isn't even the first film to do the computerized lip-sync gimmick—it's been done (better) in Babe. With its insipid story, uninspired characters, and sloppy technique, Baby Geniuses couldn't possibly appeal to anyone over 8 unless they just need to watch babies act cute.

The film was directed by Bob Clark (Porky's) and written by Steven Paul and Francisca Matos. It stars Kathleen Turner as Dr. Elena Kinder, a power-hungry baby products mogul and inventor of a revolutionary new method of child-rearing. Dr. Heep (Christopher Lloyd, made up to look exactly like Lenin) is her henchman, and Peter MacNicol and Kim Cattrall are Dan and Robin Bobbins, a sappily-married couple who run a conventional daycare center. But the real stars are a set of toddler triplets (Leo, Myles, and Gerry Fitzgerald) who portray a pair of twins caught up in Dr. Kinder's evil plot, and a slew of other tots playing cutesy back-up.

Dr. Kinder believes that babies are born with complete knowledge of the meaning of life, and that their jabbering is really the dead language of cuneiform. After they have a few years under their diapers, they "cross over"—they lose their smarts and become the ignorant little tykes we know and love. She wants to find a way to download their wisdom before the crossover, and therefore corner the market on baby-related merchandise.

Central to her plot is a pair of twins separated at birth, Sylvester and Whit (the Fitzgerald trips, voiced by Miko Hughes). "Sly" has spent his entire young life at Babyco, Kinder's vast underground research center, while Whit is in the care of the Bobbinses. Kinder plans to prove that her method of baby care is superior, and Sly and his fellow "geniuses" are carefully monitored as they sit around and discuss the human experience. But Sly escapes, gets switched with Whit, and the two conspire to bring down Kinder's empire, aided by the sure-fire mix of adult stupidity and infant resourcefulness.

Though the kids are cute, the movie is not. What is supposed to be a story championing infantile charm reduces the little actors to the role of ventriloquist's dummies, fitted with fakey, computer-animated mouths which spout clever things beyond their years. There are recycled pieces of film and soundtrack, slow- and fast-motion used to betray the audience, and, of course, the ever-present VIOLENCE. This film borrows heavily from the Home Alone series, but it doesn't even have the interesting adults: Turner and Lloyd are remarkably unremarkable; MacNicol and Cattrall turn the stomach.

Watching a 2-minute TV commercial of an infant dancing or saying something "grown-up" may be kind of cute. Watching 1½ hours of it is almost unbearable. ★½

The annexation stretches out past Food Lion, close to where the proposed bypass might be constructed, according to Mayor Asa McCain. He said the annexation project has been in the planning stages for over 10 years, since before he was the mayor. It will annex properties such as Denny's, Starlite Hotel, and Genus Centre, but not Green Acres, Team One, or Dr. Peggy Kaiser's office. McCain explained that in order to achieve annexation, the properties must at least form a continuous line along Rt. 219, although the line can cross the road back and forth. In addition to several businesses, the section also includes some private homes and some private undeveloped land.

Tom Doyle protested the move, although he cannot vote in the issue. Phil Davidson and David Moe spoke in favor of the annexation.

The mayor and town council asserted that while there has been apparent interest from Wal-Mart at the northernmost part of the section to be annexed, they have not been contacted in any way from that company. They said they have not heard anything about the arrival of Wal-Mart except what they have read in The Republican.

If the mega-store does come to the site after the 45-day waiting period, the town will have the power to regulate a few aspects of the store, such as set-back from the highway, number of parking spots, and other cosmetic items. McCain said he hopes to meet with any developer that may be looking seriously into the site and introduce to him or her the recent developments in Oakland.

"I would want to show them our new town hall and Appalachian Crossroads building and perhaps encourage them to use similar designs," he said.

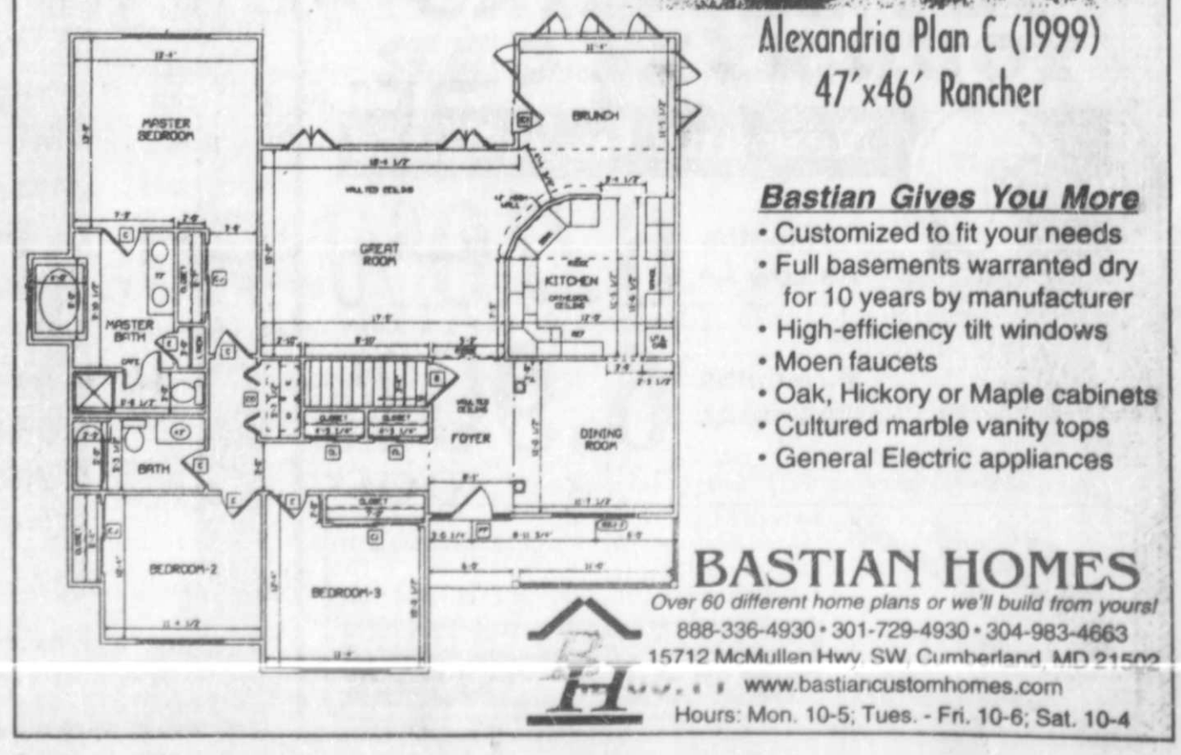
Police Arrest Oakland Woman

Oakland Police arrested a local resident Monday on multiple traffic violations. Police reported that at approximately 7 p.m. Molly McFarland, 49, Oakland, was observed in a white Plymouth traveling at a high rate of speed southbound on Third St. at Pennington St.

McFarland's vehicle was reportedly tracked by radar traveling 40 mph in a 25 mph zone. When the vehicle was stopped on Route 39, the officer said he noticed a smell of alcohol. A field sobriety test was administered and, reportedly, McFarland did not perform satisfactorily.

The officer placed McFarland under arrest on charges of driving while intoxicated, speeding, and negligent driving.



KIDS BOWLING FOR KIDS - The annual Bowl for Kids' Sake, sponsored by Big Brothers Big Sisters of Garrett County, will be held this Saturday, April 24, at Par-Matt Lanes near Oakland. The event is the primary annual fund-raiser of the BBBS organization which serves local youth between the ages of 6 and 16 who have only one parent by placing them with a "big brother" or "big sister" mentor. Bowlers are needed to participate in this Saturday's event. Teams consist of four bowlers and compete for a variety of age-based prizes. The "team" in the above photo includes, from left: Rachael Savopoulos, Kimi Stephens, Abby Gotsch, and Amber Thorne. Persons desiring to participate and/or seeking more information may telephone the BBBS office at 301-334-3591. Pledge sheets are also available at Par-Matt Lanes.

Jeff Meyers Is Par-Matt Lanes Bowler Of Year

Jeff Meyers, who gave up 16 points handicap to his younger brother Scott, captured the 1999 Par-Matt Bowler of the Year award last Wednesday by edging out his brother in the tenth frame of the final game, 217-210.

Sixteen top bowlers were named qualifiers for the final tournament by virtue of their performance throughout the winter season. The season is divided into eight four-week blocks, with each block yielding a high handicap set and high scratch set to determine the final 16 bowlers. Those qualifying besides the Meyers brothers were: Jeff Baker, Kevin Biser, Tim Chapman, Gary Friend, Jeff Friend, Tim Friend, J.R. Glotfelty, Charlie Harsh, Jay Meyers, Doug Ratliff, Hugh Schrier, Jeff Sheffield, Bob Sines, and Rocky Smith.

The bowlers were seeded based upon the top three handicap and top three scratch sets. Advancing to the roll-off were Scott Meyers with a 721; Bob Sines, 712; Tim Chapman, 708; Jeff Meyers, 684; Gary Friend, 629; and Hugh Schrier, 619.

The format for the roll-off was pro step ladder, whereby the sixth-place qualifier bowls against the fifth-place qualifier, the winner of which bowls against the fourth-place qualifier, and so on.

Gary Friend defeated Hugh Schrier in the first match, 202-178, and then Jeff Meyers edged Friend, 233-226 in the second match. Meyers' next victim was third-seeded Tim Chapman, whom he defeated, 225-171. Meyers then hit 11 strikes in his next game to stop Bob Sines, 286-206, and set up the final match against top-seeded Scott Meyers.

Bowlers entered the tournament through the Wednesday Civic League.

IT WAS A DISASTROUS DAY on the baseball diamond Tuesday for the Garrett Community College Lakers, who were blanked by visiting Allegany College of Maryland, 11-0 and 11-0, in games shortened to five innings because of the 10-run rule. Firing a pitch in the above photo is Laker hurler Chad Ord, while an Allegany base runner attempts to steal second. At right is GCC first baseman Drew Rainey. Wet weather has forced postponement of numerous Laker games and caused "rustiness" in their play, according to Coach Ed Wildesen. They will try to get back on track Friday when they play a twinbill at Anne Arundel CC. Photo by John McEwen.

"Rain-Ravaged" Lakers Crush Hagerstown, Crushed By AC

Rain has wreaked havoc with what was supposed to be an extremely busy schedule for the Garrett Community College baseball team, as the Lakers managed to get just two doubleheaders played this past week. The Lakers rolled over host Hagerstown Community College last Tuesday, 21-9 and 8-4, before being blown off the field by visiting Allegany College of Maryland on Tuesday of this week, as the Trojans blanked the Lakers in a pair of five-inning games, 11-0 and 11-0.

The Lakers, who are 15-13 on the season, are scheduled to play a twinbill at Dundalk CC this Friday, play two games at Essex CC on Saturday, host Baltimore City CC on Sunday in a doubleheader, slated to begin at 1 p.m., travel to Anne Arundel CC for a twinbill next Tuesday, and entertain Frederick CC for a pair next Thursday.

The Lakers wasted no time taking control of the first game against Hagerstown last week, as they scored four runs in the first inning and two in the second to take a 6-0 advantage. After the Hawks rallied for two runs in the third, GCC's Joe Eisner responded with a three-run homer in the fourth to make it 9-2.

After Hagerstown cut the lead to 9-6 with four runs in the bottom of the fourth, the Lakers added four of their own runs in the fifth when Matt DiAngelo stroked a grand slam. Garrett then put the game away with eight more runs in the seventh inning.

DiAngelo went 4-for-6 in the first game with five runs scored, while Eisner was 3-for-5 with a pair of singles to go with his homer. Darnell Bratton and Andy Blackwell also both connected three out of five times, while Gary Lee was 2-for-5 with a double and Drew Rainey contributed two singles.

Earning the win on the mound was Laker starter Mike Maravich, who got relief help from Brian Melnyk in the sixth. Tim Haech took the loss for the Hawks.

Chad Ord started on the mound for the Lakers in the second game, got into some trouble in the second inning, and Brian Tarajack took over and controlled the game the rest of the way. Tarajack pitched six complete innings, struck out 10, yielded no walks, and did not give up an earned run.

A two-run homer by Gary Lee highlighted a three-run first inning for the Lakers, who later trailed 4-3 after two innings. Garrett tied it up with a run in the third and took the lead for good with two runs in the fifth.

Bratton went 3-for-3 and scored four runs for the Lakers, while teammate Tom Mace was 2-for-3 in the Lakers' nine-hit effort.

The Hawks also finished with nine hits and were led by Dan Keister, who hit a homer and two singles.

Tarajack earned the win over Hagerstown starter Phil Helser.

The Lakers generated little, offensively and defensively, against Allegany on Tuesday, as they had a total of only six hits in the doubleheader and committed eight errors. They also gave up a total of 18 hits, including five Trojan home runs. Both games were called after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Only Matt DiAngelo and Gary Lee each had a single off Allegany's Craig Stabinsky in the first game for the Lakers, while Andy Parks ripped a two-run homer and Mark Hobbs rapped a three-run blast. Hobbs also had a single.

Dan Decola was the star for Allegany in the second game, as he ripped a grand slam and a two-run homer to drive home six of the nine runs scored by his team in the fourth and fifth innings. Rob Strawder also had a two-run blast in the fifth.

Brian Isett went the distance and allowed four Laker singles, with Bratton and Lee Pennington each getting two.

"Allegany played extremely well, but it was obvious that we hadn't been able to play for a week because of the weather," stated GCC coach Ed Wildesen. "In fact, we have played only nine games so far this month."

The sweep improved Allegany's record to 25-8.

Baseball Games Rescheduled For Huskies, Rams

Wet weather has forced postponement of varsity baseball games of both the Northern Huskies and Southern Rams for the past week. The two teams were to have faced each other last Friday in Oakland, but that contest has been rescheduled for next Thursday, April 29.

The Huskies are slated to host Westmar today and travel to Bishop Walsh next Wednesday.

The Rams will travel to Bishop Walsh today for a game that was postponed from April 9. They are scheduled to play at Mount Savage on Saturday and entertain Beall on Monday and Westmar next Wednesday.

Ram Jayvees Top Fort Hill, Still Unbeaten

The junior varsity baseball team of Southern High School upped its unbeaten streak to eight games on Saturday by sweeping a doubleheader against host Fort Hill, 8-5 and 6-3.

Justin DiSimone, who was the winning pitcher in the first game, aided his own cause by rapping a home run and a double. His solo shot came in the first inning. DiSimone went the distance on the mound, scattered 11 hits, and struck out a dozen.

Chris Remley ripped a solo homer and two singles, Steve Eiswert hit a double and a single, and Bryson Meyers had a pair of singles for the Rams.

Pacing the Sentinels' hitting effort were Matt Dicks, who hit a solo homer and a double, Chad Keller with two doubles and a single, Ryan Shope with a double and a single, and Josh Covalt and Mario Bascelli with two singles each.

Ricky Reams also put the ball over the fence for two runs in the second game for the Rams, while Eiswert added two singles. Brian Hauser went the distance for the win on the mound, struck out four, and walked one.

Shope had a double and Brandon Scarlett and Dicks each singled twice for the Sentinels, whose record was evened at 3-3.

The Rams, coached by Tom Bosley, had a game scheduled for Monday against Preston, but it was postponed because of weather conditions. They are scheduled to play a doubleheader at Meyersdale this Saturday and host Northern in a twinbill next Tuesday.

The girls' track and field team of Southern High School remained undefeated on the season by taking first place in a five-team meet Tuesday afternoon at Preston County High in Kingwood. The Rams amassed 117 points to defeat Morgantown High with 84, Preston with 75, University High of Morgantown with 54, and Trinity Christian with no points.

Meanwhile, the Southern boys were stopped for the first time this season, but still finished second in the five-team meet. Morgantown High recorded 117 points to take first place, the Rams were second with 75, Preston finished in third with 71, University was right behind with 67, and Trinity Christian failed to score any points.

Senior runner Amy Snyder was a triple winner for the Rams, as she won first place in the 200-meter dash (27.6 seconds), 300-meter hurdles (52.80), and 400-meter run (1:03.21). Jody Bowser won the 100-meter dash (13.40 seconds) and the 100-meter hurdles (16.49 seconds), while Toni Sullivan won the high jump (4'8") and Becca Gangler won the discus with a throw of 77 feet.

Earning second places for the Rams were Beth Sauder in the 800 run, Andi Bender in the high jump, and the 400, 3,200, and shuttle hurdle relay teams. Bowser, Bender, Jackson, and Emily Nemith ran the 400; Sauder, Angie Sincell, Katelyn McBee, and Erin Hoalcraft comprised the 3,200 team; and the shuttle hurdle team included Sullivan, Jenny Hickman, McBee, and Miriam Sincell.

Individuals earning third places for Southern were Angie Sincell in the 3,200 run, Sauder in the 1,600 run, and Sullivan in the 100 hurdles, along with the 800 relay team (Bender, Nemith, Jackson, and Bowser) and 1,600 relay team (Snyder, Shaffer, M. Sincell, and Sauder.

In the boys' meet, Mike Prohonic was the only individual winner for the Rams, as he won the 300 hurdles in 47.20 seconds. The 3,200 relay team of Eric Rexrode, Mike Paesani, Casey McBee, and Ted Wolf also won with a time of 8:55.

Placing second were Chad Lovett in the 100 dash, Prohonic in the 110 hurdles, Wolf in the 800 meter run, McBee in the 3,200 run, Josh Teets in the discus, and the shuttle hurdle relay team of Jonathan Price, Prohonic, Murphy, and Crozier.

Price earned a third place in the 110 hurdles, and the 400 relay team of Lovett, Steyer, Dolan, and Chapman also placed third.

The Rams will compete again this afternoon at home against cross-county rival Northern, will travel to Berkeley Springs this Saturday for a quad meet, and will vie next Tuesday (boys) and Wednesday (girls) in the Area Meet, to be hosted by Beall.

Paesani Named To Second Team All-State Squad

Mike Paesani, a 6-2 senior forward who led the Southern High School varsity basketball team to a 20-4 record, an Area championship, a 12-0 Western Maryland Interscholastic League title, and a berth in the Maryland 1A quarter-finals this past season, has been named a second-team All-State selection by the state's high school sports writers.

Paesani, who is noted for his strong inside play and leaping ability, finished the 1998-99 campaign with an average of just under 17 points, seven rebounds, and two steals per game for Coach Tom Bosley and the Rams. He hit 57 percent of his shots from the floor, making him one of the area's most efficient scorers, and he connected on 76 percent of this attempts at the foul line.

The only other western Maryland male player to receive second-team All-State honors was Fort Hill's Jamie Kline, who was named to the second-team 2A squad.

Rams' Ashley Liller Named 1st Team WMIL

Southern High School girls' varsity basketball player Ashley Liller, a freshman guard, was named to the All-WMIL first team this week. She was joined on the squad by Fort Hill's Emily Coyle, Westmar's Helene Duncan, and Allegany duo Tracey Little and Cassie Murray.

Liller posted a 12.6 scoring average for the season, taking fifth in the league's ranks, just behind Northern High School's Heather Nugent, who held down the fourth spot with a 13.9 average. Liller led the Rams in several categories: scoring, with 287 points; assists, with 81 for a 3.5 per game average; and steals, with 77 total for a 3.3 average.

"At this stage in her career, Ashley is a very dedicated young athlete," commented SHS Head Coach Don Stemple. "She works hard in practice and during the off-season, and is a good passer and very unselfish player. Ashley is one of the best freshmen I have ever coached. I hope I can say the same of her sophomore, junior, and senior years. If so, that will put her in a class with Jenny Hillen."

Nugent received second team All-WMIL honors, along with Husky teammate Heidi Frazee and Jessica Saturday of Southern. Nugent had led the WMIL far and away in three-point goals, sinking 17 as compared to the runner-up, Sweene of Mt. Savage, who tallied 7. Frazee's 12.4 per game average put her in sixth place in the league's scoring column. Saturday finished in eighth place in the league's scoring ranks at 11.7 points per game.

Rams 9-1 After Bosley Tosses No-Hitter Against Mt. Savage

Upcoming opponents of the Southern High School varsity softball team had better be well prepared, for the Rams took their stellar record to 9-1 in this week's action on the strength of Jennifer Bosley's no-hitter at Mt. Savage on Monday. Scheduled contests against Westmar, Tucker, and Flintstone were rained out.

Showing a poise beyond her freshman status, Bosley blanked the Indians through five innings as she struck out 14 batters, and she came within a single walk of hurling a perfect game. The lone run for the guests came in the final inning after the lone walk.

Southern's hitters pounded Savage's pitching staff into submission throughout the contest, aided by nine Indian fielding errors. The Rams scored four runs in each of the first two innings, five runs in third inning, and three runs in the fourth stanza before exploding for 12 runs in the final inning.

Amanda Reese belted a two-run home run, Jennifer Teagarden had an RBI triple and a pair of singles, Bosley supplied two RBI on two singles, and Nicole Kitzmiller whacked an RBI triple.

Savage's Laura Booth took the loss. Booth had been relieved in the fifth inning by Melanie Shaffer, who was in turn lifted when Crissy Cessna came to the mound in the fifth inning.

In a game first reported in last week's paper, but details of which were unavailable at that time, Southern defeated Preston at home by a score of 7-1 on Wednesday, April 14.

The Rams started off big by scoring six runs in the first inning of the contest and added another run in the fifth inning. Preston's lone score came in the seventh and final stanza.

Missy Simmons belted a double and a single, while Bosley doubled once.

Elsie Syruws tripled and singled to provide Preston's main production off Teagarden, who turned in a complete-game pitching performance in notching the win over Ellisa Winston.

The Rams are in the midst of a home stand, and are slated to host Flintstone today, Fort Hill tomorrow, Northern on Tuesday, and Allegany on Thursday.

Huskies Held Hitless By Hancock In Week's Rain-Shortened Slate

Northern High School's varsity baseball team dropped an 11-1 decision to visiting Hancock over the weekend that set its record back to 5-6. The game was the week's only action for the Huskies because of the soggy weather, as contests against Southern, Flintstone, Beall, and Westmar were canceled.

While Saturday's scene may have triggered recollections of a tall Don Drysdale on the part of some of the more mature fans in the stands, the Northern players on the field must have thought they were going up against an even taller Randy Johnson as 6-8 Hancock senior Derek Hoffman fired a no-hitter against the Huskies.

The huge Hancock hurler struck out 13 Huskies and allowed only a single run in the bottom of the first inning when Ryan Butler drew a two-out walk and scored on three wild pitches by Hoffman. The NHS score came on the heels of a four-run lead-off inning for the Panthers.

Northern's team physician must have breathed a sigh of relief after Hoffman began to settle down in the second inning and gain control of his pitches, but when that happened the Hancock righty began to take the air out of Northern's bats.

The visitors' lead was still at 4-1 when Hoffman belted a three-run homer in the fifth to put his team up by a 7-1 margin. The Panthers scored four more times in the sixth inning.

Doug Steiner had three singles and two RBI for Hancock, Jeff Rhodes punched out three singles, and Paul Norris, Doug Gaither, and Derek Keefer accounted for a pair of singles apiece. Hancock tallied 14 hits off starter Jeff Carr, who was tagged with the loss, and reliever Josh Hook, who came on in the fifth inning.

Northern squares off against Beall again today at home. The Huskies' schedule for the upcoming week includes a visit to Southern on Tuesday and Bishop Walsh on Wednesday.

Oakland Teams Fare Well In Youth Tourneys

The Oakland Service Club Basketball League hosted three weekend tournaments during the month of March, and Oakland teams racked up impressive wins for area hoopsters.

7TH, 8TH GRADE TOURNAMENT

The fifth annual Senior Division Tournament for 7th and 8th grade boys saw the Oakland A team capture three wins to earn the championship trophy against teams from Preston, Elk Garden, Union, and Thomas-Davis.

In the opening game, Oakland's B squad claimed the first victory of the tournament by defeating Elk Garden, 31-26. Oakland had a balanced attack offensively, with Brian Edwards scoring 7 and Adam Cooper, Bart Shaffer, and Coy Ware sharing 18 points.

Oakland's A team bested Preston's Junior High squad, 48-45, in a hard-fought contest. The Oakland squad held a slim two-point lead at halftime before pulling out the victory. Oakland's inside defense and scoring were led by Dennis Tressler with 15 points and Jonathon Sypolt with 12. Matt Stephens scored 13 points and played excellent perimeter defense along with A.J. Bender.

Oakland's B team played a tight contest in its second game against Union, but couldn't hold onto a victory, as Union won, 49-42. Brent Niner recorded 11 points for the locals, while Coy Ware scored 9. Helping out on the defensive end during this game was Zach Savage.

Oakland's A squad posted a second win by topping a team from the Thomas-Davis area, 63-55, in a semi-final game. Dennis Tressler pumped in 20 points, while Joe Davis had 15. Matt Stephens and Brandon Louden shared 16 points. A.J. Bender contributed timely passing and defense.

In the B team's consolation game loss to Thomas-Davis (59-34), Adam Miller poured in 17 points from the perimeter, followed by Brian Edwards with 8 points from the paint.

In the championship game for the senior division, Oakland A's inside duo of Sypolt (19 points) and Tressler (17 points) helped them dominate Union, 73-28. Stephens and Bender provided excellent perimeter defense and ball handling. Joe Davis chipped in with 15 points.

Union received trophies for placing second. Members of the Union team included Shane Bobo, Matt

5TH, 6TH GRADE TOURNAMENT

A second weekend of tournaments was held March 12-14, and the local 5th and 6th grade all-stars were crowned champions. Six area teams competed in the tournament: Oakland A and B teams, Ft. Ashby, Elk Garden, Keyser, and Union.

In the quarterfinal round, Oakland's A team posted a win against a strong Ft. Asbhy team, 45-42. Leading the Oakland team was the Corey combination of Corey Tressler with 15 points and Cory Bosley with 13. Aaron Louden played excellent inside defense and chipped in with 8 points. Contributing on the defensive end of the floor were Matthew Skidmore, Chad Everd, Darwin Bennett, Brad Reese, and Mathew Savage.

Oakland's B team fell to Elk Garden in an opening-round game, 41-28. The leading scorers for the squad were Logan Osekowski (9), and Jason Wakefield. Nick Gregg contributed aggressive team defense and rebounding.

In second-round action, the Oakland A team jumped out to a quick 16-8 lead in the first quarter and held off a scrappy Union team, 56-42. Oakland showed balanced scoring and defense, with Louden and Chad Everd scoring 13 points apiece. Matt Skidmore added 10. Cory Bosley and Corey Tressler provided the defensive leadership. Brad Reese provided excellent ball handling.

Oakland's B squad, made up mostly of 5th graders, saw its second defeat in the tourney, falling to a talented Ft. Ashby team, 46-22. Jason Wakefield (8) and Nick Gregg (6) led the scoring, with Athony Daniels and Evan Lantz providing defense and rebounding.

The championship game of the tournament pitted Oakland's A team against a quick line-up from Elk Garden. The Oakland squad jumped out to a 22-12 lead at the end of the first quarter and won handily, 62-37. Leading Oakland were Chad Everd inside and Matt Skidmore outside with 14 points each, while Darwin Bennett added 10. Again, Bosley and Reese provided excellent ball handling and defense on the perimeter, while Louden and Tressler dominated the boards.

GIRLS' TOURNAMENT

A final round of youth basketball games concluded March 20-21, as Oakland hosted a girls' tournament for area teams. Included were Oakland A and B squads, East Preston, Braddock, and Washington middle schools from Cumberland.

Oakland's B team fell, 76-30, to eventual tournament champion Braddock. Girls playing for Oakland's B squad included Amber Bernard, Ashlee Friend, Rachael Friend, Natalie Winter, Melissa Durst, Amanda King, Kendra McLaughlin, Nicole Reeves, and Sabrina Scheffel. Melissa Durst was the leading scorer for the Oakland team, with 10 points, followed by Scheffel's four buckets for 8 points.

Oakland's A team won a hard-fought contest against a talented East Preston team, 39-33. Leading the way for Oakland was Robbin Gregg with 19 points, followed by Justine Pagenhardt with 10. Becca and Melissa Flanagan led the team in rebounding and inside defense. Helping out defensively was Brittany Naylor.

BUCKWHEAT, PANCAKE DINNER

This coming Friday evening, April 23, from 5 to 7:30 p.m. the Bittinger 4-H Club will host a buckwheat and pancake dinner served with sausage. The all-you-can-eat dinner charge is adults, $4.50, 12 years and under, $2.50, and under 5 years, free. The buckwheat cakes are the real things, and the 4-H'ers enjoy the serving job. Claire and her buddies feel quite grown-up being able to do this chore.

4-H SAFETY SAFARI

On Sunday, April 25, from 3 to 5 p.m., we are inviting children and parents to attend a workshop with ideas, games, art, and discussions to learn skills to keep young people in our community safe. Relevant to age groups 9-12, 13-15, and 16-18, the workshop will be led by Elizabeth Biser.

CONCERT

Our songbirds from around here, including Claire Sussman, Blakely Glotfelty, Landon Southerly, and Brent Housley, lit the stage of Northern Middle School for the Spring Choral Concert on Monday evening.

BUS TRIP

Ruth DiPaolo went to Niagara Falls Sunday and Monday on a bus trip with some of her bowling friends. The weather was miserable, but the falls breathtaking.

HOSPITALIZED

Ralph Buckel was readmitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital on Friday morning. He is expected to be discharged this Tuesday.

The Rev. Oren Bender, pastor of Cherry Glade Mennonite Church, was hospitalized for a heart problem last week.

SPRING MEETING

Seven women from Emmanuel Lutheran Church attended their Spring Cluster Meeting at Grace Lutheran Church, Fairmont, W.Va., where former pastor David Rockwood now ministers. Attending from Emmanuel were Linda Buckel, Beulah Moon, Jennifer Hady, Ferne Beachy, Mary Simpson, Margaret Hershberger-Wagner, and Lottie Brenneman. Leota Baker from Zion also attended. The program was titled "Living God's Justice."

GROUND-BREAKING

A brief ceremony marking the ground breaking for Emmanuel Lutheran's new church was held Monday evening. A good crowd attended, in spite of the nasty weather.

MONTHLY GAME NIGHT

The monthly game night at Emmanuel's Educational Building on Friday evening featured a spirited duel of Pictionary between the men and women. Of course, the women prevailed.

PERSONALS

Max and Bea Buckel of Adelphi paid a weekend visit with family and friends in the area. They were weekend overnight guests of Blair Buckel.

Brent, Kelley, and Wyatt Beachy, Clarkston, Mich., were guests of Dave and Nancy Beachy. The Poholsky and Stanton families were Saturday evening hosts to their out-of-town cousins.

James Glotfelty was treated and sutured in Garrett County Memorial Hospital Emergency Room Friday evening for lacerations received when a heavy door fell on his hand.

Jeff, Sheli, and Ashlin Gray, Hanover, were weekend guests of William and Linda Oester at their newly purchased home in Salisbury, Pa. They were Sunday dinner guests of Jim and Donna Glotfelty, where other guests were Dwaine, Lisa, Adam, and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg; Jodi Platter, Grantsville; Julius and Karmen Carey, Frostburg; Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Tom, Cheryl, Taylor and Tim Glotfelty; and Ida Reckner.

MY COMMENTS

Here it was, another time to write my "Notes from Bittinger" and I had no news to report. Should I call half of Bittinger's residents and either get an answering service or else "No, we are not doing much right now"? No one wants to do anything in this bleak weather, the never-ending precipitation of snow mixed with sleet and maybe some hail, and the never-ending rain. The main thing going on is just life, with the endless dentist and doctor appointments. Lots of people are home with a cold or something dreadful. It is just plain miserable. But as you see above, I did have some cooperation to get some much needed news.

Now it is time to shift gears to my family's swimming team. Garrett County Manta Rays swim team started practice season two weeks ago. Lloyd Sussman has now joined the coaching squad.

The Sussman girls took a short trip to Cumberland Sunday afternoon to choose dresses for the July wedding of my former students, Nate Blatchley and Jennifer Greathouse. They certainly looked cute in their dress alike dresses. It was nice to see blooming shrubs and flowers in the Cumberland area. While we were there, Meredith visited her best friend, Kelsey Morrison, during her big brother Ben's birthday party at the YMCA, featuring ice skating. I heard Kelsey had a sore tailbone on Monday. Kelsey resisted all attempts by Lloyd to get her to learn swimming. Lloyd and Claire finally won out last week when they succeeded in getting her to join the Red Cross swim classes.

The current sport for the Bittinger boys is now baseball. Rain has prevented much playing. Greg Whittemore on the Northern Husky team has already had two rainouts. They played only one game in Cumberland, where they were victorious.

SCHOLARSHIPS GIVEN - The Grantsville American Legion Post # 214 recently awarded two scholarships, which Commander Jeff Green, left, and Judge Advocate Matthew Stieringer presented to Dana Braskey, left, and Allison Sines. Dana will attend Frostburg State University to study business and mass communications. Allison will attend Garrett Community College to study performing arts.

4-H Club News

NORTH GLADE
by Jessie Woods
Reporter

Old business discussed at the April 15 meeting of the North Glade 4-H Club included the recent 4-H Achievement Night and the skating trip to Divito Park, which occurred the following Sunday. The club extends its thanks to Susan Fitzwater for driving the bus to the park.

A demonstration by Mike McConnel presented members with information on how they could build a birdhouse.

Upcoming activities include a livestock meeting on Thursday, April 29, at 7 p.m. at the Extension Office. The 4-H Camp session at the Bittinger 4-H Center is scheduled to run June 27—July 1. The registration deadline is May 21.

The next North Glade 4-H meeting will be held on Thursday, May 20. Farm visits will take place beginning at home of Bobby Schmidt. The club extends get well wishes to Ellen Shillingburg, who is in the hospital recovering from a shoulder operation.

Correction Noted To Glades Pond Fishing Regs

A photo caption published in last week's issue of The Republican misstated the fishing regulations currently in place at Glades Park Pond in Oakland.

As of this year, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources has designated Glades Park Pond as a Youth and Blind Put-and-Take Area. This means that persons fishing at the pond must be either under 16 years old or blind. Town ordinance stipulates that children 12 and under must be accompanied by an adult. There are no bait, tackle, or minimum size restrictions in a Youth and Blind Put-and-Take Area, but a five-fish daily creel limit is in place for trout.

Oakland Mayor Asa McCain also noted that several ordinance violations have occurred at the park this spring. He reminded citizens that pets are prohibited from the park at all times, and that rollerblading is allowed only on the park path. The park's regulations are posted on its premises, and are also available at the Oakland City Hall.

New Arrivals

A son was born April 8 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to Michael and Mary Skidmore Hart, Terra Alta, W.Va.

Training Slated For Fire And Rescue Personnel

A training session for fire and emergency medical service (EMS) personnel, dealing with triage and incident command, is scheduled for Monday, April 26, beginning at 7 p.m. at Deep Creek fire hall in McHenry. The training is in preparation for the disaster drill to be held at the Garrett County Fairgrounds on May 1.

The class will introduce the new State Triage Tag System, presented by John Donohue, Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems Region III administrator and developer of the program. In addition, Incident Command System will be taught by Roger Simonds, retired deputy chief of the Anne Arundel Fire Department.

Continuing education credits will be provided. For more information, or to register for the class, persons may call the Region I EMS Office at 301-746-8636 or 301-895-5934.

Fresh Air Fund Officials Seek Host Families

The Fresh Air Fund, which provides inner-city children an opportunity to experience life outside city limits, is hoping to recruit more volunteer host families in this area who are willing to provide space in their homes to host one or more children from New York City.

Children on first-time visits are 6 to 12 years old and stay in volunteers' homes for two weeks, while re-invited youngsters may continue with the program through age 18. Families are allowed to specify the age range and gender of the Fresh Air child, and there are no financial requirements.

"It has been a wonderful experience for our family, especially our children," stated one Fresh Air host. "We have gained a different perspective on the world and come to appreciate all that we have."

More than 1.6 million children have participated in the Fresh Air Fund since 1877. Families interested in learning more about the program may telephone the fund, toll-free, at 1-800-367-0003.

GOP Club To Hear Edwards, Hafer

The Northern Republican Women's Club will meet Tuesday, April 27, at Hill Top Inn, and slated to be guest speakers will be Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer. All members and guests are invited to attend. Twila Mae Fike, Lois Rawe, and Sheila Baker are responsible for the fruit basket fund-raiser.

Pre-Paid Legal Svcs. Arrives In Garrett County

Pre-Paid Legal Services, a company that recently entered Garrett County, is designed with the goal in mind of providing citizens with professional assistance in helping make the law work for them. Several sellers for Pre-Paid Legal Services are currently operating in Garrett County. Individuals, businesses, and organizations interested in learning more about the company's product may wish to attend a weekly business meeting of Pre-Paid Legal Services that is hosted by the Point View Inn, McHenry, each Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Pre-Paid Legal Services was founded in 1972 by Harland Stonecipher after the Ada, Okla., man was hospitalized and subsequently sued after an automobile accident. After paying a $3,600 legal bill for representation in a law-suit that could have bankrupted him, the young Stonecipher decided that average Americans needed affordable legal protection 24 hours a day, and Pre-Paid Legal Services came into being.

Pre-Paid Legal Services, a company that recently entered Garrett County, is designed with the goal in mind of providing citizens with professional assistance in helping make the law work for them. It was founded in 1972 by Harland Stonecipher after the Ada, Okla., man was hospitalized and subsequently sued after an automobile accident. After paying a $3,600 legal bill for representation in a lawsuit that could have bankrupted him, the young Stonecipher decided that average Americans needed affordable legal protection 24 hours a day, and Pre-Paid Legal Services came into being.

Described in the February issue of Equities magazine as a "type of legal HMO with all the advantages and none of the disadvantages," Pre-Paid Legal Services has grown to become the "largest and first publicly held company that provides legal services to individuals and groups."

For less than $20 a month "a member receives unlimited telephone consultations with an attorney, legal document review, will preparation, help with IRS audits, moving traffic violations, and basic legal defense as well as a 25 percent discount on legal services not covered by the plan," such as divorce, child custody, and bankruptcy cases.

"Serving up this legal advice are some 37 provider law firms nationwide in 36 states," according to the Equities article, titled "Making America Fairer."

to live here, but lately Garrett County is changing, and it's not for the better. We have been putting up gas stations and fast food restaurants left and right and for what? So that more people can die of high cholesterol? Now we want to cut down a beautiful patch of woods just to put in a Wal-Mart that is unnecessary. The Wal-Mart isn't helping us, it's only taking away from us. The town as a whole isn't going to make more money, the money will go to some other place.

All the Wal-Mart is going to do is take more of the little space we do have, put town businesses like Gregg's Pharmacy, Proudfoot's, and Englander's out of business, cause more traffic, cause more pollution, and turn this beautiful, friendly town into a cold city. All of the effects of the Wal-Mart that I can think of are negative.

Sure, more people will have jobs, but the jobs they have will be with unreasonable hours and low pay. It's not right that the businesses that have cared for us and gave us close, personal service with a smile, have to be shut down. We don't need a Wal-Mart.

There are better solutions to our problems. Walmart isn't a solution, it's a cover up so that we won't have to take the time to think things through and face our problems with a solution to benefit us all. The solution can be found, folks. So before we make this decision, take a good, long look around you and ask yourself the question "Is it worth it?"

automation system is engaged and persons can use their home computers to access the electronic catalog and request material to be located at their nearest branch.

The automation of the library system is also a budgeted request, although the capital costs of this process will be covered by state grant money and previously obtained county funds. However, the director would also like to hire a highly competent computer technician to help with the change-over and keep the staff on top of the on-going system operation. This position would be partly paid by the state. Makosky also noted that the computers available in the library for patron use are in need of upgrades and/or replacement at a cost of about $1,900.

New books are needed at the library at a cost of approximately $14,600, she said. This request follows an extensive process by the staff of examining every book in the county-wide collection and withdrawing those that are out-of-date or in poor condition. She said the system must now begin the replacement process using funds from the recent book sale, donations from the public, and local public budget funds.

Finally, Makosky said the staff needs to begin adding an electronic data base for public use, at an initial cost of about $1,050. She also asked for $15,662 for a "one time catch-up" and another $2,000 to begin work on the lot beside the Oakland library, which has been donated to the system. Finally, she made a pitch for the architect and engineering fees to construct a 4,000 square foot library in Grantsville. She said the construction funds will be requested in the FY 2001 budget.

The board members and Friends of the Library representatives added to Makosky's presentation chiefly by praising her, stating that the county has been "unbelievably lucky" in obtaining her as the library director.

"The library has stood still for a long, long time," said board member Madeleine Collins. "We are so lucky to now have Martha, with her tremendous expertise and energy."

Cosette Harman agreed, and noted that this year's membership campaign has resulted in $7,000, up from last year's $3,000.

ment. After a slow start, the squad increased its point totals and finished the game with 28 points. The team had balanced scoring with Kendra McLaughlin tipping in 8, Sabrina Scheffel and Melissa Durst both adding 6, Natalie Winter, 4, Amanda King, 2, and Ashlee Friend, 2.

The championship game pitted Oakland's all-stars against a big and quick squad from Braddock Junior High. Oakland stayed right with the Braddock team for the first quarter, falling behind by just two points, 13-11, but the Cumberland team held the locals to just four points in the second quarter to take a 25-15 halftime lead. Oakland rebounded in the second half, but Braddock prevailed, 51-38. Robbin Gregg and Justine Pagenhardt led the way for Oakland, each scoring 8 points. Jessica Sharon followed with 7 points. Casey Taylor and Sabrina Scheffel provided strong team defense and aggressive play. The Flanagans made significant contributions on the boards against a taller Braddock squad.

Spruce Forest Sets Calendar Of Activities

Spruce Forest Artisan Village, located along Route 40 on the eastern end of Grantsville, has set its events calendar through next February. Admission to the village is free except where a charge for a special event is denoted in the schedule.

The artisan village's summer season schedule will run from May 1 to Oct. 30, Mondays through Saturdays, 10 a.m.—5 p.m. Ten artisans will display their skills in authentic log cabins, some of which date back to 1775.

A musicians' showcase event will begin at noon on Saturday, June 5, and again on Aug. 1 and Sept. 18. Local musicians will perform in the village's outdoor setting.

The annual Summer Festival and Quilt Show will be held from Thursday, July 8, through Saturday, July 10, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Over 75 artisans, musicians, and storytellers will participate, and other attractions will include an art show, a silent auction, a children's corner, and a variety of concessions. Admission will be $5 for all persons over age 12.

Cornucopia Day is set for Saturday, Sept. 11, from noon to 3 p.m. Designed to appeal to families with children, the event will include a children's corner, storytelling, games, a sing-a-long, prizes, and refreshments.

The Casselman Bridge Walk will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 18. The 2-mile fun walk will feature prizes, awards, refreshments, entertainment, history, and folklore, and each walk participant who raises more than $35 will receive a free T-shirt. A registration fee will be collected. A Musicians' Showcase program follows beginning at noon.

The same day, Sept. 18, a Passport to History event will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Participants can purchase tickets to join a travel expedition between at least 10 sites in western Maryland that are connected with the theme "Make the Journey, Travel the Old National Road—Our Link to the West."

The "My Heart's in the Arts" race is set for Saturday, Sept. 25, beginning at 9 a.m. A 10K run and a 5K walk and run will be held, and handcrafted doorprizes and other awards will be distributed. Participants must register by the previous Saturday, Sept. 18.

The Spruce Forest artisan schedule goes onto its off-season schedule from Nov. 1 through April 30, 2000. Five artisans will be working in the village and will be available by chance or appointment.

Christmas in the Village will be observed on Friday, Dec. 3, from 4 to 9 p.m., and Saturday, Dec. 4, from noon to 9 p.m. Nine artisans will be working in the village. Holiday music and children's activities will be available throughout the weekend, and entertainment and a live nativity will be featured each evening as well. The admission charge is $1 for persons over 12.

The Cherries and Chill Festival is scheduled for Feb. 11-12, from noon to 5 p.m. both days. The event will feature festivities and activities with a cherry theme. A children's cherry hunt, a judging of cherry desserts, a coloring contest, storytelling, and activities emphasizing the history of the National Road will all be part of the festivities. An entry fee will be charged.

Spruce Forest Village, a nonprofit organization established in 1989, was founded on the principle of providing a noncommercial venue for working artisans. "The open studios and low-key approach to sales are a year-round attraction here in the mountains of northern Garrett County," said Trish Morgan, the village's administrator. "We welcome tens of thousands of folks from all over the country and abroad."

Spruce Forest and its activities are sponsored in part by the Maryland State and Garrett County arts councils. For further information interested persons can call Morgan at 301-895-3332 or e-mail her at tmorgan@spruceforest.com.

"By Hook or by Crook"

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me." Psalm 23:4.

The psalmist David knew of the value of the shepherd. The life of the shepherd belonged to his sheep. If they wandered off blindly, his eyes were always open. If they lost their footing and stumbled on rocky ground, he rescued them with the crook of his staff. He cared for the sheep and the lambs. One way or the other, he saw to it that his flock was safe. The shepherd knew they depended upon his knowledge and skill.

Truly, the Lord is our Shepherd, for He knows we are not aware of the pitfalls and the rocky paths that we may blindly wander onto each day. We need only have the faith of the lowly sheep and God will give us peace of mind.

Become one of God's fold as you worship with His flock at your local church or synagogue. He will "watch over" you.

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN IS STILL YOUR BEST FRIEND

Although we rarely hear about the physician that follows the same old ways of daily house rounds, there are still some of them left. In some remote areas it is the only way for a doctor to bring health care to a community.

Today's modern physician serves in a very specialized but much more efficient manner. He knows that if it is possible for someone who is sick to get to the office, he is better equipped to help them. With the facilities available he is able to more quickly diagnose and treat his patients. Should the service of a specialist be required, he will suggest one.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

FREE INDEED!
April 25, 1999

Background Scripture:
John 8:12-59
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 51:1-9

A little boy who passed his neighbor on the sidewalk. "I'm running away from home!" a little boy told his neighbor as he sped off down the block. Minutes later the neighbor saw him coming up the from the opposite direction. As he passed the neighbor, he said again, "I'm running away from home!" Soon the boy was seen to be approaching again and this time the neighbor stopped him, "If you're running away from home, why do you continue to run around the block." Looking at the neighbor in disbelief, the boy explained, "Cause I'm not allowed to cross the street!"

I've learned over the years: no freedom is absolute and when we have reached what we think is freedom, we may have simply attained a state of bondage on a less obvious level. We are a lot like that little boy, forever running away from home, but getting nowhere because we aren't allowed to cross the street.

In John 8 we find the critics of Jesus confidently discussing 'truth' and 'freedom' without really knowing what it is like to personally know either of them. Like the old farmer once explained, "You can't describe a place you ain't never been to." So often, that is what is happening when we talk confidently about 'truth' and 'freedom.'

WALKING IN DARKNESS

It all begins when Jesus proclaims, "I am the light of the world; he who follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life" (8:12). Immediately the Pharisees pounce on him, "You are bearing witness to yourself; your testimony is not true." They contest what Jesus is saying because they reject him, but Jesus tells them that what he says is true because it comes, not from him, but God. Surely, if they knew God, they would recognize what Jesus is saying as true.

Of course, that's the hard part, isn't it? How can we be sure we know God: "If you knew me," says Jesus, "you would know my Father also" (8:19). This is what Jesus meant when he said that he is the light of the world. He illuminates the darkness that surrounds the nature of God. When we know what Jesus is about, we also know what God is like. All that I think that I know about God is what I have seen in the life and words of Jesus, enough for me to live hopefully and faithfully.

This light gives me the only possible capacity for true freedom. As Jesus tells his followers: "If you continue in my word, you are truly my disciples, and you will know the truth, and the truth will make you free" (8:21,22). Their reply is indignant: "We are descendants of Abraham. and have never been in bondage to anyone. How is it that you say, 'You will be made free?'" (8:33).

WHO ME, IN BONDAGE?

I can hear us saying: "I'm a descendant of John Wesley, how can you say I'm in bondage?" "I'm a disciple of John Calvin, what do you mean I'm not free?" "I'm a Roman Catholic, how can you make me more free?" Actually, 'truth' and 'freedom' are not so much in what we say we believe, but in what we do about it. "If you were Abraham's children, you would do what Abraham did, but now you seek to kill me, a man who has told you the truth..." (8:39,40). If the life doesn't match the words, the words are a lie.

As I write these words the whole world waits to see whether we will once again go to war with Saddam Hussein. The other day my wife, Valere, told an audience that, as Christians, we ought to pray for Saddam and the people were shocked. Pray for such a man as he? But isn't that what Christ has taught us to do with our enemies? If we are true disciples of Jesus, how can we curse those who are our enemies? Is it because we believe that God is incapable of changing the heart of this tyrant?

"So if the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed." Only in Christ can we know real freedom—from hate and prejudice, from judging when we ought to be blessing, from despair when God offers us hope. Only when Christ has freed us from that kind of bondage can we be free indeed!

COVER STORY

Durango has sweetest of charms: innocence

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

Matt Keeslar

The friendly, teasing humor starts with the title Durango.

The Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation airing Sunday, April 25, on CBS isn't a dusty Western as its name implies, but an adaptation of novelist John B. Keane's tale of a wee cattle drive across the Irish countryside. Keane, considered an Irish national treasure, wrote Durango about an adventure he undertook decades ago with friends.

In addition to Keane's Irish humor, Durango offers a disarmingly sweet story. It has an idealistic hero, a delightful romance, snarling bullies and sniveling cowards, false leprechauns, a few good women, and the kind of daring that might be bravery or foolishness; only time will tell. And then there's the green Irish countryside where the film was shot.

Matt Keeslar (Thanks of a Grateful Nation) plays Mark Doran, the young visionary brash enough to ask his neighbors to let him drive their cattle to another market where they'll command a higher price, but not quite courageous enough to ask Fergus Mullaney (Patrick Bergin, Sleeping With the Enemy) for his daughter's hand in marriage.

Keeslar calls the movie "a terrific, old-fashioned film based on a terrific, old-fashioned book." In today's electronic, intellectual world, he says, "it's rare that anybody builds a car or makes a shoe by themselves. ... Today, Mark would just hire a truck and load all the cattle up and go. It wouldn't be the same type of journey."

During five weeks of filming, Keeslar says he and his fellow cast members had their chance to drive cattle for real, since there were about 75 head in the herd and just four hired wranglers.

"When time was short, we all had to pitch in," he recalls, "including the director and the cinematographer and the grip supervisor. Everybody was out there waving at the cows, trying to get them in line."

Because the cows needed to be appropriate for the time period, Keeslar explains, they had to have horns, which are illegal in today's Ireland. "So (the producers) had to go to the west of Ireland to get these sort of inbred cows," he says, laughing. "They weren't the most domesticated of beasts."

Everything else about the production is thoroughly civilized, however, from the lush score by Mark McKenzie to the talent-filled supporting cast, headed by Oscar winner Brenda Fricker (My Left Foot) as Maeve, Mark's self-reliant aunt.

Nancy St. Alban offers a gentle touch as Mark's sweetheart, Annie, and Bergin brings plenty of bluster to the less-rewarding role of her father. Also in the cast are Tony Award winner George Hearn (Sunset Boulevard) as a practical Protestant rector and character actor Mark Lambert as Algie Clawhammer, a well-intentioned military deserter who receives aid and comfort from the cattle drivers.

Keeslar says the loyalty, honesty and bravery of Durango make for just the type of movie today's audience is seeking. "It's the type of movie that seldom gets made nowadays," he concludes. "In an increasingly complicated world, this story reminds us that some qualities are eternal."

TRIVIA

Peter Fonda made his film debut in 1968 as the romantic lead (opposite Sandra Dee) in the teen romance Tammy and the Doctor.

If CBS' Mike Wallace had been forced to observe a traditional retirement at age 65, he would have had to leave his post 16 years ago.

TRIVIA

A gaffer is the head electrician of a film crew. He or she operates the lights and works under the cinematographer or director of photography.

Besides being an actress, Lucy Liu (Ally McBeal) is an artist. A Venice, Calif., gallery exhibited her mixed-media photography in 1997.

IN FOCUS

Patty Duke returns to her famous dual role as identical cousins Patty and Cathy in The Patty Duke Show: Still Rockin' in Brooklyn Heights, airing Tuesday, April 27, on CBS.

The look-alikes are reunited when Cathy flies in from her native Scotland to surprise her cousin. The visit proves timely when Patty's archnemesis, Sue Ellen, tries to turn the girls' high school into a mall. The cousins take up the cause, enlisting their friends and family in a scheme to save the school.

Battlefield: Vietnam mainly for history buffs

Battlefield: Vietnam, a 12-hour PBS series premiering Friday, April 30 (check local listings), is so determined not to talk down to its audience that what emerges is dry, just-the-facts-ma'am history, presumably aimed directly at serious students of the era.

With Gavin MacFadyen's somnolent narration and David Galbraith's elegiac music, casual viewers won't exactly be on the edges of their seats.

Here is a quick overview of the six two-hour installments, for those reluctant to commit to the entire series:

•"Dien Bien Phu – The Legacy/The Undeclared War" (Friday) traces the roots of the war from the conflict between Vietnamese and French colonists.

•"Search and Destroy/Showdown on the Iron Triangle" (May 7) shows how shifting Viet Cong tactics frustrate U.S. attempts to wipe out guerrilla units.

•"Countdown to Tet/The Tet Offensive" (May 14) chronicles North Vietnam's launching of a major offensive that catches the Americans by surprise.

•"War on the DMZ/Siege at Khe Sahn" (May 21) examines the 77-day siege of a U.S. Marine base, the most violent single battle of the war.

•"Air War Vietnam/Rolling Thunder" (May 28) relates how U.S. military leaders counter North Vietnamese ground troop superiority with strikes from above.

•"Peace With Honor/The Fall of Saigon" (June 4) focuses on the anguished final days of the war, as U.S. forces prepare to withdraw, to the horror of their South Vietnamese allies.

A U.S. soldier makes his way through the jungle in this Vietnam War photo. The war is chronicled in Battlefield: Vietnam, starting Friday on PBS (check local listings).

Patrick Bauchau

Q: I am very impressed with Patrick Bauchau's work on The Pretender. What can you tell me about him? –Michael H., Charlotte, N.C.

A: Bauchau ("bo-SHO"), 60, was born in Brussels, Belgium, where his father, Flemish writer Henry Bauchau, was a member of the Belgian underground during World War II. His mother, Russian emigre Mary Kozyrev, ran a Swiss boarding school and a publishing house with her husband.

Educated at Oxford, Bauchau got his acting start in a 1967 film by French New Wave director Eric Rohmer. During a '70s sabbatical from acting, he created stuffed-animal pillows for surrealist Salvador Dali. His diverse credits since returning to acting in the '80s include both European art films and such mainstream movies as A View to a Kill and Clear and Present Danger. He and Pretender castmate Jon Gries (Broots) both appear in a new independent film called Twin Falls Idaho.

Bauchau and his wife, Mijanou, divide their time between homes in Los Angeles and Louveciennes, France. They have an adult daughter, Camille.

Fans can find much more information at the Website www.bauchau.com.

Q: While enjoying The Scarlet Pimpernel on A&E, my wife and I thought we noticed a striking resemblance between Richard E. Grant and English actor Hugh Grant. Are they, in fact, related? –Russ Whitwam, South Daytona, Fla.

A: No. The Pimpernel star – who hails from Mbabane, Swaziland, in Africa – was born Richard Grant Esterhuysen. Coincidentally, however, the two actors recently shared the title role in Doctor Who and the Curse of Fatal Death, a British miniseries spoof of the famous sci-fi series. No word yet on a U.S. premiere date, if any.

Q: I know Dennis Christopher did the voice of Jack, the serial killer on NBC's Profiler, so why did another actor play Jack when we finally saw him? –Jessica in Appleton, Wis.

A: By the time you see this, you'll know that the "Jack" you saw earlier wasn't the real deal, merely a puppet of the insidious killer.

As for Christopher, the boyish star of Breaking Away, let me just say this, Jessica: Do NOT miss the May 15 season finale!

Q: I used to be a big fan of Bert Convy, the host of Tattletales and other game shows. I remember hearing that he died several years ago, but I always wondered what happened. –Jill in Muscatine, Iowa.

A: Convy died of brain cancer on July 15, 1991. He was 58.

But he's not.

The Linsly School never left them. After 184 years, Linsly still concerns itself with what colleges and parents want, and most importantly, what children need. It promotes an environment where young men and women gain self confidence and develop character. Where a rigorous curriculum ensures the intellectual foundation, thinking skills and persistent curiosity necessary for lifelong learning. And where lectures, laboratories, computers, competitions, discussions and debates provide different ways for students to discover the world and their place in it.

But above all, Linsly still concerns itself with one basic mission: bringing young minds to life. That is the reason we're here.

Fairmont Hosts ELCA Women's Spring Assembly

Women of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, Monongahela Valley — Mountain Cluster of the West Va.-Western Maryland Synod, held their spring assembly on April 17 at Grace Lutheran Church in Fairmont, W.Va. Registration and a social hour began at 9 a.m., and greetings and a welcome were extended by Shirley Griffith, president of Grace Women of the ELCA.

The theme of the day was "Live God's Justice." Devotions were led by Margaret Maurer from St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Morgantown, W.Va. Mission reports were given by Norma Bowyer, who is a member of the synodical unit board.

Sheila Tennant, director of Soup Opera, a soup kitchen in Fairmont, was guest speaker. Having been established in 1983, Soup Opera is assisted by 350 volunteer workers in feeding the hungry. A school supply drive is held, and nearly 300 families receive this type of assistance. Shower and laundry service is offered. Local businesses assist with supplying gifts for Christmas. Aside from this, financial assistance is offered by United Way, FEMA, and churches and organizations in the area.

Lunch was served in Hann Hall and was prepared and served by the men of the church. Table favors were rose buds, assembled from Hershey's candy kisses. A name was drawn and Margaret Hershberger from Emmanuel Church, Bittinger, received a potted flower. Various persons received the candle on the table where they were sitting.

The business meeting was conducted by Jane Hazer, cluster coordinator, from the Holy Trinity, Elkins, W.Va., unit.

It was decided to donate $50 to Fairmont's Soup Opera and $100 to Shirley Griffith of Grace, Fairmont, to assist with funding toward her expenses of attending the triennial convention on July 7-8.

It was resolved that the district assembly next year will be held the second Saturday in April, instead of the third Saturday. An offer was made by the unit at St. Paul's, Morgantown, W.Va., to be the host for next year.

It was announced that there are 45 active women's groups in the synod.

Marilyn Kreitzinger, president of the synodical unit, spoke briefly concerning meetings she had attended and gave announcements relevant to the triennial convention, synodical unit convention, and the fall retreat.

Closing worship was led by the host pastor, the Rev. David Rockwood, who presented a sermon and administered holy communion. He was assisted by Judy Rockwood and Shirley Griffith.

A total attendance of 41 was reported. Aside from Grace, Fairmont, other congregations represented were: St. Paul's, Morgantown, St. Mark's, Clarksburg, Holy Trinity, Elkins, and St. Johanne's, New Milton, all in West Virginia. Churches representing the Maryland section of the district were: St. John's, Red House, Emmanuel, Bittinger, and Zion, Jennings.

Personal hygiene items were donated by the units attending for use at Hope Inc., a center for abused persons.

Attending from the Bittinger Parish were: Mary Simpson, Beulah Moon, Ferne Beachy, Linda Buckel, Margaret Hershberger, Lottie Brenneman, Jenny Hady, and Leota Baker.

Q. Among my childhood possessions is a hard plastic, hollow, unmarked black cat. We used to fill it with lollipops for Halloween. It is 3 1/2 inches tall and in very good condition. It can't be more than 45 years old. Is it worth more than a couple of dollars?

A. Your cat dates from the 1950s. It was made from injection-molded polystyrene, a shiny, lightweight, durable plastic introduced in 1937.

Your cat is probably one of many molded plastic Halloween toys and novelties made by Rosbro Plastics of Providence, R.I. Rosbro purchased molds from Tico Toys of Pawtucket, R.I.

A black cat candy dish such as yours sells for about $45. Larger, rarer plastic toys from the same era sell for more.

Q. My children gave me a hair receiver on Mother's Day to add to my collection. It is marked "Trade (drawing of unicorn facing left) Mark/ Wedgwood & Co. Ltd./ Made in England." I cannot find the exact mark in either of the Kovels' pottery marks books.

A. Wedgwood & Co., founded by Enoch Wedgwood in Tunstall, Staffordshire, England, in 1860, is not the same company as Josiah Wedgwood's famous pottery firm, founded 100 years earlier. (Today, however, both companies are part of the Wedgwood Group.)

The unicorn mark belonged to Enoch's company, which used a banner under the mark until about 1908. The words "Made in England" were added to the mark at about the same time. Your hair receiver dates from the early years of this century. Hair receivers were small jars women used to save their hair to be made into rats or falls, adding fullness to a hairdo. They went out of fashion after World War I.

Home Tips

PICK IT OFF – I have always enjoyed Home Tips whenever I run across them. one of my favorite tricks is using an ice pick to remove labels from bottles and cans for recycling. It also helps in saving recipes, UPC symbols for rebates, offers, etc. Rita B., Lewisburg, Tenn.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ice picks can be dangerous since they can slip off the can or bottle and into your hand. If you choose to use this method, please do so with extreme caution. The best way to remove such labels is by soaking in hot water. You can also purchase a commercial liquid which does the job quite nicely and is inexpensive to boot. Check out your local supermarket in the cleaning agents aisle.

MORE ON NO WASTE – For the woman who wrote in on NO WASTE for hand lotion by emptying lotion bottles into another one with a funnel: Well, when my lotion doesn't come out of the pump anymore, I just cut 3/4 of the bottle off and use the lotion that way. I just make a cover from a small piece of foil and put it on top (to keep the lotion from getting hard). It sure beats emptying the bottles and saves time. From a Gal in Minnesota

RECIPE KEEPER – Have you ever wondered what to do with those recipes you cut out of magazines, newspapers, etc.? I bought a large photo album with magnetic pages and placed the recipes in it. It keeps them organized and when you want to use a recipe, simply remove the page from the book. It also protects your recipes from getting crumbled or dirty – simply wipe the page clean! DR. JOHN SARNO: SURPRISING CURE FOR BACK PAINS

Dr. John Sarno specializes in treating an ordinary affliction, one that an estimated 80% of Americans suffer from – back pain. But Sarno's treatment approach is anything but ordinary. His diagnosis for most sufferers, detailed in May's Biography magazine, is one he invented: Tension Myositis Syndrome (TMS). He believes that back pain and its cousins, shoulder, neck and limb pain are almost always mind-body disorders, the result of repressed unconscious anxiety or rage leading to physical tension and causing decreased blood flow to tissues. The consequence? Physical pain.

Sarno offers no hands-on therapy, medicines, herbal concoctions, exercise regimens or special chairs. He disdains both conventional and alternative treatments, from surgery and pain killers to chiropractic and acupuncture. Instead, he simply talks to his patients and helps them realize their pain is stress-induced. The cure comes for 85-90 percent of patients in a matter of weeks or months. No primal screaming or weeping is necessary, nor is re-experiencing the rage or even identifying the source of it. Merely acknowledging that there is nothing physically wrong and that anger and anxiety are the pain's sole causes are the keys. Only the remaining 10-15 percent need to delve deeper with the help of psychotherapy. Sarno's follow-up surveys indicate that nearly 100 percent of his patients eventually get better.

Though he's a miracle worker to the approximately 11,000 patients who've seen him in the last 25 years (including Howard Stern and other celebrities), the clinical professor at NYU School of Medicine and attending physician at Rusk Institute (a leading rehabilitative medicine center) is considered a heretic by his peers. He finds the lack of professional acceptance infuriating and feels he is ahead of his time. For that reason, Sarno is writing an academic book to leave for posterity. As he says, "They cannot persist in their ignorance indefinitely."

Homeowners Urged To Check For Licensure

As the summer approaches, many homeowners are having work done on their homes. Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation (DLLR) Secretary John P. O'Connor reminds homeowners to be cautious in selecting contractors for home improvements for the spring and preparations for summertime.

"Often homeowners are anxious to repair damage from the winter weather and may secure services of contractors who are not licensed to do such work," said O'Connor. "We advise Marylanders to use only home improvement contractors who are licensed to practice in the state and avoid the problems that plague consumers who fall victim to unlicensed contractors."

The Maryland Home Improvement Commission (MHIC), a program of DLLR, works to assist homeowners in safeguarding their consumer rights, and warns that only homeowners who use licensed contractors will be protected by laws administered by MHIC.

There is a Home Improvement Guaranty Fund which can compensate homeowners for monetary losses caused by poor workmanship or failure to perform work specified in their contracts. An individual homeowner can recover up to $10,000 from the fund, only if the contractor is licensed. Not only can consumers access the information and services of the MHIC by telephone, the public may also check a contractor's license status on DLLR's homepage via the Internet at www.dllr.state.md.us/occprof/homeim.html.

MHIC works also to assist homeowners in safeguarding their consumer rights, and has established the following guidelines for consumers:

1. Make sure that the contractor is currently licensed in the state by calling the MHIC toll free at 1-888-218-5925, or access the MHIC web site at www.dllr.state.md.us/occprof/homeim.html.

2. Ask about the contractor's complaint record with the MHIC.

3. To compare proposals, obtain estimates from several contractors.

4. Request references from the prospective contractor — and check them.

5. Always get a written contract and pay no money before the contract is signed.

6. At the time the contract is signed, pay no more than one-third of the contract price as a down payment.

7. Certain types of home improvements require building permits from local government. If a permit is required, have the contractor present the permit before the work begins.

Homeowners are advised to use only licensed contractors. It is illegal for any contractor to offer or to perform home improvements without a license. Issues and problems that can't be resolved between the homeowner and the contractor should be brought to the attention of the MHIC immediately. The MHIC investigates more than 3,000 complaints each year, and assists hundreds of Maryland homeowners who call the offices each week. Consumers are reminded to deal only with licensed contractors in order to fully utilize the maximum protection provided by the state.

For information about the MHIC and the home improvement industry in Maryland, persons may contact the MHIC at 410-230-6309.

ELKS SUPPORT JWCC - Oakland Elks Lodge #2481 recently presented a check for $1,157 to the Junior Woman's Civic Club, which was the club's share of the proceeds from a Big Bucks Bingo, co-sponsored by both organizations. Accepting the check for the club from Tom Frawley, public relations chairperson, was Beverly Barb, spring Bingo co-chairperson and JWCC projects chairperson, pictured above. On behalf of the JWCC, Barb extended her appreciation to the Elks members for their continued support of the club and their "generous assistance" with one of the JWCC's major fund-raising projects.

Jennings ELCA Women Convene

Women of the ELCA, Zion Lutheran Church, Jennings, held their monthly meeting on April 16.

The study series "Secure in the Promise" is based on the Revelation to John. The session "Persevere in the Promise" was led by Leota Baker, and explored the main issues and themes of Revelation, John's first vision of Christ, and the messages to four of the seven churches.

Devotions closed with prayer and the hymn "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling."

Judy Stanton presided over the business meeting. Since meetings of January through March were canceled, a report of activities and offerings for those months was read. During those months, baby quilts were sent to the Rocky Boy Indian Reservation in Montana, invalid gowns were sent to the Lutheran Home in Kane, Pa., and chair pads and lap robes went to the Pendleton Nursing Home in West Virginia.

Announcement was made of the spring cluster meeting, scheduled to be held April 17 at Grace Lutheran Church in Fairmont, W.Va. A quarterly offering was sent to the American Bible Society for the Bible-A-Month ministry.

A package of 15 invalid gowns, made from men's shirts, was sent to the Lutheran Home in April.

Panelcraft Building Systems

The time to be concerned about how to keep from using so much heating fuel is when you build. Use Panelcraft's Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs).

SIP structures are known for their structural integrity. Nature's storms, earthquakes, tornados, etc., just need a little greater force to do the same amount of damage to SIP structures versus conventional.

Faster - Stronger - Warmer

SIPs consist of Polystyrene laminated between two pieces of structure board, thus creating a very rigid, super insulating panel which is used for Walls, Roofs, Ceilings and Floors, virtually any aspect of your project!

A spring revival has been set for Sunday, May 2, through Friday, May 7, at 7 p.m. nightly at the Otterbein United Methodist Church in Swanton. The revival will be led by the Rev. Parker Hinzman of Winchester, who currently serves in Berryville, Va.

Hinzman, a former district superintendent in the United Methodist Conference in W.Va., has ministered in several churches in W.Va. and Garrett County.

The public is invited to the revival services, which will feature special music each evening.

Chamber Needs Volunteers To Lend A Hand

Because of the quickly approaching busy summer season, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce staff is extremely busy distributing promotional materials, according to Diane Wolfe of the chamber staff. Volunteers are needed to help with mailings for the McHenry Highland Festival, the new Summer Splash event on Father's Day Weekend, and the Autumn Glory Festival. "With increasing numbers of visitors coming to our new center, volunteer help is also sought to aid our guests in finding what they need," Wolfe said.

"If you'd like to be a part of these exciting chamber activities and have the satisfaction of helping our local economy, we'd very much like to hear from you," she added. Office and Visitors Center hours are currently 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week. "We'd be delighted to work with anyone who may have even a few hours available," Wolfe said.

To learn more about this opportunity, persons may contact Dotty Waligorski at 301-387-4386.

Spring Bazaar To Help Home Meal Program

A spring bazaar at the Grantsville Senior Center will offer a wide range of items for sale and a spaghetti dinner. The event will benefit the Community Action Area Agency on Aging's home-delivered meals program for frail elderly senior citizens.

The bazaar, scheduled for Thursday, April 29, will run from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Crafts, baked goods, white elephant items, and ceramics will be displayed for sale.

Dinner will include spaghetti with meat sauce, tossed salad, garlic bread, strawberry shortcake, coffee, or tea, and will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Carry-out meals will also be available.

The AAA delivers meals to seniors in all parts of the county. However, there are more people in need of this service than current funding provides. "We are not able to accommodate all the frail home-bound elderly who are in need of a home delivered meal at this time," explained Ronnie Padmos of the AAA.

This spring bazaar and dinner provides an opportunity for people in the community to become involved and help support this program for the elderly, Padmos concluded.

Tickets are available at the Grantsville Senior Center and the Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland. Persons may also call 301-334-9431, ext. 137, for more information.

AURORA/EGLON

Sara Lewis, and leaders Linda Snyder and Linda Lewis. Melinda Teets and Maria Harsh reported attending the county livestock association meeting and some of the problems encountered there. Older Members Conference this year celebrates its 55th year in existence, and organizations would like to have 55 members from the county in attendance.

Linda Martin, Aurora Elementary teacher, asked for volunteers to help with a planned butterfly garden at the school. Leslie Strawser volunteered. The music committee led "West Virginia Boys and Girls" and will make further effort to teach it to newer members. Linda Lewis, organizational leader, announced that the Wildlife and Tractor Driving competitions have been canceled. The Horticulture, Rocket and Space, Livestock, and Homesite judging competition will be July 15 at Morgantown. On June 12, Field Day will be held at Preston County 4-H Camp.

Craig Rembold told of his self-determined outdoor cooking project. Chris Mullenax used tractor safety as the topic for his talk, while Maria Harsh told about wildlife judging. "Amish Weddings, How They Differ," was the topic Bridgette Strawser presented.

Josh Mullenax demonstrated what magnets will or won't attract. What to take to a pig show was shown by Tracy Teets. Ashley Bachtel showed how to take good pictures. How to arrange furniture was demonstrated by Sara Lewis, using graph paper and cut-outs for each to use. Grant Harsh showed the signs of spring in "How to Tell Spring Is Here."

On May 10 the club will meet at the Farmers Wildlife Park, Horse Shoe Run, at 6:30 p.m., to clean the park. Members of the conservation committee will be providing the devotions and a program.

Participating in County 4-H Day were Maria Harsh, Josh Mullenax, and Bridgette Strawser. This was held April 16 at Kingwood.

PIONEER 4-H

A regular meeting was held April 11 at the home of Stacy Fint, leader, by members of the Aurora Pioneer 4-H Club. Marissa Bachtel led the American pledge, with Jenna Sisler leading the 4-H pledge. Devotions were led by Kaylen Fike reading "Footprints in the Sand," Quotable Quotes" read by Jessica Callahan, Scott Fields read "The Saddest Thing I Ever Did See," and Tracy Fields, "One Inch Tall."

The club results from the county poster and photo contests were reported with Kendra Durst, Kaylen Fike, and Jessica Callahan each receiving blue ribbons and their exhibits entered in state judging. Eric Durst and Tracy Fields each received red ribbons on their entries, and Brittany Stemple was awarded a white ribbon.

Scott Fields reported on the club's bowling party and Tracy Fields on State Dance Camp at Jackson's Mill.

The club decided to donate $25 to the Preston County 4-H Foundation and $20 to the IFYE program. Those planning to participate in the April 16 Preston County 4-H Day were Kendra Durst, Becca Fint, Kaylen Fike and Neil Mersing, with the former two unable to make it.

Becca Fint had a talk, "I Am Not a Recycler," and Eric Durst, one on "Lawn Mower Safety." The singing of "West Virginia Boys and Girls" concluded the meeting, and recreation, playing "The Name Game," followed.

Here are the warning signs of cervical cancer:

Your body gives no early warning signs that you are developing cervical cancer. And once you start feeling bad enough to go to a doctor, it could be too late. That's why it's so important for all women, especially those over 40, to continue getting a Pap smear each and every year. If you are 40 or older, call your local health department to see if you qualify for a free Pap smear. And stop cervical cancer before it ever starts.

Ask for a Pap smear every year.
It's the only way to know.

Teacher Scholarships Will Be Available By 1999-00 School Year

College seniors and graduate students who are planning careers in teaching will be eligible for scholarships of up to $3,000 during the 1999-2000 academic year under the new Maryland Teacher Scholarship. The grants can be used to pay tuition and mandatory fees.

Proposed by Governor Parris N. Glendening and approved by the General Assembly this year, the scholarship offers an incentive for Marylanders to become school teachers. Recipients must agree to teach in a Maryland public school for one year for each year they receive the grant.

Patricia S. Florestano, the Maryland Secretary of higher education, said, "This is a crucial first step in addressing the teacher shortage that will affect Maryland and the rest of the United States during the next decade. The governor's initiative will help us get new teachers in the classroom quickly."

In the first year of the program, the budget approved by the legislature earmarks $1.5 million for Maryland Teacher grants to college students who will be seniors or graduate students during the 1999-2000 academic year. The high school graduating class of 2000 and all college students will be eligible in 2000-01.

The grant is $3,000 a year for students attending four-year institutions and $1,000 a year for students attending two-year institutions.

Florestano said that the Maryland Higher Education Commission will distribute applications to colleges and universities before the end of the spring semester and that grants could be awarded as early as September 1, 1999.

To qualify for the teacher grant, a student must be a Maryland resident, attend a Maryland college or university full-time, and maintain a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) in college. When the scholarship is extended to high school students in 2000-01, they must have a cumulative 3.0 GPA in core curriculum subjects.

The teacher scholarship is part of the Maryland HOPE Scholarship, a comprehensive grant program that will offer scholarships for tuition and fees to high school seniors with a B average or better (unweighted, in core curriculum) and total family income of $80,000 or less. All HOPE scholarships will carry a work obligation similar to the teacher grant program — one year working in Maryland for each year of financial aid.

Senate Bill 131 gives the Higher Education Commission responsibility for drafting a plan for the full HOPE Scholarship. Phased in over three years beginning with the 2000-01 academic year, priority will be given to the economic needs of the state, employment shortage areas in Maryland, and the capacity of Maryland institutions to produce graduates. Students in the high school class of 2000 will be the first to be eligible.

The Maryland Higher Education Commission will approve guidelines for the grants, including criteria for making awards when the number of applicants exceeds the number of grants available.

Last year, Governor Glendening created the Maryland Science & Technology Scholarship, which provides a grant of up to $3,000 to students majoring in computer science, engineering, and technology fields.

College students who want more information on the Maryland Teacher Scholarship can call the State Scholarship Administration at 410-974-5370.

Area Pharmacies Offering Low-Cost Bone Test

Three area pharmacies have announced their participation in an Osteoporosis Awareness Initiative. As part of that program, the three establishments — Deep Creek Pharmacy, Gregg's Pharmacy, and Tri-Towns Pharmacy — will be offering low-cost bone mineral density testing on three days next month.

According to a report submitted by the pharmacies, the incidence of the bone disease called osteoporosis is significant, affecting more than 25 million Americans. As life expectancy increases, more of the population enters the age group that is most prone to the painful and crippling disease. Annual national costs associated with osteoporosis are estimated to be $13.8 billion.

The report states that there are 1.3 million osteoporosis-related fractures per year in the United States. Of those, 250,000 are fractures of the hip. Of hip-fracture patients, approximately 20% need to enter long-term care institutions shortly after the fracture, and another 15% die as a result of injury complications, either from the fracture itself or from consequent surgery.

Loss of estrogen production is the major risk factor for most women, the area pharmacists reported, although there are other important risk factors of which persons should be aware. There are no reliable early warning signs of the disease, but it is detectable, preventable, and treatable.

The bone density scans being offered by the three pharmacies next month are quick, painless, and accurate, according to the report. The test will cost $35 per person, which the pharmacists said is much lower than a test offered in a laboratory or hospital, which usually costs over $125. The pharmacies are not earning a profit from the fee — it will simply cover the costs of the test and those administering it.

At Deep Creek Pharmacy, the bone tests will be given on Tuesday, May 4, from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. At Tri-Towns Pharmacy, the tests will be offered on Wednesday, May 5, 9:30 a.m.-5 p.m., and at Gregg's, they will be given on Thursday, May 6, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

For more information, persons may contact the pharmacists at their respective businesses.

Local Student Takes Semester Program Abroad

Hillary Garris, an Oakland resident who is a junior at Lehigh University majoring in finance, is spending the spring semester studying in Florence, Italy, through New York's Syracuse University's Division of International Programs Abroad. A 1996 graduate of Southern High School, she is the daughter of Barry and Linda Garris.

Now in its 40th year, the SU program offers credit-bearing opportunities for students at SU and other colleges and universities across the United States and Canada. The Florence program, established in 1959, enrolls more than 600 students each year.

Students may study art history, studio art, architecture, and Italian language, or take courses in the liberal arts. Many of the students live with local families and visit historic sites in Rome, Venice, Assisi, and other destinations.

Officially chartered in 1870 as a private, coeducational institution of higher education, SU is a student-centered research university. The university's 13 schools and colleges share the common mission: to promote learning through teaching, research, scholarship, creative accomplishment, and service, while embracing the core values of quality, caring, diversity, innovation, and service.

The 680-acre campus is home to more than 18,000 full- and part-time undergraduate and graduate students from all 50 states and 90 countries.

HUSKY Notes

by Lester Lewis
NHS Viking reporter

•The Students of the Month for March were recently named. They are freshman Ashley Robinson, sophomore Chad Stallman, junior Cindy McKenzie, and senior Lisa Beeman.

•NHS was very successful at the 1999 Western Maryland Regional Science Expo held recently at Frostburg State University. NHS competed against six Allegany County schools. NHS students won over half of the awards, taking 36 of the 69 awards given. The list of winners follows:

Josh Neubert was awarded the overall grand prize for the second consecutive year, first place in earth and space science, the Navy-Marine Corps, Science Achievement Award, the Army framed Certificate of Achievement and backpack, the TAM award, and the U.S. Meteorological Society Certificate.

Josh Resh was awarded first place in engineering, the TAM award, and the AES Warrior Run Young Edison Award — a $500 scholarship.

Shane Russell was awarded second place in engineering, the TAM award, and the AES Warrior Run Young Edison Award — a $1,000 scholarship.

Lisa Beeman was awarded first place in environmental science, a U.S. Meteorological Society Certificate and the Navy-Marine Corps Science Achievement Award.

Audrey Friend won first place in behavioral and social science and the Army Top Winner medallion. Taylor Glotfelty earned the TAM award, and finished second in earth and space science. Wendell Beitzel won a TAM award and third place in physics.

Katie Roberts earned a TAM award and second place in physics. Dan Umbel won a TAM award and third place in physics. Cindy McKenzie earned an Army Certificate of Achievement and third place in zoology.

Other award winners were Jackie Resh, second in medicine and health; David Wampler, second in behavior and social science; Allison Martinez, third place in behavior and social science; Dan Rounds, second in chemistry; and Crystal Colmer, third in botany.

Honorable mention went to the following students: Kristy Beitzel in biochemistry, Nathan Resh in earth and space science, Jennifer Murray in environmental science, and Levi Schmuck in zoology.

•The senior class trip will be to Hershey Park on Friday, May 28. The cost of the trip will be approximately $40, which includes transportation, admission to the park, and a catered lunch with the class. Seniors who are interested in participating may make a $10 deposit no later than tomorrow, Friday, April 23. Checks should be made payable to NHS.

•Josten's will be distributing graduation supplies to seniors within the next few weeks. Any remaining balance must be paid at the time of receiving supplies.

•On May 6, the Northern High Environmental Club will participate in a Regional Environthon Competition at Rocky Gap State Park in Allegany County. The club is composed of seven freshmen and two juniors, who will be divided into two groups for the competition. Members will be tested on their knowledge of soils, forestry, aquatics, and wildlife/fire management. The club will practice after school on Mondays, 3:30-4:30 p.m.

•Student Council News: The council met on Thursday, April 15. It was brought to the council's attention that there are several proposed changes to the Agenda Books for the '99-00 school year. Those include an unlimited number of hall passes, and the Internet permission form will be printed in the Agenda Book. Students must, however, have the book with them at all times in order to leave the classroom or to use the Internet.

In addition, the STAR (Students Taking Active Responsibility) committee is considering increasing the amount of time between classes from four to five minutes.

NHS will host the annual bloodmobile only for students and faculty on Friday, April 30. All students, even those over age 18, must have a signed parental permission form prior to giving blood.

NHS Student Council members will attend a retreat to be held on a yet-to-be-determined date at the Wisp. Speakers will dis-cuss the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse. In addition, information will be given on a school hotline similar to what is in place in Allegany County. The hotline can be used to anonymously report crimes that occur on school property (drug use, weapons, harassment, and others).

Student council members are selling coupons from Auntie Anne's Pretzels in the Country Club Mall as a fund-raiser. Interested students may contact members of the student council.

Talk Slated On Freedom Trail In W. Pennsylvania

The regional involvement in the Underground Railroad will be the topic addressed by John G. Burt, Esq., Commonwealth Speaker for the Pennsylvania Humanities Council on Monday, April 26, at the Folk Meeting House, Springs Rd., Springs, Pa., at 7 p.m.

To help slaves reach freedom, abolitionists in pre-Civil War America set up routes for escape known as the Underground Railroad. Much of the escape route passed through western Pennsylvania, particularly the cities and towns of Pittsburgh, Meadville, Erie, and Washington.

In his talk in Springs, Burt will focus on the dynamic anti-slavery forces in the state and their historical contributions to the pre-Civil War Freedom Trail.

Burt has served as both a consultant and a featured speaker in "Pennsylvania's Pathways to Freedom", a television documentary on the Underground Railroad in Pennsylvania. He has given guided tours on the subject for six years, and lectures extensively on the history of American reform movements, like the abolitionist movement.

Currently an attorney in Pittsburgh, Pa., and an adjunct professor of sociology at Carlow College, Burt holds the 1992 Schultz Award for Legal History from the University of Pittsburgh Law School.

This program, which is free of charge and open to the public, is sponsored by the Springs Historical Society. The Commonwealth Speaker has been supported by a grant from the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. For further information persons may call 814-662-2051.

Hiking/Health Guide Available At Health Dept.

A statewide guide to Maryland hiking trails as well as healthful recipes has been produced and is being distributed locally by the Garrett County Health Department. Each Maryland health department was asked to provide a "healthy heart" recipe and a suggested walking trail in its area.

The local health department entry suggests hiking at Swallow Falls State Park, and lists a venison pepper steak recipe. Persons may request a copy of the guide by calling 301-334-8122.

Public Health Week was observed nationally April 5-11, and Maryland's observance included the publication of the guidebook. The state's public health theme for 1999 is "Keep a Healthy Balance: Eat Wisely and Stay Active."

County To Take Part In National Day Of Prayer

The 48th annual National Day of Prayer will be observed on Thursday, May 6, both nationwide and locally. In Garrett County, a prayer observance will be held at noon in the courthouse rotunda. The public is invited to attend. An observance will also be held on that day from 7 a.m. until 7:45 at the Old Mill Restaurant in Friendsville, and then at noon at the Friendsville Town Hall.

According to local organizer Teresa Domenick, over 20,000 prayer events are expected to take place across the country, coordinated by 40,000 volunteers. The observances will occur in churches, schools, courthouses, and prisons, as well as in the U.S. Capitol Building in Washington, D.C., where the National Day of Prayer Task Force will hold a prayer gathering in the Cannon House.

The theme for 1999 is "Light the Nation . . . with Prayer," based on a passage from Matthew in the Bible, which reads: "You are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hidden. Neither do people light a lamp and put it under a bowl. Instead they put it on a stand, and it gives light to everyone in the house."

"Our prayers can change the course of history," said Shirley Dobson, chairperson of the national event. "If people of faith join together on the National Day of Prayer, I'm convinced our prayer will have a powerful impact on our country."

This annual event was established by an act of the U.S. Congress and President Harry S. Truman in 1952. President Ronald Reagan then signed a bill in 1988 designating the first Thursday in May as the observance's standing date.

"Let us kindle flames of faith with our prayers, believing prayer can — and will — make a difference," Domenick said.

OUTSTANDING COMMITMENT to recruiting and training older workers was the basis for Employer of the Year awards being presented recently by the Maryland Department of Aging to six Maryland employees, including the Garrett County Community Action Committee. The presentation was held in observance of National Employ the Older Worker Week. Sue Fryer Ward, secretary of the Maryland Department of Aging, presented the awards during a ceremony and reception held at the Bain Senior Center in Howard County. Dr. Patrick Huddle, vice-chair of the Howard County Economic Development Authority, also provided congratulatory remarks. Pictured from left above are: Pam Nelson, of the Garrett County Community Action Committee; Santo Grande, Delmarva Community Services Inc.; Secretary Ward; Wanda Wilson, Associated Catholic Charities; Peg Bradford, MAC Inc.; Don Robbins, Maryland Department of Agriculture; Bernie Cline, Weis Markets; and Dr. Huddle. The Garrett County CAC did some of its own recognizing in observance of the special week by presenting dinner and certificates to the agency's workers whose ages are in the 70s and 80s. Below center is Jim Casteel, one of the agency's eldest workers, with Pam Nelson, left, holding the CAC's Employer of the Year Award certificate, and at right, Adina Brode, director of the Area Agency on Aging.

WOMEN'S HISTORY CELEBRATED AT GCC - National Women's History Month was observed at Garrett Community College in late March with a program titled "Women Putting our Stamp on America." Presented by the New Horizons Program under the direction of Barbara Frey, the educational performance drew on the talents of a cast of local students and residents portraying American women who have put their "stamp" on our culture, some of whom also appear on U.S. postage stamps. "The word 'stamp' is a metaphor for women's positive, lasting marks, impressions, or impact on our culture and society," Frey said in her introduction. Shown here are three of the dozen characters: above left is Sacajawea, portrayed by Melissa Miner; above center is Clara Barton, portrayed by Jamie Resh; and above right is Virginia Apgar, portrayed by Carol Newman, standing behind Harriet Tubman, portrayed by Jeanne Walton. The remaining characters were Abigail Adams, portrayed by Matia Vanderbilt; Dorothea Dix, portrayed by Dorothy Archer; Lucy Stone, portrayed by Cindy Sisler; Belva Lockwood, portrayed by Wendy Mopsik; Jane Addams, portrayed by Phyllis Furr; Pearl Buck, portrayed by Alyce McDowell; Jacqueline Cochran, potrayed by Susan Watson; and Rachel Carson, portrayed by Gail Herman. Each of these women "clearly put their stamp on some aspect of American life through their deliberate actions," Frey said. They "believed in the glorious promise America holds out for boundless human possibility, and each woman set out to see that promise fulfilled. Their legacy consists of more than the freedoms American women now enjoy. They have also given us the powerful knowledge that, with perseverance, we too have the ability to make significant changes in our society and to 'put our stamp' on America."

Major Impact

when a Wal-Mart is concerned. A huge discount store could damage its downtown by destroying small family-run businesses.

"Wal-Mart has affected our Main Street definitely in a negative way. While there are pluses and minuses to any major global corporation coming into a small town, Wal-Mart has made it difficult for Frostburg businesses, especially our 'mom and pop stores' that had been here over a century. For example, Pritchard's Hardware, which had been in business for over 100 years, closed within six months of Wal-Mart's opening. It wasn't able to compete with Wal-Mart," Bambacus said.

"County-wide here in Allegany County, Wal-Mart does provide benefits in terms of offering wider variety for consumers, but it can kill a downtown," commented David Cotton, economic development coordinator for the city of Frostburg. "The cornerstones of our downtown business community—Pritchard's Hardware, a three-story, 18,000 square foot building; Kline's Furniture, a large two-story structure; and Durst Furniture, a three-story building—have been vacated since they closed in the wake of Wal-Mart's opening, and they are proving hard to fill because of their size and because they were mixed-use when the stores were there, containing apartments as well as businesses. Each remains empty."

Oakland Analysis

With Wal-Mart's own figures from its 1996 annual report indicating that a 100,000 square foot store requires $307 per square foot in sales to achieve average success, a 152,415 square foot store would apparently have to generate nearly $50 million in annual sales. Given the county's population of less than 30,000, each man, woman, and child living in Garrett County would have to spend over $1,600 per year at the Supercenter to have it reach "average" success.

The current climate of local commerce must be taken into account when examining the potential effects of a Supercenter. According to retail data published in the Downtown Oakland Revitalization Plan-Phase II, dated April 1997, the Downtown Oakland Market Area (DOMA), which corresponds with the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park zip code area of 21550, comprises approximately 15,000 residents, over half the county's population.

The Oakland study lists 66 stores operating within the DOMA that carry some of the same line of merchandise that a Wal-Mart Supercenter carries: 23 miscellaneous retail stores with total annual sales of $6.6 million; 11 food and grocery stores, total sales of $28.9 million; 8 building materials and garden supply stores, total sales of $18.2 million; 8 furniture and homefurnishing stores, total sales $3.5 million; 5 drug and proprietary stores, total sales $8.3 million; 4 general merchandise stores, total sales $4.4 million; and 7 apparel and accessory stores, total sales $3 million.

For the 66 stores with sales figures listed above, the total annual sales figures in the DOMA add up $72.9 million. If the annual sales of a new Supercenter were $50 million, there could conceivably be a loss of over 68 percent of annual sales from the Oakland area's existing businesses (in aggregate).

Given that government estimates are not indicating a marked increase in the foreseeable future in population figures for the DOMA, Garrett County, or the region as a whole, the annual transfer of $50 million dollars from existing businesses to a global corporation such as Wal-Mart would potentially have major impacts on the existing economic infrastructure of the county in terms of the possible number of existing businesses and jobs lost, and possible declines in existing charitable donations, community-service activities, children's youth team sponsorships, etc., that come from currently existing businesses.

While the marketing division of Maryland's Department of Business and Economic Development estimates that 82,587 people live within a 25-mile radius of Oakland, and that over 500,000 people live within a 50-mile radius of the town, the concept of an Oakland Supercenter basing its success on drawing thousands of extra shoppers from beyond the county is debatable. Nine Wal-Marts, including a pair of Supercenters, already exist within a 50-mile radius of Oakland, according to Wal-Mart Online.

The Jobs Question

Proponents of Wal-Mart often advance the argument that a new mega-store creates jobs in a community. An establishment that employs up to 200 people would ordinarily be welcomed with open arms into a community struggling with a high unemployment rate, but Wal-Mart's job creation prospects have been questioned in towns similar to Oakland.

"For every $10 million of sales in a typical retail business, 106 people are employed," Oakland resident Jon Boone told a meeting of the Oakland mayor and town council in early December. "For every $10 million of sales at a typical Wal-Mart, only 65 people are employed—a reduction of 39 percent. Consequently, for every part-time job that Wal-Mart creates, a full-time job is lost in the community. In addition, Wal-Mart rarely uses any local contractors and it does not bank or advertise locally." (Data obtained from the Wharton School of Business's Shils Report, and Economic, Fiscal and Land Use Impacts of Proposed Wal-Mart Store on Franklin County, Vermont, Communities, by Thomas Muller and Humston & Associates, Burlington, Vt.)

These observations appear to be borne out through local experience. Apparently, not a single local employer other than Railey Realty has been connected with the Supercenter proposal. A South Carolina real estate developer has reportedly been negotiating with Railey Realty to purchase property for Wal-Mart, the Freeland and Kauffman engineering firm that produced the site plan in November and conducted preliminary survey work last month is also from South Carolina, while M&SE, the environmental services engineering firm that was carrying out geological and hydrological survey work this month, is based out of North Carolina.

A Wal-Mart Supercenter that opened in Moorefield, W.Va., this past January may provide clues to the company's job creation prospects and hiring practices. "The people Wal-Mart hired here were already employed, and left their jobs to go work at Wal-Mart," West Virginia social worker Martha McCartney said.

A family specialist with the West Virginia Welfare-to-Work Program, McCartney commented that her clients didn't find jobs at the store. "Approximately 40 of our welfare recipients from the tri-county area of Pendleton, Grant, and Hardy counties applied for work at Wal-Mart during the November and December hiring process, and to our knowledge not a single one was hired. We've been hoping for a trickle-down effect of our clients finding work in the vacancies left by people who went to work at Wal-Mart.

"It's interesting that Wal-Mart [the largest private sector employer in West Virginia, with over 6,000 employees] doesn't have any special program for hiring welfare recipients, nor does West Virginia have any employer incentives for Wal-Mart to do so, which are in place for other companies like Hardy's," McCartney observed.

Wal-Mart's Growth

Wal-Mart stunned the retail world last fall when it announced that the company would embark, in its own words, in "aggressive store growth for the fiscal year beginning Feb. 1, 1999, with plans to open 40 new discount stores and approximately 150 new Supercenters. The growth represents approximately 34 million square feet of additional retail space or approximately 9 percent growth in store square footage."

The emphasis on Supercenters is reflected in the fact that construction of those giant stores, which feature grocery sales, is growing at a rate of three times faster than that of regular Wal-Marts. Sales of groceries have grown to make up approximately 25 percent of the company's total sales, and Wal-Mart spokespersons have been quoted in the national media as saying that the company has set its sights on becoming the largest grocer in the world.

The effects of such centralization of retail power in Wal-Mart and other mega-retailers have been the focus of much attention in larger media of late. An article published last fall in The Baltimore Sun stated that the number of independent hardware stores in the country dropped from 25,000 in 1985 to just over 18,000 ten years later, while at the same time The Washington Post reported that the nation is losing over 1,000 independent pharmacies each year. Both articles cited the trend toward mega-retailers, specifically naming Wal-Mart (among others) as major factors in these declines in American entrepreneurship, especially in small towns.

Wal-Mart Online states that as of Feb. 28 the company was operating 1,869 regular Wal-Mart stores, 564 Supercenters, and 452 Sam's Clubs within the United States. In the foreign markets, the company operates 419 stores in Mexico, 154 in Canada, 95 in Germany, 15 in Puerto Rico, 14 in Brazil, 13 in Argentina, and, under joint agreements, 5 in China and 4 in Korea. The company employs over 780,000 workers in the U.S., making it the second-largest employer in the country behind the federal government, and has over $110 billion in annual sales.

Job security within the company could conceivably be subject to the same strategies that have contributed to the company's financial success, which is attributed in part "to massive investments in technology," according to a U.S. News & World Report article of this past December, which stated that although "determining the kinds of products that are carried by various Wal-Marts across the land used to be the job of flesh-and-blood merchandisers, today computers do most of the heavy lifting.

"For years, every scrap of information about who buys what at a Wal-Mart has been fed back to headquarters in Bentonville, Ark., where it is stored in a huge data warehouse. Wal-Mart says its warehouse contains a staggering 43 terabytes of data, which if printed out on 8½-by-11 sheets of paper and laid end to end would reach to the moon and back six times. It is larger than any other commercial data warehouse, and perhaps second only to the Pentagon's, according to industry experts," the article reported.

Proponents Views

One downtown Oakland merchant spoke recently on the possible benefits of a major retailer locating near the town, although he requested anonymity. People go to a Supercenter for major purchases, to get larger items or a large amount of groceries, he said, citing the size of the bigger store as giving smaller stores a possible advantage they can capitalize on.

"Huge stores just aren't convenient, so if you want just a loaf of bread or a few items, you're not going to go to a Supercenter to get those. You'll go to the store where you can get in and out the fastest, because you know exactly what you want

Red Carpet Travel

A new business that provides luxury transportation, Red Carpet Travel, has been opened in Oakland by Steve Liller, and Greg and Sue Shockey.

Red Carpet Travel offers limousine service for weddings, anniversaries, birthday parties, bachelor/bachelorette parties, airport travel, or any occasion.

The owners say their 22-foot Lincoln Town Car is the only limousine offering this kind of service in Garrett County.

Drivers Mike and Max Hill and Dave McLaughlin are employed by the company, which can be reached by calling 301-387-6144.

Greg and Sue Shockey are both graduates of Frostburg State University, each with a bachelor's degree in business administration. Sue is office manager for Garrett Rehab Services.

The owners feel their business has growth potential, with the possibility of adding additional limousines and expanding into private transportation services.

Major Impact

and where it is in the store," he said.

"Another possible benefit is the increased traffic flow a Supercenter would bring to Oakland. Our stores would be in a position to draw on that traffic."

The merchant felt that much of that traffic would originate from West Virginia. "There's no Maryland sales tax on food, and our gasoline prices are less because of our lower state gas tax.

"These are all compelling cases for people from neighboring counties to come and shop here, and if we get them here we at least have a chance. At this point it's not equal, because West Virginia has a big box store, and we already know its infrastructure is better because of its highways.

"It's an embarassment that we don't have a big box," the small merchant concluded.

"I'm for Wal-Mart," Linda Jose, a resident of Oakland, commented recently. "Basically because of the lack of local shopping opportunities and the lack of jobs. A Wal-Mart would provide jobs that may be better than fast food stores or gas stations, and would offer the chance for advancement, as well as better pay and benefits.

"I've lived in many different places because my dad was in the military," the 21-year-old said, "including Melbourne, Florida [population 65,000], where a historic downtown is thriving with specialty merchants and many special events. There's a Super Wal-Mart, a Circuit City, a Target, and a huge mall in Melbourne, and in the area there are three Wal-Marts within 45 minutes of each other.

"I think we can use Melbourne's example here; we can have our historic downtown offer more of a variety of shopping opportunities to attract people, while at the same time having a big store to draw more people into the area," said Jose, a citizen member of the Main Street Program's economic restructuring committee.

A class paper by a University of Maryland undergraduate student also weighs in on the side of a Wal-Mart. "The Effect of Wal-Mart on Small Town America", a paper written by Dwayne Liller for his Urban Geography class, merits mention because Garrett County Chamber of Commerce President David Moe personally distributed it to a number of local businesses. "It served an educational purpose," Moe commented afterwards, "by giving people another side of the story."

"I would suggest to small towns, such as Oakland, to acknowledge the economic reality of Wal-Mart and embrace it," Liller stated in the conclusion of his 17-page class paper. "After taking this step to improve the economic condition of the town, then the town's residents can decide how they wish to address the quality of life issues. . . .

"Finally, I believe that the Main Street Program is a logical counterpart to Wal-Mart in rural towns. The giant retailer can address the economic trends of the nation, while the Main Street Program gives the people of a town the tools they need to cooperate and pursue a common goal. It is here that communities can decide their fate and show their character."

Moe, who owns several acres adjacent to property just north of Oakland where a Supercenter is proposed to be built, has said in the past that he would support the concept of a mega-retailer moving into the Oakland area. "We could capitalize on the increased traffic being drawn to shop at a big store, and we could transform our downtown into a successful area like Ellicott City has. Specialty boutique-type shops and white collar professional offices would make Oakland's downtown a more attractive destination."

The chamber president said he feels many existing local merchants can compete with a mega-retailer. "Look at McDonald's on Third Street. When Long John Silver's came in to compete for the fast food dollar, McDonald's adjusted, and was able to compete. They're still doing great business," he said.

The Discussion Continues

Oakland Main Street Manager Glenn Tolbert took issue with the college student's conclusion regarding the program he oversees. "I think a Main Street Program can help existing retailers try to deal with any mega-retailers, but the program is hardly a panacea when a mega-retailer lands on the front steps of a community. A Main Street program isn't going to be able to totally cushion such a major economic and cultural blow to a small town.

"If a Wal-Mart has to come, perhaps we could see to it that Oakland's officials put forth a vision of how the store could try and fit in with our small town atmosphere," Tolbert said, mentioning his hopes for a smaller structure with a brick exterior, tree islands in the parking lot and muted parking lot lighting as examples of what could be a more palatable proposal. Four 40,000 square foot Wal-Marts, each little larger than Treasure Island, have been built recently in response to pressures from both the marketplace and organized town councils.

Tolbert offered a different prognosis of Moe's assessment of a future including a Super Wal-Mart: "Twenty years from now I'm afraid we may look back on today in the same way we now look back on the big years of extractive industries of coal mining and logging. Those industries took natural resources out of communities much like our own across Appalachia until there wasn't much more to take, and the benefits of taking what was left were outweighed by the costs.

"Letting any major retailer move into Oakland without any restraints, giving up local control of our small town atmosphere to the global marketplace, is a regional issue, not just a town issue. The impact would be felt by our independent hardware stores, pharmacies, and merchants of all sorts across many square miles. A global corporation like that would take our economic resources out of our community for as long as it would benefit the company—after that, then what?" Tolbert asked.

Who Benefits? Who Loses?

Perhaps the Jan. 22, 1996, issue of Forbes magazine said it best. After describing Wal-Mart's foray into grocery sales and the impact on existing grocery chains that were struggling to compete, an article titled "The Great Wal-Mart Massacre, Part II," came to this conclusion: "Nevertheless, the handwriting is on the wall: Thousands of U.S. supermarkets will be forced out of business over the next few years. . . . The distribution revolution rolls on, claiming new victims daily but continuing to benefit price-conscious consumers."

TERMS OF SALE: A deposit of $8,100.00 in the form of cash, certified check, or any other form acceptable to the Substitute Trustees in their sole discretion, shall be required at the time of sale, except no deposit shall be required of the secured parties, their successors or assigns. The balance of the purchase price with interest at the rate pursuant to the deed of trust note from the date of sale to the date said funds are received in the office of the Substitute Trustees, will be paid within ten days after the final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, Maryland, except that if the secured parties, their successors and assigns are the purchaser, a credit will be allowed for the debt, time being of the essence. If payment of the balance does not take place within the specified period, or if the purchaser fails to go to settlement as required, in addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available to the Substitute Trustees, the property shall be re-sold at the defaulting purchaser's risk and expense. In such event, the defaulting purchaser shall be liable for the payment of any deficiency in the purchase price, all costs and expenses of both sales, attorneys' fees and all other charges incurred by the Substitute Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason and the property is purchased by someone other than the noteholder, there shall be no abatement of interest caused by the delay.

The property will be sold subject to all restrictions, liens, covenants and encumbrances of record affecting same, if any, and if subject to a prior Deed of Trust(s), the outstanding balance will be announced at time of sale if made available to the Substitute Trustees. Neither the Substitute Trustee, nor any other party guarantees or covenants to deliver or in any way to obtain possession of the premises for any purchaser. The Substitute Trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids, withdraw the property from sale, or postpone and readvertise the property for sale at a later date. Taxes, water, rent, and all other municipal liens and charges will be adjusted to date of sale. All other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis shall be adjusted to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes, document preparation and title insurance shall be borne by purchaser. If the Substitute Trustees, in their sole discretion, are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law or equity shall be limited to the refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claim against the Substitute Trustees. Underage Parties Raided By GCSO; Citations Issued

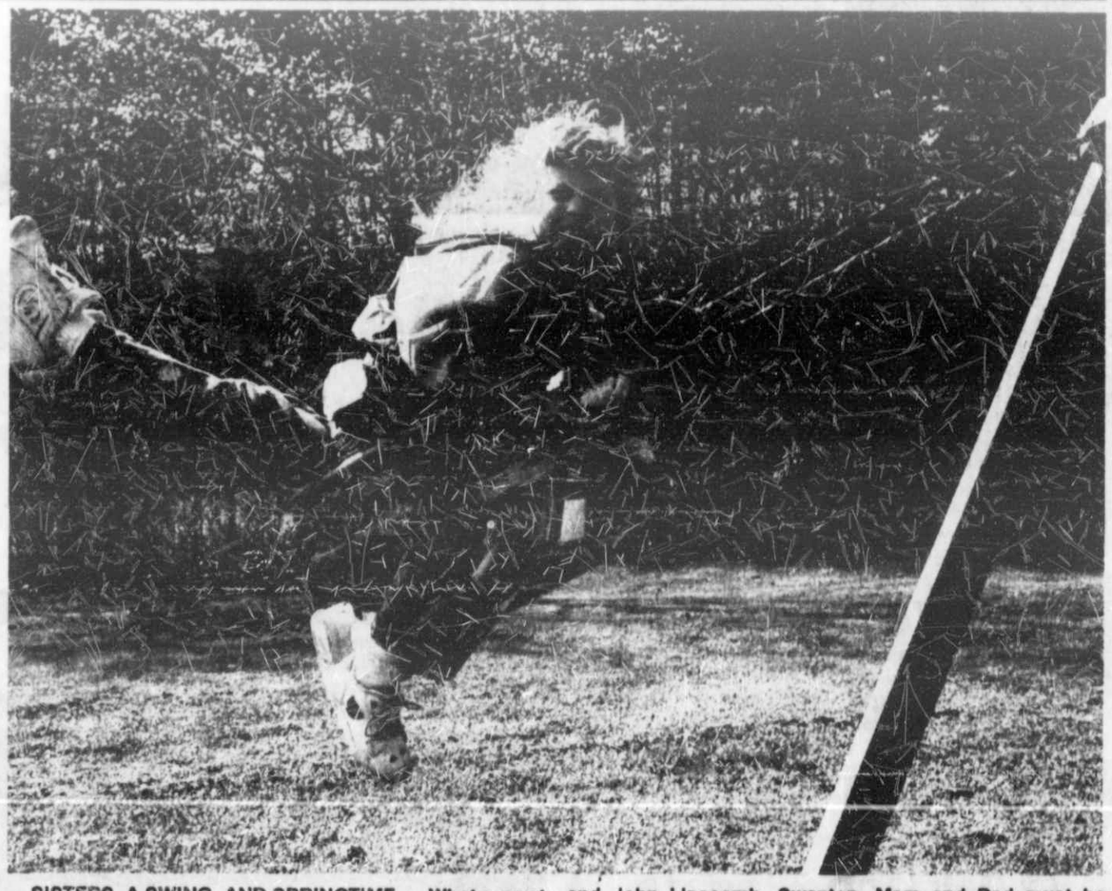
A pair of parties involving underage drinking were raided by Garrett County sheriff's deputies recently, in addition to the Swanton-area party on the night of April 17 that resulted in the five citations reported in last week's paper.

The most recent incident occurred shortly after 2 a.m. on Sunday, April 24, when sheriff's deputies and Maryland state troopers responded to 134 Black Bear Court, located off Lake Shore Drive, when a house sitter discovered that marijuana was being used at a party there. Officers found a number of teens at the residence, along with alcohol, suspected marijuana, and a suspected marijuana smoking device.

Two adults, Boo Daniel Jonson, 18, who resides at the Black Bear Court address, and Scott Wesley Sanders, 18, Oakland, were issued civil citations for possession of an alcoholic beverage by a person under the age of 21. Four juveniles were issued citations for the same offense. Other charges may be pending after an investigation concludes, a sheriff's office spokesman said.

A party at a residence at 242 West Main Street, Kitzmiller, was broken up by deputies at approximately 10 p.m. on Friday, April 16. Several individuals were apprehended after attempting to flee on foot when deputies arrived. Alcohol was reportedly found in the home, and a juvenile was eventually referred to the Department of Juvenile Services with the recommendation that charges be filed of underage consumption and fleeing and eluding.

Citations for underage consumption were issued to two adults, an 18-year-old male and a 17-year-old female, but were withdrawn after the subjects agreed to participate in the Sheriff's Office Reality Program.



SISTERS, A SWING, AND SPRINGTIME — What a great combination. These two siblings are obviously happy about the warmer weather that has finally graced the mountaintop, as they were caught on camera yesterday enjoying themselves enormously. They are the Lipscomb sisters: Lindsey, 4, and Emily, 7, the daughters of Tracy and John Lipscomb, Swanton. Mom and Dad must be pretty good at their jobs, because not all sisters are so thrilled to be together, sharing a swing in the spring. The weather is to be tops this weekend, surely fit for some more romping around in the sun, or for having a good laugh with your sis. Enjoy. Photo by John McEwen

Multi-Vehicle Crash Drill Set Saturday

The Garrett County Traffic Advisory committee will conduct a multi-vehicle crash incident drill on Saturday, May 1, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The purpose of the drill is to train emergency responders in the response, triage, extrication, and transport of multiple victims of a chain-reaction crash, and to heighten awareness of the effects of drinking and driving to teenagers as prom and graduation activities approach.

The drill, which is a follow-up to the Multi-Vehicle Crash Incident Management Conference held at Northern High School last September, will simulate a crash involving a school bus and several passenger cars. Students from several local schools have volunteered to participate as victims, and numerous fire, ambulance, and police departments will respond, as well as support services from the state highway, towing services, and Garrett Medical Transport.

The drill is being sponsored by the Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute and the public is welcome, with seating provided on the bleachers of the demolition derby track. For more information, persons may call Brad Frantz at 301-334-1930 or Diane Lee at 301-746-8636.

Fire Destroys Bear Creek Rd. House Thursday

An investigation into the cause of a fire that destroyed a house along Bear Creek Road near Friendsville last Thursday is still under investigation, according to officials from the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office.

Fire fighters from Friendsville and Accident VFDs were summoned to the residence of Vicki Bowser and her two daughters, ages 4 and 22 months, at 11:27 a.m. Mrs. Bowser told Friendsville fire chief Terry Spear that she and the children had left the house at about 10:30 a.m. The fire was discovered by a neighbor, who called 911.

Heavy smoke and flames were coming from the single-story structure upon the arrival of fire fighters. The house and all of its contents were destroyed, according to Steve Wendling, deputy state fire marshal who is investigating the incident. Wendling estimated the loss to be $20,000 and said that Bowser did not have fire insurance. The family was receiving assistance from the American Red Cross.

Fire fighters gained control of the blaze in about 10 minutes, but remained on the scene for over an hour. Also responding was the county air cascade unit, housed at Deep Creek VFC, a unit from the Addison, Pa., VFD, and the Northern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Open House, Auctions Slated At New Visitors Center Next Weekend

In conjunction with Maryland Tourism Week, Mother's Day, and in planning for Kids Club Lake Day, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will host an open house and auction at the Visitors Center in McHenry on May 7 and 8. Guests will be invited to tour the new facility, and take part in the "Goin' Once" auction, which will feature Gary Yoder as auctioneer. There will also be a silent auction offered to guests.

All proceeds from this event will benefit the Kids Club, and will provide seed funding for future chamber scholarship programs, according to a spokesperson.

The Kids Club is an educational/recreational program sponsored under the auspices of the chamber's tourism promotion committee. Educators at the county's middle schools periodically select students whom they believe would most benefit from participating in local recreation programs. The program goal is to help students build confidence and camaraderie while increasing their awareness of the local tourism and hospitality industry.

The silent auction will be held on the evening of May 7, 4-8 p.m. A live WKHJ broadcast will take place during the event, and free refreshments will be available. Winners in the silent auction will be announced at the end of the evening.

A vast variety of items and services have been donated for both auctions. In the silent event, some of the items include two scoops of landscaping chips from Sisler Lumber, a baseball cap and discount dinner coupon from Deep Creek Beer Works, a 1999 Delaware collector's coin set from First United Bank, Sunday brunch for two at the Point View Inn, a vehicle cleaning by chamber president Dave Moe, a day on the river and fly fishing with Gary Yoder, a Precision Rafting trip for four from Nancy and Roger Zbel, and 49 more varied gifts and services.

The live auction will take place on Saturday, with

Clarification Noted In Story About Wal-Mart

An article that appeared in last week's issue of The Republican regarding the potential impacts of a proposed Wal-Mart store on the north end of Oakland requires clarification. The article stated that a South Carolina real estate developer has reportedly been negotiating with Railey Realty to purchase property for Wal-Mart.

"We are a real estate company representing a seller and advertising property. We are not a negotiator," Bill Weissgerber Jr., co-owner of Railey Realty, clarified. "We are not a negotiating party.

"We are a listing agent for the seller, not a negotiator. I'm not going to say we haven't been contacted by a company from South Carolina. Wyatt Development is working with one of our agents, but I've not had any contact with them, and we have no idea of their intentions, nor have we been in-

Garrett Misses Cut For All-American City

The finalists for the 1999 All-American City Award competition have been announced, and Garrett County did not make the final cut. A specially appointed committee worked earlier this year to prepare an application for the prestigious award and had been waiting for the announcement, which came last week.

"While this is terribly disappointing, I'm sure that we have all gained from the application process," said Bob Stephens in a letter to all committee members. He indicated that the National Civic League (NCL), the sponsor of the contest, will be supplying him with feedback on the local application. He expects to receive the information sometime in the next month.

"I know that there must have been something wrong with the application, because we all know that Garrett County is truly a wonderful place to live," he wrote.

The NCL and the Allstate Insurance Company stage the national competition annually, and have done so for the past 50 years. The honor goes each year to 10 communities "that best exemplify the spirit of grassroots citizen involvement and collaborative problem solving."

The application called for the description of three local projects that were problem-solving endeavors. The local committee, made up of about 15 individuals from a range of employment and citizenry backgrounds, decided to describe the Ecumenical Youth Ministry, the recovery process from the closing of Bausch & Lomb, and a family preservation initiative headed up by the Office for Children, Youth, and Families.

Stephens said if there is "sufficient interest," he would like to try for the award again next year.

County Offering Community Clean-Up Opportunity

The Garrett County Office of Solid Waste and Recycling and the county commissioners have announced a community clean-up opportunity for the removal of bulk items. This service is being offered to Garrett County towns in order to help residents with spring clean-up activities, according to Gary Love, director of the recycling office.

Tipping fees at the landfill will be waived for a one-day bulk collection event conducted by the towns. Town councils must sched-

Commissioners Decide To Keep Health Department In Oakland

Garrett County Commissioner Chairman Ernest Gregg announced this week that the proposed new facility for the Garrett County Health Department will remain in the greater Oakland area. This commissioner decision came after a selected committee had recommended a McHenry site for the new building.

"The reaction to the McHenry proposal was overwhelming from the public," Gregg said. "And the vast majority of those who contacted us urged us to keep the health department in the Oakland area."

Originally, the Garrett Community College board of trustees had considered providing land near the college for the construction of a centrally located facility, but some trustees apparently expressed concern that the health department building would hinder future growth of the college.

The commissioners received communications from the Lighthouse, the sheriff's office, the municipality of Oakland, and numerous business owners and residents urging them to locate the department in the county seat.

"So many Oakland agencies and departments use the health department regularly for support services, such as the Lighthouse and sheriff's office," Gregg said. "It makes sense to keep it in this area."

In a survey conducted by Health Officer Rodney Glotfelty, it was determined that the majority of persons served by the health department reside within the 21550 zip code area. There is a satellite office at the Grantsville Plaza that offers a variety of health department services each week.

The chairman noted that the seven-member site location committee will be reactivated to look for an Oakland location. The health department has been allotted over $860,000 from the state to construct a new facility that will house all its services.

Highway Proposal Criticized By Taxpayers' Advocacy Group

The proposal to create a new interstate highway that would bisect Garrett County from north to south has been singled out as one of the 50 most wasteful highway projects in the nation by Taxpayers for Common Sense, a taxpayer advocacy group based in Washington, D.C. The organization cited potential cost, sprawl, and environmental damage in making its selections from the nominations of community groups around the country.

Referring to the concept of locating a new interstate highway in Garrett County, either by upgrading the existing Route 219 to a four-lane interstate or creating a new parallel highway that would run as a yet undetermined route through western Maryland, Taxpayers for Common Sense said that "the economic benefits are questionable." The group went on to say that the 36-mile project could cost $300 million if located in Garrett County, 80 percent of which ($240 million) would be funded by federal tax dollars.

"Garrett County's economic problems have not been linked to the lack of such roadway expansion, nor has it been proven that the building of such a road-way would increase jobs," the group stated in its annual Road To Ruin report, released recently. "The entire Continental One highway [a proposed interstate highway connecting Toronto, Ontario, with Miami, Fla.] may never be built, and would not be completed until approximately 2019. Thus, any short-term economic benefits would have to be regional rather than a result of the section's place in the Continental One corridor."

The Maryland State Highway Administration took issue with the report. "This group [Taxpayers for Common Sense] is doing what advocacy groups do—jumping on the issue in advance," SHA spokesperson Valerie Burnette Edgar reportedly responded. "They are painting a different picture from what I would consider reality." She added that the state is following Smart Growth policies outlined by the Glendening administration, and that it is too early for cost estimates on the interstate highway proposal.

Meanwhile, the SHA, along with the highway departments of West Virginia and Virginia, is still awaiting the decision of the Fed-

Crellin Student's Art Work Is Among 12 Selected For Calendar

In celebration of Fair Housing Month, the Maryland Association of Realtors (MAR) and Governor Parris N. Glendening on Tuesday presented 12 Maryland school children with plaques in recognition of artwork that was selected for the MAR 2000 calendar. Among those 12 was Crellin Elementary School student Kalie M. Hostutler, daughter of Kim and Henry Hostutler.

The Equal Opportunity Committee of the Maryland Association of Realtors organizes the annual Fair Housing Poster contest, which is open to children in grades kindergarten through 8. The focus is to remind people of the need for fair housing for all Maryland families, and the theme for this year's project was "One America 2000." Twelve drawings were selected to be used for each month of the calendar.

"The goal of the program is to help remind Maryland citizens that everyone is entitled to equal opportunities in housing," said Jo Anne Poole, committee chairperson. "By working with the youth throughout the state, we hope to encourage an awareness for this need early in their lives."

Miss Hostutler is a fifth grader at Crellin. She and family members attended the state recognition program Tuesday, which was held in the Governor's Reception Room of the State House in Annapolis.

FINAL REHEARSALS are being held this week and early next week by the director and members of the Southern Garrett Band in preparation for their annual spring concert, slated for next Tuesday, May 4, beginning at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The guest musician will be Garrett County native Dr. Timothy DeWitt, trumpeter. There will also be performances by the Southern Winter Guard, the Southern Winter Percussion group, and the Southern Middle School Winter Guard, as well as an awards presentation during intermission. Pieces to be presented by the band include: "Fire Brand" by Eric Osterling, "Pachebel's Canon" by Johann Pachebel, "Trumpet Concerto" by Johann Hummel, "The Ayres of Agincourt" by Richard Meyer, "The Blues Brothers," "Danny Boy," and "Chorus Line Spectacular." Tickets will be available at the door. The band is under the direction of Richard Clever, pictured above left.

Local Lions Club Chapters Mount Eye Charity Drive

The Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park and Deep Creek Lake Lions clubs have slated "White Cane Days," a collection drive of previously owned eyeglasses and hearing aids, and funds, for Friday, May 7, and Saturday, May 8, at Browning's Foodland, Treasure Island, the Farmer's Market, and Proudfoot's Pharmacy.

Lions club volunteers will be collecting the items and funds which will be used to support the Maryland Eye Bank in Baltimore, "rated as the top eye bank," according to Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club President Greg Shockey.

"Our club has been one of the top fund-raisers in District 22-W because of the generosity of the people in our area, and we are very proud of this," Shockey said, adding that over the last year and a half, the Oakland Mtn-Lake Park Lions Club has collected more than 3,500 pairs of used glasses, which have been re-distributed to places of need."

Previously owned eyeglasses can also be dropped off at any time into one of the yellow and purple collection boxes located in front of Gregg's Pharmacy, Proudfoot's Pharmacy, and the Arrowhead Market. Over the past six months more than 1,500 eyeglasses have been collected from these boxes to be used in Third World developing countries and depressed areas of the United States.

Old lenses can be recycled as well as complete pairs of eyeglasses, and between 250 and 300 lenses have been retrieved from the collection boxes, re-cut, and put into used frames.

Lions clubs number 54,000 clubs spread over 185 countries, with nearly 1½ million members around the world. Sight conservation, preservation, and improvement has been a major goal of the Lions since 1925 when Helen Keller challenged the Lions Clubs International to become "Knight of the Blind."

LIONS BEAR THE GIFT OF SIGHT - The Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club recently collected over 1,500 previously owned eyeglasses and nearly 300 used eyeglass lenses which will be distributed in developing nations and depressed areas of the United States. Pictured are Wayne R. Johnson, left, the club's public relations chairman and a member of the club's sight committee, and club president Greg Shockey. Rt. 40 Mishap Hospitalizes Local Woman

A Friendsville woman who was flown to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Maryland State Police Medevac helicopter Sunday afternoon after a single vehicle accident on Route 40 west of Zehner Road remains hospitalized in stable condition in the Intensive Care Unit there.

Nancy Rothrock, 52, was westbound on Route 40 when her car traveled off the right side of the road and into the woods, striking several trees before rolling over onto its roof, according to the Maryland State Police. The car was discovered at 1:30 p.m.

State troopers were assisted on the scene by the Northern Rescue Squad and the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department.

A single-vehicle accident early that same morning resulted in a DWI charge against the driver, Howard Clark Hoover of Grantsville. Hoover was reportedly injured shortly after 3 a.m. when he lost control of his vehicle on Route 495 near Maplegrove Road. The vehicle struck both the north and south guardrails before overturning, according to the state police.

The Northern Rescue Squad transported Hoover to Sacred Heart Hospital in LaVale, where he was treated and released.

A head-on collision on westbound Route 40 at approximately 5:30 p.m. on Friday, April 23, sent two people to the hospital and resulted in charges being filed against one of the drivers.

The police report said that Ryan Richard Folk, Grantsville, entered the eastbound lane and collided head-on with a vehicle operated by Ann Braitman, Frostburg. Two passengers from Braitman's vehicle were transported by Frostburg Ambulance to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Folk was charged with driving under the influence and failure to keep right of center.

Rabies Clinics Set Next Week

A series of low-cost rabies clinics for the vaccination of dogs, cats, and ferrets has been set by the Garrett County Health Department at various locations in the county beginning Monday, May 3, and concluding Saturday, May 8. The clinics are timed to coincide with this year's observance of National Pet Week, the theme of which is "Taking care of each other."

The clinics will be available from 5 to 6 p.m. on the following days at the following locations: Monday at Grantsville Elementary School; Tuesday at the Gorman fire hall; Wednesday at Accident Elementary School; Thursday at the Bloomington fire hall; and Friday at Friendsville Elementary School. Saturday's clinic will be held from 10 a.m. to noon at Broad Ford Elementary School.

The cost of the vaccination is $5 per animal. Dogs should be on a leash and under the control of a responsible individual. Cats and ferrets should be brought to the clinic in a cage or a tightly secured box with air holes.

Wildlife rabies continues to be present in the county, and geographical distribution of the disease puts all pets at risk. Owners are encouraged to check the expiration on their pet's rabies certificate to determine the need for re-vaccination at one of the upcoming clinics or at a local veterinarian's office.

Maryland law requires dogs, cats, and ferrets over 4 months of age to have the required vaccination against rabies; however, animals that are at least 3 months of age can be brought to the clinics. County dog licenses and/or applications for dog licenses, as well as free brochures about rabies, will be available at each clinic.

Youghiogheny River Cleanup Day Scheduled

Mountain Surf Inc., a Friendsville-based white water rafting and kayaking equipment manufacturer, is seeking volunteers to assist in the Youghiogheny River cleanup day, slated for Wednesday, May 19. The effort is part of the seventh annual National River Cleanup Week, sponsored by America Outdoors of Knoxville, Tenn.

Volunteers are asked to meet in the Mountain Surf parking lot, located at 276 Maple Street in Friendsville, at 10 a.m. on May 19. Refreshments will be available after the cleanup, which organizers estimate will conclude around 4 p.m. For further information interested persons can call Miller at 301-746-5389.

Volunteers in kayaks are needed to pick up trash along the Youghiogheny River from Swallow Falls to Friendsville, and non-boaters are needed as well in order to pick up trash along the river front at the Friendsville town park. "It is especially important that boating volunteers be familiar with the Yough River in the cleanup area," Mountain Surf spokesperson Diane Miller said.

Personnel from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources will be picking up the trash volunteers collect, and Gary Love, director of the Garrett County Solid Waste Department, has agreed to accept the trash collected by the group at no charge. Friendsville Discount Liquors and Robert Lohr Distributors, Oakland, will be providing the refreshments for the after cleanup party.

Jess Whittemore, operations manager of Mountain Surf, will be organizing the river cleanup operations, and other area outfitter companies joining in the effort include Spring Creek Outfitters of Deep Creek Lake, and Laurel Highland River Tours and Whitewater Adventures, both of Ohiopyle, Pa.

Customer Service Seminar Set At Will O' the Wisp

A "Customers Count" seminar, focusing on creative excellence in customer relations, has been slated for two consecutive Thursday evenings, May 13 and May 20, at Will O' the Wisp from 6:30 to 9 p.m. each evening. A third follow-up session will be scheduled with each participating business to help ensure implementation of ideas shared during the first two sessions.

Hosted by the Partners in Valuable Ongoing Training (PIVOT) program of the Small Business Development Center at Garrett Community College, the seminar will provide concrete ways to promote "the incredible positive energy available to a business by involving all members of a working environment from the owner to behind-the-scene employees," a spokesperson said. "Local entrepreneurs and managers interested in creating enthusiasm for excellence in customer service and learning interesting ways to generate repeat business are encouraged to come and bring as many of their staff as possible."

A number of customer service techniques were discussed during a recent PIVOT-sponsored panel discussion that brought together local businesses and service agencies. The resulting "five-star standard for customer relations excellence included reliability and trust, consistent high quality, value-added service, a friendly and caring response, exceeding expectations, plus the principle of treating each other with respect." These practices and others will be discussed and elaborated on in the Customers Count seminar.

Tuition for the 7½ hours of training is $8 per person, and registration may be made by calling GCC's Small Business Development Center at 301-387-3080. Persons interested in participating are asked to call by Tuesday, May 4, if possible.

Oakland Update

by Mayor Asa McCain

By Asa McCain Jr.

●The final chance for the public to tour the train station before restoration begins is Saturday, May 8, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. There won't be another opportunity to see the inside of the station until our Sesquicentennial, the week of October 10-17. There's no charge for admission for the open house, and commemorative items will be available, including the Sesquicentennial poster, the new History of Oakland by John Grant, and the train ornaments. This is the last chance to see the station before everyone goes to work to bring the station back to its former glory, so please come by and visit.

●A reminder that the town will be enforcing the rules posted at the Glades Town Park. Last week's Republican indicated that in-line skates were allowed on the path. This was an error due to information I provided that did not include an amendment. That amendment does not allow in-line skates. Other rules that we observe being violated include no dogs being allowed, even on a leash. And a quick clarification on the fishing regulations: Fishing at the Glades Town Park is designed for children. This means that children under 16 should be doing the fishing. Adults who fish the pond just because they happen to have a child in the vicinity of the water at the Glades are not within the regulations. The town also requires that any child under 12 be accompanied by an adult. And again, it's the child who is supposed to be doing the fishing.

●Due to popular request we're installing a connecting path from the end of the sidewalk by the volleyball court over to the main path. This will allow people the option of walking a shorter distance.

●Our Sesquicentennial poster is a classic keepsake that is sure to become a family heirloom. One of these beautifully designed art pieces is a great way to show your grandchildren that their family was a part of our town's 150th birthday celebration. To get one, come by Town Hall or stop in and see Connie at the Water Street Marketplace or pick one up at the Garrett County Historical Society along 2nd Street. Proceeds from the $5 sale of the poster will go toward expenses for the Sesquicentennial.

●You may have noticed that the building that once housed Subway and George's Pizza is gone. Construction on a truck turn lane will begin soon. The remaining property will become a park with a memorial in recognition of our veterans and will be dedicated in October as part of the Sesquicentennial celebration.

●You may also have noticed that the road to the overlook has been paved. This road will not be open for vehicular traffic, but people are welcome to walk to the overlook. There's a beautiful view of our town from this location. The reason that we're not opening it to vehicles is that we don't have safe access to Rt. 39.

CREATING "BLUES IN THE NIGHT" — Students of Garrett Community College's theatre workshop and basic design classes are busy creating and constructing larger-than-life-size instruments and musicians, all of which will be displayed as the unique decor for Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's gala benefit. The fund-raising event this year is titled "Blues in the Night" and will celebrate the country's long history of musical excellence. It will be held on May 22 at Wisp Resort's McHenry House, and tickets for the event are available now by calling 301-387-5018 or 301-387-9474. Pictured with some of the completed designs are GCC professors and students. Shown left to right are professors Ron Skidmore and Ben Sincell, and students Mike Maravich, Lynford Yoder, and Chad Ord. See story.

GCC Students Creating "Blues In The Night"

This year's gala benefit event for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) will be enhanced through the artistry of Garrett Community College professors and their students. "Blues in the Night" is the theme for the event — one of GLAF's most important fund-raisers — and students under the direction of professors Ben Sincell and Ron Skidmore are in the process of constructing unique decorations for the party.

Sincell and Skidmore, leaders of the theatre and art departments respectively, have helped the students design large musical instruments and life-size silhouettes, as well as a giant piano keyboard. The patterns were designed using adaptations of photographs, which were then applied to sheets of plywood, cut out, and painted black.

The giant keyboard, built with sheets of construction foam, will be a focal point of the evening's decorations, according to Nancy Nemith, member of the benefit planning committee.

"The end result will represent many hours of preparation and talent. These pieces will truly be works of art," Nemith said.

All the materials for the project have been donated by 84 Lumber.

The event is slated for May 22 at the McHenry House. It will begin at 6 p.m. and will include a silent auction with numerous items donated by local merchants and artists. A "sit-down" dinner will be served following the cocktail hour, and then music by Windfall will be given for dancing and/or listening pleasure. The "Blues in the Night" gala is semi-formal and guests are encouraged to wear something blue, Nemith noted.

Students from Southern High School have again this year volunteered to provide transportation from the parking lot to the McHenry House. They will earn community service hours for their efforts.

For more information or to make reservations, persons may call 301-387-5018 or 301-387-9474.

Hardesty Found Not Guilty In Amp. Theft Case

An Oakland teenager was declared by Circuit Court Judge James Sherbin not guilty of the charge of theft. Bushrod K. Hardesty Jr., 19, had entered a plea of innocence in the case, which was heard last Thursday.

Hardesty was accused of stealing a $500 amplifier from a Toyota truck owned by Dan Nordeck. The vehicle had been parked at Hershman Welding on the night of Oct. 23, 1998, when the piece of equipment was taken from it.

In last week's proceedings, the defendant reportedly made a motion for acquittal, which was granted by the judge at the close of the case.

Time to Wage War...

Within an eight-day period this month there were at least three parties raided by local law enforcement officials in the county, resulting in the arrests of a number of teenagers for underage drinking and illegal drug use. Those arrested included youth from both broken homes and unbroken homes, from a variety of socio-economic levels and backgrounds, some with records, but most with no records of previous illegal activities. Needless to say, there is heartache, there is a lot of emotional pain being experienced by these youngsters and their parents, and there is, or should be, a rapidly growing concern in the community about drug and alcohol use by our young people.

What makes this behavior even more unnerving right now, of course, is the tragedy that occurred last week at Columbine High School in Colorado. Every parent in America is at least a little nervous right now and beginning to wonder if his or her child is going to be safe at school. While it has been learned that neither of the shooters in that mass killing was under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs during their attack, there are no doubt similarities in the underlying reasons why some of our children are going to such violent extremes. Something is missing in far too many of our children's lives, and unless we adults identify and address those needs quickly, the tragedies will most certainly continue.

While we have concerns about the use of marijuana, a far bigger worry to us is the illegal use of alcohol by our youngsters, and especially the use of drugs such as heroin, cocaine, and LSD. The latter four are killers, both of the users and of innocent bystanders, and they are absolutely, definitely, and without a doubt all being used in Garrett County.

Law enforcement personnel are working to stop this activity, but without the support of the entire community, they will fail. As part of our effort to curtail illegal drug and alcohol use, at least among our young people, we have begun a series of columns/articles today that, we hope, will paint a vivid picture of the enormity of this problem in our community. This page contains an article/interview written by an aspiring young writer, who at age 19 has easier access to the young people whom she interviewed. Read what she found out, and get involved. Future articles will reveal chilling local statistics, and we will have an interview with a local mother who was herself a drug abuser for 15 years.

Parents and other adults need to keep better track of where their children are and what they are doing; they need to ask questions, do a better job of listening, and take seriously the information they receive. Young people need to share information about illegal drug and alcohol use with responsible adults, as well as any threats of violence that they hear, and they need to have some means of doing so that is safe, such as a telephone hotline that will allow them to remain anonymous. Northern High School has such a hotline. Southern High School and both of our middle schools should have one as well.

Again, only an all-out community effort will be effective in the war against the use of illegal drugs and underage drinking.

To the Editor:

Anarchy, rebellion, and war in the USA, Africa, Ireland, Yugoslavia, et al., is proof positive that no leader or law of human origin can amalgamate and homogenize humanity into a lasting peaceful co-existence. It matters not if they are of the same blood, race, culture, religion, politics, etc., the results are the same. Peaceful unity cannot be achieved until all accept the truths of a creator God rather than the lies of the atheist evolution, the teaching of the golden rule rather than self-esteem, follow God's command of separating purity from profanity rather than uniting them by compromise and toleration, and the crowning of God's anointed son Jesus Christ as king rather than the present ruling prince named Satan (aka the father of the lie, the great deceiver, the destroyer). Until then the cry will continue to be: Peace, Peace, when there is no peace.

Respectfully,
Bob Groves

To the Editor:

All throughout history, America has turned to God in times of conflict and in peace. Yet we are systematically removing a mention of God from our children's training. Can't we see that the slippage of society is related to our expressed apathy?

What can bring America back? Prayer. America has a tradition of prayer. The National Day of Prayer, designated since 1988 as the first Thursday of May every year, is a great opportunity for Americans to unite in recognition of our incredible need for God. This year's theme is "Light the Nation with Prayer." At this critical time in our nation's history, let us kindle flames of faith with our prayers, believing prayer can — and will — make a difference.

This year's National Day of Prayer falls on May 6, 1999. The Garrett County commissioners have issued a proclamation declaring May 6 a Day of Prayer in Garrett County. The public is encouraged to attend the Garrett County observance to be held in the Garrett County Courthouse Rotunda at noon on May 6. We hope that our entire community will realize the importance of God's hand in America and will remember, at least on the National Day of Prayer (if not every day), the great opportunity and freedom that we still have in America to come before God publicly and corporately.

Sincerely,
Teresa Domenick

Each year Maryland designates May as Mental Health month, as communities across the state plan awareness activities. Part of the Garrett County Lighthouse Inc. awareness campaign is to keep the public informed of progress on legislative issues that affect mental health services to individuals.

On April 14, 1999, at a press conference on Capitol Hill, Senators Pete Domenici and Paul Wellstone announced the introduction of S.796, the Mental Health Equitable Treatment Act of 1999. This is a bill that ends insurance discrimination against people with serious brain disorders and their families. The bill firmly states that severe mental illnesses are biologically based illnesses of the brain and should be treated like any other medical illness.

The bill provides full insurance parity for the most severe biologically based mental illnesses by prohibiting unequal restrictions on annual and lifetime mental health benefits, inpatient hospital days, outpatient visits, and out-of-pocket expenses. Advocates for the mentally ill are asked to encourage support for this important legislation.

We are pleased to hear that one of the Senate co-sponsors for this bill is Maryland Senator Paul Sarbanes; however, to further ensure passage, more support is needed. Encouragement from those who have first-hand experience with mental illness may help Senator Sarbanes convince other senators to support the Mental Health Equitable Treatment Act. You may write Senator Sarbanes at 332 Dirksen Office Building, Washington, DC 20510.

Sincerely,
Debbie Jo Adams-Noroski

And so, it has come to this. Western Maryland Citizens Against Lawsuit Abuse warns, "Beware, excessive brushing may not only lead to cleaner, whiter teeth, but it may also make you a victim of lawsuit abuse."

The class action suit filed recently in Illinois against several manufacturers of toothbrushes and the American Dental Association for their endorsements is going to cost you money. How? These companies and the ADA now must defend the case; whether they win or lose, we will all pay. The cost of that defense will be passed on to the consumer. Think of it, we can look forward to the $5.00 toothbrush in the future.

This is just another get-rich-quick scheme or another example of personal injury lawyers taking too big a bite out of the civil justice system, just to satisfy their own greed.

The lawsuit claims that toothbrush manufacturers should have put warning labels on their products alerting consumers to the apparent risk of injury (toothbrush abrasion) while brushing one's teeth. An operating manual for a toothbrush? Hopefully, this mess will be spit out and washed down the drain quickly by the courts.

This is another raid on our pocketbooks by personal injury lawyers who are trying to fatten their own. Unfortunately, while this sounds funny, it is no joke.

Sincerely,
Linda C. Irving-Craig

Greetings from Mountain Top Crisis Pregnancy Center. For people who don't know what we offer the community, we offer alternatives to abortion. We reach out with love and compassion to those who need our services. MTCPC believes it is important to educate on the development of a child after conception and how an abortion may affect it, so the client can make an informed decision.

MTCPC offers free services to our clients. Some of those services are: pregnancy testing, counseling, maternity and baby clothes, baby furniture, formula, diapers and baby food, parenting skills, adoption program, post-abortion counseling, and an abstinence program.

The first center opened in Mtn. Lake Park in 1989. There is now a chapter of Mtn. Top CPC in Keyser and Kingwood, W.Va. We are a non-profit, tax-exempt ministry that operates solely on donations and is operated with volunteer counselors.

On May 8, the MTCPC will be holding its annual walk-a-thon. Registration begins at the Loch Lynn Park at 10 a.m., with the walk starting at 10:30 a.m., going out into Pleasant Valley. All walkers will receive a "precious feet" pin. Walkers who raise $150 in pledges will receive a free T-shirt. A picnic will be held for all walkers and their families after the walk.

MTCPC wishes to thank each person who has supported it over the last 10 years. Because of your support, we are able to provide services to thousands of individuals.

For more information, a sponsor sheet, or to support someone who is walking, call 301-334-1058 during the hours of 10-4. Again, thank you for supporting MTCPC.

To the Editor:

I suppose you can say spring is fast approaching. The grass is greening up, the flowers are popping up, and gasoline prices have gone UP!

It seems that no sooner does OPEC say they are going to cut oil production and TV spins the dilemma further, and before your evening news is over, the gasoline retailers have raised pump prices anywhere from 15 to 18 cents a gallon. All in time for the summer vacation-travel season.

While it is easy to blame the retailers, the problem actually lies with big gas producers, such as BP, Exxon, Shell, Amoco, Mobil, etc. Check out their profit earnings for the last 10 years and you would be amazed at the millions in profit they are making. If we pay 20% more for a gallon of gasoline, so do the transporters who deliver our goods, commodities, etc., and the cost of literally everything we consume goes up. Inflation is on its way back and so is the unemployment grate, welfare, etc.

It seems our government is always taking care of other countries' business. It's about time it takes care of America and stops the oil companies from jabbing the American consumer.

One way to fight back is for all of us to drive as little as possible and on weekends stay home and drive even less. The oil tankers will be floating at each harbor unable to load, then an oil glut will lower prices. This all started when Carter was president and we need to put an end to it and fight back. Everyone is hurrying to cruise the Panama Canal, which is another treasure that Mr. Carter gave away for us Americans.

Think about everything from the clothes you wear to the food you eat. Everything you as a consumer need is affected by the price of gasoline. It is certain that everything will rise in price and we are the ones paying the bill for the big gas companies to get richer and richer.

Comments invited.

The Garrett County Literacy Council is a group of dedicated volunteers who teach adults to read. The Garrett County Literacy Council has maintained an office within the Ruth Enlow Library. This office has provided the council with space for teaching materials and with an area for tutoring. The Garrett County Literacy Council has been asked by the board of directors of the Ruth Enlow Library to vacate the office it presently uses at the Ruth Enlow Library.

The Garrett County Literacy Council is now in need of an office that will provide space for teaching materials, an area for tutoring, and an area for our council meetings. Since tutoring sometimes has to be scheduled in the evenings and on weekends, access to an office would need to be able to meet those needs.

The Garrett County Literacy Council operates primarily from donations from generous and giving citizens, churches, and civic organizations. Occasionally, the Council applies for an appropriate grant and sometimes receives federal or state funding. The council does assist meeting its financial obligations through fund-raising.

Basically, the Garrett County Literacy Council is in need of a new location to conduct services. If there is an individual, a group, or a business that has any available accommodations, please contact any of the officers or members of the Literacy Council listed below at the council's telephone number, 301-334-8606. Assisting a non-profit organization such as the Garrett County Literacy Council has many benefits.

MID-SPRING REPORT

The end of spring's first half is at hand. There have been a few days that felt like summer and even one or two that felt like winter. For the most part, however, we have had the admixture of sun, rain, wind, and moderate temperatures, which define spring weather. For those folks who think the seasons are all mixed up, mark down the spring of '99. It seems rather normal to me.

Another thing that is normal about this spring is that I am behind. At the other end of April I was feeling a bit desperate about things, but by the end of last week, my behindedness seemed to have been reduced to manageable proportions.

The beehives have had extra supers on them for the past three weeks, which is rather amazing. My father made a honey extractor for me, which meant that I had empty supers of honeycomb which just needed putting on the hives to be ready.

Of my three hives, one is not faring so well, and I have not had a chance to investigate the reason or to try to remedy whatever is wrong. On the other hand, I haven't lost any bees to swarms, which puts me ahead of where I was both of the past two years.

My little apple orchard had worried me the most because, at the beginning of this month, I had not even begun pruning the trees. As an example of never giving up, I cut a few branches whenever I had the chance, which was not often. Somehow, the pruning got done, and done pretty well too, if I do say so myself.

Just in the nick of time, I sprayed captan, a fungicide, before the trees opened their blooms. In a few days I plan to be back out there spraying captan and imidan at three-quarters petal tall, the most vital spraying in the entire schedule.

At the end of last week the only seeds I had actually planted were tomatoes and peppers, indoors and in the cold frame. This is the time of year when I most appreciate perennial vegetable gardening. Asparagus harvest has started. Sorrel has gone into soups and salads. I have commenced my annual binge on rhubarb. A little weeding and some chicken manure have worked wonders.

Maybe being so seriously behind at the beginning of April was a psychological motivator. For the first time, perhaps ever, I had the lawn mower ready to go when the grass needed mowing. This is such a new experience that I feel a little delirious over it. My son and one of my nephews have actually done the mowing, but then, how else were the apple trees going to get pruned?

There is an ongoing debate between my assistants and me about whether I need a new lawn mower. There is a small problem with reverse in my current mower (it doesn't exist). There are handle bars rather than a steering wheel. The angle of the driver's arms makes operating it less than comfortable. There is nothing on the mower which even approximates shock absorption. The ride is bumpy.

With so much evidence on the side of buying a new mower, it is hard to think of more than one reason not to buy one. That one reason is price. As I have told the boys, we shall just have to make do.

So where are we exactly? We stand between forsythia and daffodils, on the one hand, and lilacs and spirea, on the other. We stand between the expectation of frost and the fear of frost. We stand between the optional planting period and the mandatory planting period. We stand between spring the tease and spring the voluptuous.

This is the time of year when it is equally difficult to imagine the snows of several weeks ago and the drought of August that is sure to come. Life is full of promise at mid-spring, and we have even tasted some fulfillment of that promise.

Editor's note: The following was written by 19-year-old Amber Friend of Oakland, who hopes to become a professional writer. Because of the level of her ambition, coupled with the seriousness of her topic, we are pleased to provide this space for her work. This article will be followed by others in coming weeks that address the growing problem of illegal drug and alcohol use by local young people.

Local Youth Doing Drugs

I recently did a survey among Garrett County teens and conducted an interview with Mark Rodeheaver from the Narcotics Task Force. Many of the parents of teens in this area don't realize what a serious problem this is. I interviewed eight students from Southern High School, and asked various questions about their involvement and reasons why they made the choices they did.

Four boys and four girls participated. Three students were 14, two were 15, two were 16, and one was 17 years old. Seven of those had tried drugs in the past and only one of the seven who had tried doesn't do drugs currently. The most appalling part of my survey was that four of the seven who had tried marijuana now use acid and have tried heroin. One said they do heroin once a week.

When asked why they did marijuana the first time, the majority said the reason wasn't peer pressure, but curiosity. All of the students said their peers started experimenting in middle school. Five of the eight were involved in sports, and on average, had about five hours of free time a night.

I got a variety of answers when I asked where they do drugs. One girl said almost anywhere: at a friend's house where no parent was present, or with her friends on the car ride to school.

Only three of the eight attend church on a regular basis. One of the three was the one who had never tried drugs and says he never will. He claims that he has had various discussions with his parents about drugs and his involvement in church plays a big part in his morals. The other users said their parents started to bring up the subject after these students had already been involved.

The students who are users said they could obtain marijuana in as little as 15 minutes and, at the most, would have to wait a day or two. They get these drugs from kids their own age, and there is a great pressure for young people not to tell of drug activity.

Mark Rodeheaver of the Garrett County Task Force gave some important information on this problem.

Q: Have you seen an increase in teen drug use in this area?

A: Yes, it has increased and we're getting a lot more information about teens using more of the marijuana and some of the acid (LSD) and experimenting with cocaine.

Q: What is the general age group of teens who are using?

A: Mostly ninth and tenth graders and up.

Q: Where do most of your tips come from?

A: Probably about 60 percent come from people who have been questioned after being arrested, and the other 40 percent come from citizens.

Q: Do you think parents know how bad this problem is?

A: It's been my experience that most of the parents really don't know what's going on with their kids and they're not really aware of some of the signs and symptoms of drug use. They could be better educated on the subject.

Q: Could you list some of those signs and symptoms?

A: Change in attitude, dropping grades, a change in appetite, mood swings.

Q: Where do teens get these drugs?

A: Their own age group or several years older; usually associates from school.

I hope this interview and survey opens some parents' eyes on how serious this problem is. If you have a tip and wish to remain anonymous, or if you want to know about some more warning signs and information, feel free to call the Garrett County Task Force at 301-387-9566.

Hafer, Edwards, Taylor, Kelly Present General Assembly Report

Governor Parris Glendening's cigarette tax proposal and all that hinged upon it created a complicated and sometimes divisive closing week of this year's General Assembly, according to four area Maryland state government representatives who held a legislative wrap-up press conference last week. Senator John Hafer, District 1, hosted the event at his Frostburg Funeral Home, which also featured Delegate George Edwards (District 1-A), Speaker of the House Casper Taylor (1-C), and Delegate Kevin Kelly (1-B, Allegany County).

Hafer opened the conference, first discussing Glendening's supplemental budget, which the governor had made contingent upon the passage of a $1 tax increase on tobacco products. Hafer said that ultimatum put the legislators in an awkward position of having to stick to their original vote on the tax issue at the risk of losing key funding for their own projects.

"This resulted in a long filibuster against the tax that lasted several days," Hafer said. "We ended up having to come in on Sunday in order to finish on time Monday." Edwards noted that this was the first time in his state career that he has had to be in session on a Sunday. The final tax increase finally agreed to was $.30.

"The problem with a dollar tax is this: It encourages the bootleg market. It encourages smokers to go right over the state line into West Virginia or Pennsylvania to buy their product," Hafer said. All the lawmakers at the conference voted against the dollar increase, and the four appeared to agree that if such an increase is to be made law, it should come from the federal government.

"That way, every state will be the same and we won't have to worry about the bootleg market," Edwards said. "If we're going to do it, we need to make it national."

Hafer said he was satisfied with the $.30 tax because it is not a radical increase, and therefore will likely keep buyers from leaving the state.

The senator reported he was pleased at the passage of a new truck length bill, extending the allowable length of a vehicle from 55 feet to 62. He said this will help farmers who haul hay and have for many years struggled with the 55-foot law.

"We've wanted this for years, but some powerful legislators in Montgomery County have always killed it. We were very pleased to finally get it passed this year," Hafer said.

He also discussed "One Maryland," the revitalization plan of Taylor's, that did pass into law. It will make available funding for distressed counties, including Garrett, in the recruitment and expansion of businesses. All the legislators pointed to the passage as a victory for western Maryland.

Hafer noted several capital improvement projects to occur in Garrett County, including computer wiring to be funded for Bloomington, Dennett Road, Friendsville, Grantsville, and Kitzmiller schools, and renovations at Swan Meadow. Campus accessibility and improvements will be done at Garrett Community College with an allotment of $200,000, and a new health department is to be built with start-up funds of $867,000.

A sewerage project at Meadow Mountain has been funded ($100,000), as have waterway improvements at Friendsville ($25,000). The town of Oakland received $75,000 toward the purchase of the historic train station.

Taylor spoke after Hafer, stating that western Maryland "had a great session" this year. He mainly spoke of a number of capital projects within Allegany County, but also discussed One Maryland and the proposed "Appalachian Cyberway," a program that will greatly enhance the Internet access system in the western part of the state.

Kelly said the Western Maryland Delegation worked in a "very cohesive manner" and accomplished much. He mainly noted his satisfaction with the passage of a "domestic violence dating relationship" bill. He said this new law will help victims of stalking and harassment far more quickly and decisively.

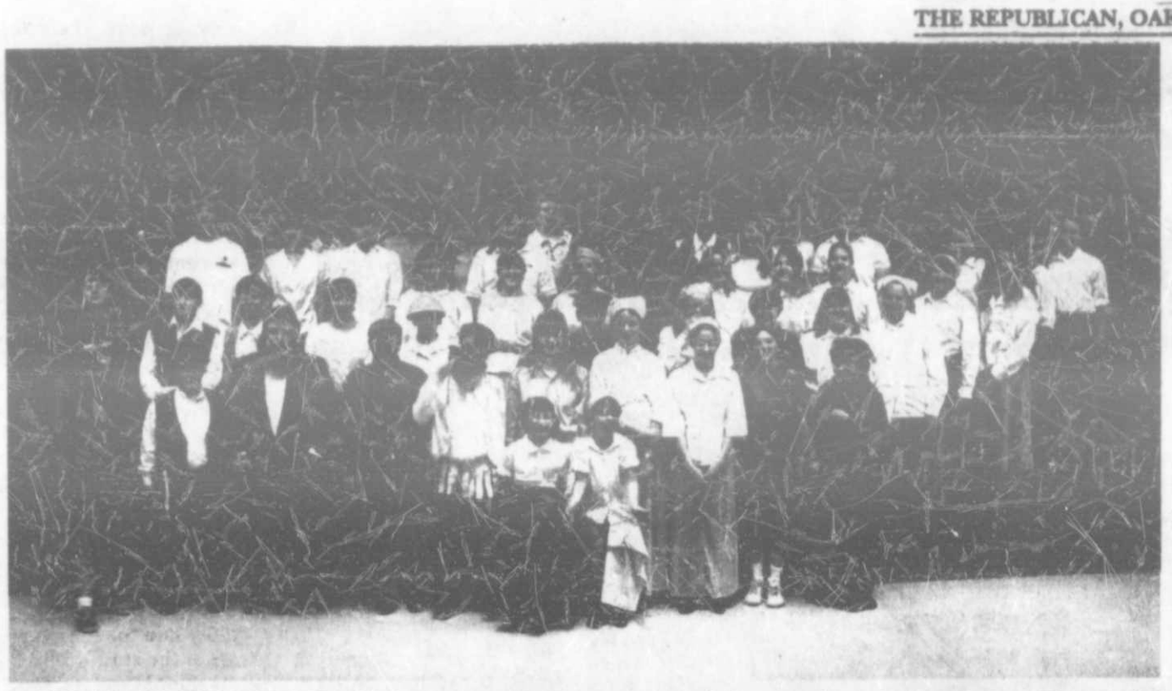
"A petitioner can go to the district court commissioner and file for a peace order. This is served on the wrong-doer immediately, who will be summoned to court within seven days of the complaint. The judge can at that time order the defendant to stay away from the victim for up to six months," Kelly explained. "I am sure we will see a reduction in violence because of this new law."

Edwards was the last to speak, asserting that the Western Maryland Delegation, of which he is the chairman, "is the best delegation in the whole General Assembly."

"We work very well together," he said.

The delegate said he was pleased with the passage of a mining bill he supported. The former law mandated that anyone digging into the earth who hit a seam of coal had to obtain a mining permit to remove the coal. Edwards said the new law will allow for persons to mine the coal without a permit as long as the seam constitutes less than 16 2/3 percent of the total volume.

Edwards also touched on electric deregulation, which will allow customers to choose their own power provider. Customers will be provided with information about how a company's power is produced and how much it costs, and then they can make their own decisions. He said there will be a 3 to 7.5 percent reduction in rates for Maryland residents, although local citizens may not experience a high reduction because the area rates are already the lowest in Maryland.



FIDDLER ON THE ROOF JR. will be presented this weekend by numerous students at Southern Middle School, all under the direction of Sue Harkins. The show is an adaptation of the original Broadway hit and includes several famous tunes, such as "If I Were a Rich Man," "Matchmaker," "To Life," and "Sunrise, Sunset." Tevye will be portrayed by Ben Peracchio and Golde by Christie Hamilton. The daughters Tzeitel, Hodel, and Chava are being played by Kasey Bell, Brittany Naylor, and Lindsey Strubin, respectively, and Jadyn Swerbinsky is the matchmaker. The show will be presented Friday, April 30, and Saturday, May 1, at 7:30 p.m. each evening. Guests are only asked for donations for admission. The musical director for the show is Mark Ravenscroft, and the accompanist is Susan Peterson. Student directors are Melody Friend and Amanda King, and the costumes were headed up by Jann Swiger. Numerous other students, parents, and teachers have helped out with this theatrical endeavor, which is being presented through special arrangement with Musical Theatre International, New York, N.Y. The Garrett County Arts Council provided grant funding for the show, which opens in 1905 in Russia on the eve of that country's revolution, and follows the plight of a Jewish family as their world is turned upside down.

Summit Groups To Hold Review Luncheon Event

The Garrett County Summit work groups will have a quarterly review luncheon from noon to 2 p.m., May 6, at Uno's Restaurant.

During the Garrett County Summit '98 follow-up meeting in December, it was decided that in order to keep the momentum generated during Summit '98, there should be periodic updates on the progress of the seven work groups that are carrying the vision forward.

The work groups are One Stop Shop, Building a HighTech Economy, Building the Tourism Industry into "Real" Jobs, After-School and Out of School Opportunities for Youth, Making Healthy Families the Cornerstone, Measures of Success, and Improving Our Civic Capacity.

During the luncheon, there will be a discussion on exploring additional opportunities to build Garrett County's "community capacity." Guests will also be briefed on the status of the All-American City Application to the National Civic League.

"An exciting development will be the unveiling of a mini-grant program that work groups can apply for to assist them in achieving their goals," said Bob Stephens, summit coordinator. "This program was requested at the December meeting, and we hope that it will encourage and assist work groups."

The cost of the luncheon will be $5 per person, paid at the door. The cost will help cover a pizza buffet, salad bar, and beverages. Anyone interested in joining this partnership of community leaders is asked to RSVP at 301-334-1189 by May 4. This will help the organizers make plans for the meeting.

For more information, persons may contact Stephens at the same number.

Commencement Set At Garrett CC

The 27th commencement at Garrett Community College will be held at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, May 15, in the college gymnasium. This year's graduating class of 116 students will be the largest in the history of GCC, according to registrar Deloris Edgar. The commencement ceremony is open to the public.

The ceremony will begin with the academic processional led by the GCC Pipes and Drums, which will be followed by the invocation by Rev. Donna Lee Shogren. College president Dr. Steve Herman will then introduce the platform party and commencement speaker, the Honorable Susan J. Crawford, judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces.

The award for outstanding contributions to GCC will be presented by Dr. Herman and Rob Michael, vice chairman of the board of trustees. Dr. Lillian Mitchell, dean of academic affairs, will present the candidates for degrees that will be conferred by Doug Sites, chairman of the board of trustees.

At the completion of the ceremony, graduate awards will be announced by Dr. Mitchell and special recognition by Dr. Herman. A reception in the Student Center for graduates and their families and guests will conclude the day's events.

The applicants for graduation are equally divided between those who have applied for associate in arts degrees in transfer programs and those who have applied for associate in applied science degrees in career programs, with 42 in each category. Another 22 students have applied for certificates in one-year career programs. The General Studies program will have the highest number of graduates among transfer programs, with 18 students, while Adventure Sports leads the list of career programs with 14.

MARYLAND TOURISM WEEK PROCLAIMED — The county commissioners and representatives of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce met this week to proclaim the county's participation in Maryland Tourism Week, which is May 2-8. It also states that tourism is a prime contributor toward good will "through reciprocal programs of travel opportunity." In celebration of the week, the chamber will host an open house at the new visitors' center in McHenry on May 7 and 8. Numerous items will be up for auction over the two-day event, with proceeds to benefit the chamber's Kids' Club and its budding scholarship program. See separate story. Pictured seated left to right are Commissioners Wendell Beitzel, Fred Holliday, and Ernest Gregg. Standing in the same order are David Moe, president of the chamber; Diane Wolfe, director of events and promotions; and Ken Wishnick, executive director of the chamber.

After-School Program Seeking Homework Tutors

The Grantsville after-school program needs some community volunteers to help children with homework assignments. The program serves students in elementary and middle schools on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays.

The students attending the program, which is held at the Grantsville Senior Center, are offered a variety of activities and an opportunity to complete school assignments.

Sometimes students need extra help with homework, after-school program teacher Karen Wood said. With the number of children in the class, it is not always possible to give each one individual help, she explained.

Anyone in the community who is interested in helping the after-school program students once or twice a week from 4 to 4:45 p.m. is asked to contact Wood at 301-387-9157.

The Grantsville after-school program is sponsored by Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. in cooperation with AmeriCorps and funded through the HotSpot Initiative.

Cheat River Festival Set In Preston Co.

The fifth annual "Cheat Fest," rated by Paddler's Magazine as one of the two best river festivals in the nation, will be held Friday, April 30, and Saturday, May 1, in Albright, W.Va. The two-day event featuring a whitewater river race and a full day of music, games, and activities for the entire family is organized by the Kingwood, W.Va., based group Friends of the Cheat (FOC) and the West Virginia Rivers Coalition (WVRC) of Elkins, W.Va.

Friday's whitewater river race, the "Cheat River Massacre-ence," will get under way at 5 p.m. on Friday as expert paddlers take to the rapids in the Cheat Canyon for a 12-mile run. Participants must register between 1 and 4 p.m. at the festival site and pay a race entry fee of $20. For further information on the race interested persons can call race coordinator Rob Voorhees at 304-599-9513.

Saturday's events begin at 1 p.m. and continue to midnight, and will include food, games, painting activities, a puppet show, and a raffle, and educational booths and a kids' area. Also scheduled is a silent auction that will feature kayaks, paddles, outdoor gear, and handmade crafts, proceeds from which will go to the restoration and preservation of the Cheat River.

Festival goers may also compete in "Cheat Feat," a trivia contest designed by the FOC that tests knowledge of the Cheat River and the people who protect it. "The game will be fun, easy, and educational, said FOC spokesperson Kerry Manier. "All contestants are eligible for prizes and the grand prize is a raft trip for four donated by Appalachian Wildwater/USA Raft."

Musical performers slated to appear Saturday are the Short Brothers, Keith and Joan Pitzer, the Elktones, the Zucchini Pickers, the Wildwater Band, Minstrel Paul & Cat, Michael and Carrie Kline with Big Bill Dup, Grass Combustion, and Joint Chiefs.

FOC is seeking volunteers to assist before, during, and after the festival. To volunteer, or for further information on the events, interested persons can call Kerry Manier of the FOC at 303-329-3621, e-mail foc@cheat.org, or consult the FOC web site at www.Cheat.org.

The FOC's mission is to restore, preserve and promote the outstanding natural qualities of the Cheat River Watershed. WVRC seeks the conservation and restoration of West Virginia rivers and streams.

EGLON HOMEMAKERS

Eglon Homemakers met at a luncheon on April 20 at the Silver Lake Restaurant for the first time in 1999. Because of illness and scheduling problems, the group had not been able to meet before this date. Members decided to remain mail box members of the CEOs in Preston County, and Rebecca Teets volunteered to teach about "Burnout" at a May meeting. Present were Rebecca Teets, Avenell Parsons, Sandra Hauser, Mary Rembold, Linda Lewis, and Jean Winters. There was no action taken on various communications received during the winter.

98TH BIRTHDAY

When Homer Fike of Eglon celebrated his 98th birthday on April 17, he hoped for 100 cards. He had received far more than that amount, for which he expressed appreciation to all who sent them. He was treated to dinner at Silver Lake Restaurant, then returned home for birthday cake and ice cream, gifts, and pictures. Family members there were children Creola and Stanley Jones, Boonsboro; Stanley and Eloise Harsh, Amboy; Josephine Ashby, Oakland; grandchildren Lee and Rita Gordon, Phillip and Barbara Fike, Peggy Chappell and friend Dennis Buckel, Connie Fint and Sherri Remley; and great-grandchildren, Shelsea, Chad, and Chaundra Remley; his care-givers, Pat Knotts and Audrey Cathell; and friend, Agnes Sigley.

90TH BIRTHDAY

John E. Teets of Eglon was honored by his church on Sunday, April 25, with a covered dish dinner at the Maple Spring Church fellowship hall following regular morning services. He was presented a basket of fruit and given the place of honor with "Happy Birthday" sung for him and for his sister-in-law, Wilma Mae Teets, who observed her birthday on Sunday. John was 90 on April 27. Cards may still be sent to him at Rt. 1 Box 338, Eglon, WV 26716. His son, Leland Teets, and two brothers, Ellis and David, were present. Their daughter, Jane Maye, had visited the previous week, but was unable to attend the celebration.

MISSIONS

Bradley Bohrer, former missionary in Nigeria and now pastor of the Brook Haven Church of the Brethren in Cleveland, Ohio, was the guest speaker for both Sunday School and worship hour at the Maple Spring Church of the Brethren on Sunday, April 25. He reported that while people in the United States find it difficult to keep churches active, churches are growing in such areas as Africa and Central America. He had many of the native daily-use household and garden tools, along with native dress, to display.

PERSONAL MENTION

Shirley Harsh was transferred last Tuesday from Monongalia General Hospital to Garrett Memorial, but her condition remains serious.

Dennis Evans of Terra Alta, son of Wayne and Hora Evans of Hutton and cousin of many in this area, has now been placed on schedule for a bone marrow transplant on May 18 at the Cleveland Clinic. Although no matches were found in his relatives, one was found in the national bank.

Artenis Harsh celebrated his 90th birthday on April 16 at Windy Hill Manor. This week, his family (Joy and Merril Flory, Leroy and Doris Harsh, Johnny Harsh, Robert and Carolyn Harsh) visited him and gathered at the family home in Eglon.

Melvin and Rose Ina Harsh visited Sunday afternoon with his brother, Artenis Harsh, at Windy Hill Manor. Upon their return, they were visited by another brother, Wilmer Harsh, Fort Ashby, who, along with his wife Abbey, had been brought by a friend here with Mrs. Harsh visiting with her friend, Wanda Evans, at Horse Shoe Run.

Melvin R. and Melissa Frantz of Hampton, Va., are spending a week here visiting their parents, Don, Neva, and Missy Frantz, at Eglon and her folks at Gorman. Her mother is ill at this time.

Keith and Delores Douglas returned Friday to their Aurora home. They had spent three weeks in Ohio visiting their children and families: Darrell and Kelly Douglas, Danielle, Amanda and Blake at New Bremen; Teresa and John Downs and Cody at Rockbridge; and Dan and Lisa Smith at North Olmstead. During their absence, Mrs. Douglas's sister, Vada Fusselman, remained in the home with their mother, Leota Elsey, and she returned to her home in Sebring, Fla., on Tuesday of this week.

Louella Fike returned Sunday night to Aurora after visiting in Goose Creek, S.C., with her daughter and son-in-law, Judy and Jim Highberger, and Jimmy, Janice, Jordan, Justin, Jamie, and Jason Highberger. She was taken there by Jimmy and Janice and was returned by her son, Norman Fike, his friend Carolyn of Belington, and daughter Becky of Terra Alta.

Another vacationer returned Saturday to her home in Aurora. Wilda Stemple had spent the month of April with her sister and husband, Beatrice and George Dean, in Walnut Creek, Calif. While there, she had the opportunity to see all of their family. Accompanying her to California were her daughters, Beverly Whetstone of Arthur and Janice Forman of Amboy, who returned to their homes on April 9.

Many of the class of '59 visited relatives this weekend. Ralph and Sharon Hauser were guests of Pat and Adrain Stemple at Aurora. Elaine Stemple was a guest of Mary Jane and Lorraine Hanline, Aurora. Ron and Janet Gauer visited with Thurman and Patsy Nair at Brookside. Joyce and Larry Buckley stayed with Avenell and Ron Parsons. Jim Rembold visited his mother, Wilma Rembold, at Aurora. Ron and Sandy Hanser and his brother, Robert "Buck" Hauser, are staying this week with relatives.

Relatives here have received word that both Marrell and Effie Biser are ill and although Marrell had been hospitalized, both are now at the home of their son, Dayton Biser, in the Washington, D.C., area.

A number of men turned out Saturday to help with the barn at the Terry Hauser farm and women to help with the dinner. For this the T. Hausers and the J. Hausers wished to express their thanks.

God saw you getting tired. And when a cure was not to be, He closed His arms around you and whispered, "Come to me." In tears we saw you fade away. Our hearts were broken; we really wanted you to stay. But when we saw you sleeping so peacefully, free from pain, we could not wish you back to suffer so again.

So keep your arms around them, Lord, and give them special care. Make up for all they suffered and all that seemed unfair.

Southern Girls Still Unbeaten In Track, Field; Capture Area Title

The Southern High girls' track and field team went into last night's Area Meet undefeated on the season, having captured first place in two meets this past week. The Rams whipped cross-county rival Northern last Thursday on their own track, 104.5-31.5, and then topped four other teams at a five-school meet Saturday in Berkeley Springs, W.Va.

Then last night at Beall, the Southern girls continued their unbeaten streak by defeating nine other teams and winning the Area Championship.

Meanwhile, the Southern boys' team also defeated Northern, 80-57, placed second only to Musselman in Saturday's meet at Berkeley Springs, and finished fourth in the Boys' Area Meet on Tuesday, held at Beall High School.

Beth Sauder led the Southern girls against Northern last Thursday, as she finished the day with four first places, while Andi Bender, Jodi Bowser, and Katelyn McBee each recorded three, and Amy Snyder and Angie Sincell each had two.

Sauder won the 800 and 1,600 meter runs and was a member of the winning 1,600 and 3,200 relay teams; Bender won the triple jump and high jump and was on the winning 400 relay team; Bowser won the 100 meter dash, 100 hurdles, and was on the 400 relay team; McBee won the 300 hurdles and was on the 3,200 and 1,600 relay teams; Snyder won the 400 run and was on the 1,600 relay team; and Sincell won the 3,200 run and was on the 3,200 relay team. Becca Gangler was the winner in the shot put and Annie Schrieber won the long jump.

Kristin Lander won first in two events for the Huskies, the 200 dash and as a member of the winning 800 relay team, along with Heidi Pierce, Mariah Geis, and Ashley Warnick, while Trisha Smith won the discus.

Leading the Southern boys with four victories was Eric Rexrode, who won the 800 and 1,600 runs and was a member of the winning 1,600 and 3,200 relay teams. Chad Lovett captured three firsts, winning the 100 and 200 dashes, and as a member of the winning 400 relay team. Getting two victories each were Casey McBee, Mike Paesani, Mickey Chapman, and Keith Steyer.

The Huskies were paced by Craig Kamp, who won the high jump, triple jump, and long jump, and John Carey, who won the shot put and discus.

In Saturday's meet at Berkeley Springs, the Southern girls amassed 185 points to blow away the rest of the field. Musselman was a distant second with 67 points, Berkeley Springs was third with 44, Southern Fulton placed fourth with 39, and Hancock recorded 22.5 to place fifth.

Beth Sauder again finished with four first places, all in the same events as against Northern, while Bowser won the 100 dash, 100 hurdles, and was on the winning 400 relay team; Snyder won the 200 and 400 runs, and was on a winning relay team; McBee was on three winning relay teams; Sincell won the 3,200 run and was on two winning relay teams; Toni Sullivan won the high jump, the long jump, and was on a winning relay team; and Andi Bender, Emily Nemith, and Joy Jackson were each on two winning relay teams.

The Southern boys finished with 107.5 points, as they were edged by Musselman with 113. Berkeley Springs was third with 94, Southern Fulton placed fourth with 44.5, and Hancock was fifth with 25 points.

PERFECT HANDOFFS are an important factor in running a successful relay, and the technique is well demonstrated by both Northern and Southern high school student athletes in the above photo, who met each other last Thursday in competition on the Southern Rams' track. In the background above, Northern's Andy Bowser takes the baton from teammate Matt Kauffman in the 800-meter relay, while Southern's Nick Dolan, foreground, reaches back to receive the baton from Nathan Murphy. The Huskies went on to win the race in a time of 1 minute, 39.3 seconds; however, the Rams won the overall competition, 80-57. The Southern girls, undefeated in the regular season, also defeated the Northern girls, 104.5-31.5. Pictured below in two field events are Southern's Lisa Beck in the shot put and Northern's Toby Gilpin in the discus. See story for details. In the background of the photo above, far left, is Delegate George Edwards, himself a former standout athlete for the Huskies and a collegiate All-American football player at Fairmont State College who was drafted by the Baltimore Colts. Lex Ozias Wins Title In Major Wrestling Event

Lex Ozias, who is a second-year wrestler with the Southern Mat Club, captured a major honor this past weekend, as he won first place in the bantam division (45 lbs.) of the Tournament of Champions, held in Columbus, Ohio.

The tournament is the largest one-day amateur wrestling tournament in the world, as it hosted over 2,900 youth wrestlers from 22 states. Participants had to have placed first, second, or third in qualifying tournaments in order to advance to this event.

There were 26 wrestlers in the bantam weight division, and Ozias pinned all five of his opponents en route to the championship. His final opponent, who was from New Jersey, was the eastern national champion. Lex was trailing in points by a 7-3 margin, but with just seven seconds left in the match, he pinned the top-seeded youth to win the title.

Lex, a kindergarten student at Broad Ford Elementary School, is the son of Darryl and Robin Ozias. He is a grandson of Bob and Bertha Stevens, Swanton, and John and Louise Wilson, McHenry.

On behalf of all the Littles at Big Brothers Big Sisters we would like to thank COPIERS PLUS for being a corporate sponsor of this year's Bowl For Kids' Sake held on April 24.

HOLLY KUHN HONORED BY COMMISSIONERS — Local athlete Holly Kuhn, recent gold medalist of the United States Association's National Snowboarding Championships, was honored this week by the Garrett County Board of Commissioners for her achievement. Commissioner Chairman Ernest Gregg congratulated Holly and said he and his colleagues feel it is important to recognize and celebrate the kind of excellence shown by the young Oakland resident. The 15-year-old snowboarder, who is the daughter of Dennis and Diane Kuhn, won the gold in the giant slalom event and then the silver in the carving competitions. She also brought home a bronze medal for combined events of halfpipe, slopestyle, boarder cross, slalom, and giant slalom in her age group. Lovett was third in the 200 dash, Ted Wolf was third in the 400 dash, Jonathan Price was third in the 110 hurdles, and Southern's 400 relay team was third.

The Southern girls were led in last night's Area Championships by Toni Sullivan, who was the only athlete at Beall Stadium to win three individual titles. She won the long jump with a leap of 15'7.5", the triple jump with a mark of 32'1", and the pole vault with a clearance of 8'. She also finished second in the 100 hurdles.

The Rams finished with a total of 141.5 team points to easily capture the title. Hampshire was a distant second with just under 95 points, followed by Allegany with 85, Fort Hill with 80, Frankfort with 65.33, Keyser with 50, Northern with 25, Beall with 13.33, Mt. Savage with 2, and Bishop Walsh with 0.

Other individual champions from Southern were Andi Bender in the high jump (5'0") and Jodi Bowser in the 100 hurdles (16.95 sec.). Bender won second place in the triple jump, while Amy Snyder earned seconds in the 300 hurdles and 400 run.

Southern won second places in the 3,200 and 1,600 relays, and the Northern girls took a second in the 800 relay.

Snyder was third in the 200 dash, Emily Nemith was third in high jump, and the Ram 400 and 800 relay teams finished third.

"I would have been very pleased if we had just finished among the top three," stated Bill Freyman, the girls' coach. "We knew that Hampshire was going to be tough and we knew that Fort Hill really wanted to beat us. Our kids just did a super job."

The Rams' next meet will be at home next Tuesday against Preston County. They and the Huskies will then compete in the Western Maryland Interacholastic League championships next Thursday at Greenway Stadium in Cumberland.

Southern Softball Team Wins Two Before Falling To Sentinels

The girls' varsity softball team of Southern High School recorded a pair of victories this week before falling victim to visiting Fort Hill yesterday. The Rams blanked host Flintstone last Thursday, 4-0, and then crushed visiting Northern on Tuesday, 14-1, before being edged in their first Western Maryland Interscholastic loss to the Sentinels on Wednesday in Oakland, 3-0.

The results left the Rams with an overall record of 11-2 and a WMIL mark of 7-1.

Jennifer Teagarden went the distance for the Rams against Flintstone, struck out five, allowed five hits, and didn't give up a single run.

The Aggies also had strong pitching from Corey Reed, who struck out four gave up just five hits, including two singles to Ashley Liller, in going the distance.

Lacey McCusker had the only multiple-base hit for the Aggies, a double. The loss dropped Flintstone to 4-6.

Jennifer Bosley and the Rams needed only four and one-half innings to finish off the Northern Huskies on Tuesday, as Bosley tossed a two-hitter and struck out nine in going the distance. She also aided her own cause by smacking a grand slam in the Rams' nine-run third inning.

Amber Upole hit a single and a two-run double, both in the third inning, in which 13 Ram batters went to the plate. The loss dropped the Huskies to 2-9 overall and 1-6 in the WMIL.

The Huskies also lost to Beall and Keyser this week (see separate story).

In yesterday's game against Fort Hill, the Rams just could not get their bats to connect, as Sentinel Carrie Liller fired a one-hitter and struck out nine to up her record to 5-1. She had a no-hitter going into the fifth, but Mika Myers finally connected for a harmless single.

Jennifer Teagarden started on the mound for the Rams and yielded to Jennifer Bosley in the fourth with Fort Hill ahead, 3-0. Bosley struck out six and did not allow any more runs.

Fort Hill scored a single run in each of the first three innings, the first on a fielder's choice by Kristie Stone that plated Anjie Hines, the second on a sacrifice fly by Sarah Moran that scored Tasha Grove, and the third on a sac fly by Grove that brought Stephanie Skidmore home. Skidmore had two of Fort Hill's five hits, both singles.

The Rams had defeated the Sentinels earlier in the season, 3-1, since which time Fort Hill has won 11 straight.

The Southern junior varsity also fell, 13-8, to the Fort Hill jayvees.

The Rams will play again today when they host Allegany in a 4:30 contest. They will entertain Mt. Savage next Tuesday and entertain Beall next Thursday.

The Rams are scheduled to host Allegany this afternoon, entertain Mt. Savage next Tuesday, and host Beall next Thursday.

HUSKIES HOST RAMS - The members of the Northern High School girls' softball team are not enjoying a particularly great season on the diamond, while their fellow Garrett Countians, the Southern Rams, are having an excellent season. The two met each other at the Cove on Monday, and the Rams dominated the contest, 14-1. Above, Southern's Ashley Liller makes contact with a ball pitched by Heather Nugent. Ashley's teammate Nicole Kitzmiller is the base runner at first, being covered by Melissa McKeever. Northern Girls Fall To Beall, Southern Before Topping Keyser

It was a 1-2 week on the softball diamond for the Northern High School girls' varsity, as the Huskies dropped an 8-4 contest to visiting Beall last Thursday, were hammered by rival Southern in Oakland on Tuesday, 14-1, (see other story), and then bounded back yesterday to defeat Keyser, 14-11, at the Cove.

The results dropped Northern's overall record to 3-9 and its WMIL mark to 1-6.

The Huskies never led in last Thursday's game against Beall, as the Mountaineers took a 4-0 lead into the third inning and led 7-4 after six innings. Northern pitcher Heather Nugent was hammered with 19 hits by the Mountaineers, while Beall's Heather Price gave up a dozen hits.

A two-run single by Nicky Williams highlighted the Mountaineers' three-run first inning. They added a single run in the second frame before the Huskies put up two runs in the bottom of that inning on a triple by Mimi Harvey, a run-producing single by Heidi Frazee, and an RBI single by Andrea McRobie.

The Mountaineers responded with three more runs in the top of the fourth, Northern scored two in the fifth, and Beall added an insurance run in the seventh to complete the scoring.

Sarah Bittner paced Beall's hitting with four singles and one RBI, while Williams finished with three singles and three RBI and Abby McCormick hit two singles for two RBI.

Harvey hit a single to go with her triple, and Frazee finished with three singles for the Huskies.

In yesterday's win over Keyser, the Huskies were aided by the Golden Tornado pitcher, Lindsey Staggers, who gave up 13 walks. They also capitalized on a pair of Keyser errors.

After the Huskies spotted Keyser three runs, they tied the score with three runs of their own in the bottom of the fourth. Keyser responded with five runs in the top of the fifth, but Northern came right back with five in the bottom of that inning to make it 8-8. After Keyser went up 10-8, the Huskies sealed their victory by scoring six runs in the sixth by taking advantage of six walks and a passed ball.

Bridget Frazee hit a run-producing triple, and Heidi Frazee and Amy Harvey each hit two singles.

The Huskies were out-hit by an 11-7 margin, with Katie Likens smacking a solo homer, Holly Schopert and Nyssa Bock getting three singles each, and Kari Shobe finishing with two singles.

Heather Nugent went the distance to earn the win on the mound.

The loss dropped Keyser to 8-7.

The Huskies' next game will be played today at home against a tough Fort Hill team. They will travel to Flintstone next Tuesday and play at Westmar next Thursday.

Rams Post Victories Over BW, Savage, Beall, Westmar

The Southern High varsity baseball team is on a roll, as the Rams flattened four more opponents this past week and upped their season record to 9-2. Coach Jim Bosley's squad whipped host Bishop Walsh last Thursday, 14-2, rolled over Mt. Savage on Saturday, 14-1, on the Indians' diamond, crushed visiting Beall on Monday, 12-1, and blanked Westmar yesterday, 8-0, also in Oakland. All four of the games were called early because of the 10-run rule.

The game with Bishop Walsh last Thursday remained close until the fourth inning, when Southern erupted for eight runs to take a commanding 11-2 advantage. The inning featured a three-run homer by Jason Hinebaugh and a two-run double by Mike Shahan.

RBI singles by Eric Perlozzo and Christian Barmoy in the bottom of the first inning gave the Spartans their only lead of the day at 2-1. The Rams answered with single runs in the second and third to take the lead for good. After the big fourth inning, Southern added three insurance runs in the fifth.

Shahan also had a solo homer in the third inning, plus a single to go with his three-run shot, while Jason Rohrbaugh finished with three singles, as did winning pitcher Christian Warfield. Jordan Uphold finished with a double and a single.

Warfield went the distance for the win, allowing seven hits, striking out seven, and walking one. Perlozzo had two hits for the Spartans.

Jason Finch fired a three-hitter on Saturday against Mt. Savage, struck out 11, and allowed only one run in going the distance for the Rams.

Southern jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first, and the score didn't change until the top of the fifth when the Rams scored two more. A seven-run sixth inning led to the game being called after six innings.

Keith Parks, Jason Hinebaugh, and Nathan DiSimone each had two doubles in the Rams' seven-hit effort.

The loss dropped Mt. Savage to 6-5 overall and 2-4 in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League, while it upped the Rams' WMIL mark to 2-2.

It took the Rams only five innings to dispose of Beall on Monday, as they scored one run in each of the first two innings, six in the third, and four in the fourth, while holding the Mountaineers scoreless.

The first two Southern runs were recorded on solo homers by Keith Parks and Josh Bosley.

The Rams' half of the third inning began with back-to-back singles by Uphold and Parks, with Uphold then coming home on an error off a ball hit by Jason Weaver. Mike Shahan then drove home Parks and Weaver with a triple.

Warfield followed with a sacrifice fly that scored Shahan. Bosley then singled and Jason Hinebaugh walked, and John Andrews drove both of them home with a single.

The Rams finished with 10 hits, including two singles and a homer by Parks, a home run and a single by Bosley, and a triple and single by Shahan.

Warfield pitched all five innings for the Rams, allowing just four hits, striking out eight, and walking only one. Derek Yates had two singles for the Mountaineers and Ryan Brodbeck, the losing pitcher, hit a double.

Beall dropped to 4-9 overall and 1-6 in the WMIL, while the Rams improved to 3-2 in the WMIL.

Jordan Uphold pitched all the way for the Rams yesterday to gain the shutout of Westmar, as he scattered five singles, struck out eight, and walked only one in the WMIL match-up.

Mike Shahan put the Rams up 2-0 in the first inning with a two-out, two-run homer, and teammates Nathan DiSimone and Jason Hinebaugh followed with back-to-back single home runs in the fourth inning.

Shahan and Hinebaugh also each had a double, and Billy Stoner hit two singles in the Rams' 10-hit effort against a pair of Wildcat pitchers.

Getting two of Westmar's singles was Dave Ziler.

The Rams will travel to Romney, W.Va., this Saturday for an evening game against Hampshire, slated to get under way at 7 p.m. They will play at Northern on Monday (4:30) and host Mt. Savage next Wednesday.

Huskies Whip Wildcats, Aggies, Spartans To Improve To 8-6

Three baseball outings this past week netted three more victories for the Northern High School varsity team, as the Huskies ripped visiting Westmar last Thursday, 15-7, flattened Flintstone on Monday, 16-0, at the Cove, and topped Bishop Walsh last night in Cumberland, 11-7. The three wins improved the Huskies' overall record to 8-6 and evened their Western Maryland Interscholastic League mark at 3-3.

The Huskies wasted no time taking control of last Thursday's game with Westmar, as they put eight runs on the board in the first inning. Westmar rallied for five runs in the top of the second, and the Huskies answered with three in the third.

The Huskies' first frame featured a two-run homer by Ryan Butler and a solo shot by Jeff Carr. Butler also had a pair of run-producing singles for a total of four RBI on the day. Tim Umbel contributed three singles for one RBI, Josh Henderson hit two singles for one RBI, Matt Settle also singled twice, and Paul Beitzel provided a double.

P.J. Workman tossed the first five innings for the Huskies, allowing seven hits and striking out five. Settle took over in the sixth and pitched hitless ball the rest of the way to record the save.

Wayne Boal hit a solo homer in the fifth inning for the Wildcats, Zach Bittinger had two RBI on a single, and Jim Wills and Jamie Clark each had run-producing singles.

The loss dropped Westmar to 4-8 overall and 1-7 in the WMIL.

Settle was the star for the Huskies in Monday's shutout of Flintstone, as he pitched into the fifth and final inning, allowed five hits, struck out seven, and yielded no runs. Keith Artice came on in the fifth to complete the shutout.

Offensively, the Huskies scored four runs in the first, one in the second, two in the third, and nine in the fourth to coast to victory. Settle aided his own cause with a three-run homer in the fourth inning, and also had a single. Levi Schmuck hit a two-run blast in the first inning and also rapped a pair of singles for three RBI. Corey Sisler hit a solo homer in the second inning and Tim Umbel finished with three singles for two RBI.

Recording two of the Aggies' five hits off Settle was Shawn Spaulding, who had two singles.

Yesterday afternoon's encounter with Bishop Walsh featured a total of 21 hits, with Matt Settle pacing the Huskies in a 10-hit effort. Settle drove in three runs with a double and two singles, while Ryan Butler, Adam Brenneman, and Levi Schmuck each hit a double and a single. Brenneman and Schmuck each drove home two runs, and Butler's double also produced a run.

The Huskies took the lead in the first inning with three runs, added five more in the second, and never trailed.

The Spartans' 11-hit performance was led by Marcus Holly, who homered, doubled, and singled to bring home four runs. Garrett Seward had a triple and three singles, Christian Barmoy, the losing pitcher, hit a home run and a single, and Jared Ronai contributed a run-producing double.

Jeff Carr tossed the first five innings for the Huskies and Josh Hook pitched the final two to get the win over Barmoy. It was the ninth loss in 10 games for the Spartans.

The Huskies are scheduled to host Mt. Savage on Saturday in a 1 p.m. game, entertain Southern on Monday, and host Fort Hill next Thursday.

Lakers Sweep Essex, Baltimore; Then Swept By Anne Arundel

The Garrett Community College baseball team played a trio of doubleheaders this past week and came away with a pair of sweeps before being swept in the third encounter. Coach Ed Wildesen and the Lakers took a pair from host Essex Community College on Saturday, 16-6 and 4-3, whipped Baltimore City CC in McHenry on Sunday, 12-2 and 14-8, and then dropped both ends of a twinbill at Anne Arundel CC on Tuesday, 10-9 and 10-0. The results gave the Lakers an overall record of 19-15.

The Lakers showed no mercy on the Essex pitchers in the first game on Saturday, as they recorded 15 hits. Joe Eisner accounted for three of those hits, including a three-run homer in the fifth inning plus a pair of singles, while Darnell Bratton stroked a two-run shot in the first inning and a run-producing double later.

Lee Pennington provided a triple and a single, Matt DiAngelo hit a double and a single, and also scored four runs, and Tom Mace contributed a pair of singles.

Earning the win on the mound was Brian Tarajack, who pitched the first five innings and then yielded to Chad Ord. The pair allowed a total of nine hits.

Competition was much closer in the second game, as the Lakers found themselves down 3-2 at the end of five innings. But in the sixth frame, Gary Lee went to first base when he was hit by a pitch, and then came home on a triple by Josh Pearson to knot the score at 3-3. A deep fly by Pennington brought Pearson home to record what would be the winning run.

Brian Melnyk went the distance on the mound for the Lakers, allowing five hits, striking out eight, and yielding three walks.

Mace and DiAngelo each had a double and a single to account for four of the Lakers' seven hits. Pennington also had a two-run single to go with his sacrifice fly that scored the winning run.

The first game against Baltimore City on Sunday lasted only five innings, as the Lakers scored two runs in the bottom of the fifth to give them a 10-run margin.

The Red Devils pitching staff aided the Lakers by walking nine batters and hitting three more of them. DiAngelo and Bratton each had two singles in the Lakers' 10-hit performance, while Eisner contributed a double.

Getting two of Baltimore's seven hits off former Northern High School standout Scott Sisler was Bryan Gibbs, who had two singles.

The Lakers were down briefly in the second game, 1-0, after one-half inning, but recorded four runs of their own in the bottom of the first and never trailed.

Lee Pennington rapped a two-run homer in the third inning to give Garrett a 6-1 advantage. Gary Lee hit two doubles and Josh Pearson recorded a double and a single.

The Lakers were out-hit by a 13-8 margin, but left a number of base runners stranded. Abraham Mayrana finished with a double and two singles, while Angel Delatorre had three singles and Victor Romano chipped in with two singles.

Coach Wildesen put four different pitchers into the contest, while Samuel Gomez went the distance for the Red Devils.

In Tuesday's opening game against Anne Arundel, the Lakers had the victory in their hands until the bottom of the seventh inning, when the home team scored three runs to capture the one-run win.

The Pioneers were down 9-7 going into the bottom of the seventh, but Tony Canterna hit a two-run single to knot the score at 9-9. The winning run was scored when the Lakers were unable to take advantage of a double-play ground ball by Chad Gerben with runners at first and second.

Chad Ord went the distance for Garrett and took the loss.

Matt DiAngelo went 4-for-4 for the Lakers with a solo homer and three singles. He also scored twice, while Gary Lee contributed two singles.

Canterna hit a single and two doubles for Anne Arundel and Danny Miller added a solo homer.

In the nightcap it appeared that the successful rally by Anne Arundel in game one just took all of the steam out of the Lakers, as they did not put a run on the board and lost in just four and one-half innings because of the 10-run rule.

A two-run homer in the first inning by Pioneer Scott Simering gave the host team all it would need for victory, but the Pioneers added eight more runs in the third while holding the Lakers scoreless.

Dave Watts fired a two-hitter for Anne Arundel, allowing just two singles, to defeat Mike Maravich, starter for the Lakers. Andy Blackwell and Josh Pearson each had one of the singles.

Miller hit a double and a single, and Gerben had two singles to lead the Pioneers' eight-hit performance.

The Lakers are slated to host Frederick CC in a doubleheader today, beginning at 3 p.m., travel to Baltimore City on Friday for two games, and play a twinbill at Hagerstown on Sunday.

Laker Softball Team Crushed By Catamounts

The women's softball team of Garrett Community College took it on the chin twice last Thursday by dropping a doubleheader to host Potomac State College, 12-1 and 3-1.

The Lakers (0-3) met a pair of strong pitchers, as Brianne McCord upped her personal record to 2-1 in the first game by firing a one-hitter over four innings, and Barbara Kuhl moved to 2-0 by tossing a four-hitter in the five-inning second game.

McCord struck out eight, while Autumn Sell led the Catamounts' hitting with a double and a single. PSC scored 10 runs in the second inning. A single by Anne Shelton in the third inning plated the Lakers' lone run.

Kuhl held the Lakers to just four singles in game two, but Garrett's Alice Larnerd also gave up only four singles in taking the loss.

The Lakers had a 1-0 lead going into the bottom of the third, when the Catamounts tied it. A sacrifice fly by Jen Roderick and an RBI single by Alissa Glotfelty in the fourth inning gave PSC the win.

The sweep upped Potomac State's record to 10-1. The games were only the second and third ever played by a GCC women's team.

GENTLEMEN, START YOUR SPINNERS! - A cash prize of up to $600 could be won by the lucky angler who pulls in "Tiki," shown above nestling in the hands of Jim Ashby, manager of environmental affairs at Mettiki Coal Corporation. The 9½ lb. brown trout was raised at Mettiki's trout-raising facility and stocked into Deep Creek Lake by the Department of Natural Resources on Earth Day. The fish is tagged for easy identification, and "Tiki season," which opens Saturday, May 1, continues through Labor Day weekend. A $500 prize is being offered by Mettiki Coal and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce ($250 from each organization) to the first angler who pulls in the fish, and a $100 bonus is also being offered by Mettiki to that angler in the event he or she chooses to remove the dorsal tag and release her safely back into the lake. Ashby and Tiki are flanked on the left by David Moe, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and on the right by David Thomas, corporate affairs manager at Mettiki.

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

May is the month when Garrett County truly becomes a freshwater fishing paradise. In May, the trout streams are as productive as they ever are and lake fishing is approaching its zenith.

Recently, however, stream fishing has been hampered somewhat by high water levels coming from recent rains. But, these stream flows will abate shortly. As of right now, the best trout fishing will most likely be found in the Casselman. Harold Harsh told us that patterns working well include beadheads, bitch creek, and various egg imitations.

Lake anglers have found spring action brisk. Reports from D & B Outfitters have it that Matthew Whittaker is catching walleyes daily, mostly on grubs.

Walleye hunters looking for success with larger "eyes" might want to consider nocturnal angling, particularly as we move into the summer months of warmer days and more lake activity. Walleye have a low-light visibility advantage over most forms of their prey. Perch and other forage that tend to become inactive at dusk provide easy meals. Walleye often continue their feeding into the night, becoming even more active and aggressive. The larger fish tend to be on the prowl during the time periods of least lake activity. At night, walleyes are often found in shallow waters with good feeding potential. The best shoreline potential will be that near deeper daytime holding areas and will have easy access to prime feeding opportunities. The best shorelines will often have a vertical drop of several feet that creates a wall against which walleyes can corner baitfish. Sloping shoreline offers the baitfish a way to flee into shallower water than walleyes can penetrate. Look for points and coves. Also, "humps" in deeper areas can be sources of active nighttime walleyes.

TURKEY TROPHIES

Here we are talking fishing and its the middle of turkey season. Congratulations are in order for Rick Paugh, who tagged an 18-pound gobbler with a 7.5-inch beard near North Hill, and Don Upole who bagged one with a 12.5 beard (weight unknown) in the Foster Road area. Shawn Nesselrodt was also successful, but we don't have statistics on his bird.

DEER SEASON RECORDS

A recent report from the DNR indicated that Maryland deer hunters produced record harvests in the 1998-99 season. The total deer harvest of 73,570 (72,313 whitetailed deer and 1,257 sika) was a 12 percent increase over last year's 65,519 tally. The statewide bow season total of 16,300 deer established a new record. The total bow harvest increased by 26 percent and the antlerless bow harvest climbed by 37 percent.

The firearms season also set a new record with 41,037 deer taken. This total was one percent higher than 1997 and the antlerless firearm harvest rose by four percent.

The muzzleloader season harvest of 16,233 shattered the previous high of 11,808. The total muzzleloader take climbed 37 percent and the antlerless muzzleloader harvest rose 34 percent.

Two counties had higher harvests than Garrett. These were Frederick with 6,594 and Washington with 5,686. Garrett produced 5,568 with 1,493 from bowhunters; 2,826 in firearms season and 1,249 in muzzleloader.

The DNR now sets hunting season dates on a two-year cycle and the 1999-2000 seasons are in the second year of this cycle. Maryland's deer bow season will open on September 15, 1999, and close on January 31, 2000. The deer firearm season will run from November 27, 1999, through December 11, 1999. The early segment of the deer muzzleloader season will be October 21, 22, and 23, 1999, while the late segment opens on December 18, 1999, and closes January 1, 2000.

Cash Prize Set For Catch Of Mettiki Trout

In celebration of Earth Day, Mettiki Coal Corporation in partnership with the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce have announced the release of "Tiki," a 26-inch, 9½-pound brown trout, into the waters of Deep Creek Lake. Tiki was released by the Department of Natural Resources in an undisclosed part of the lake on Earth Day, April 22. A $500 prize is being offered to the first fisherman who can catch Tiki between May 1 and September 6. Mettiki Coal Corporation and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce have each donated $250 toward the prize. In the event that Tiki is caught and not released, she should be taken to Johnny's Bait House at Deep Creek Lake for the verification process.

The catch of Tiki must be positively verified before the reward can be received. For those catch-and-release enthusiasts, Mettiki will pay an additional $100 bonus to any fisherman who can manage a verifiable capture, removal of the tag, and safely release Tiki back into Deep Creek Lake. Only a one-time reward and bonus is being offered during this period, and the trout can be positively identified by a fish tag located behind her dorsal fin.

Tiki has spent the last four years of her life as an escapee from the Department of Natural Resources' net pens at the Mettiki Trout Raising Facility, and growing in the waters of the polishing pond at Mettiki's Water Treatment Plant.

Since 1993 when this project began, the DNR has released over 180,000 brown, rainbow, and cutthroat trout that have been raised at the Mettiki facility into area streams in Garrett and Allegany counties. This cooperative project has gained worldwide attention as being the first such facility to raise trout in the effluent of an active coal mine's acid mine drainage treatment facility. The project has been featured in various sports magazines such as Field and Stream and Fly-Fisherman as well as numerous mining industry magazines and newsletters.

"Earth Day is a celebration of our natural resources," said David Thomas, corporate affairs manager at Mettiki. "Garrett County is blessed with many natural resources. We can mine our minerals, harvest our forest, farm our lands, and conserve our natural beauty if we do it right and work together. In developing this trout-raising project, Jim Ashby, our manager of environmental affairs at Mettiki, and Mike Dean, the DNR hatchery manager, have shown how the coal industry can be a partner to the environment as well as the tourism industry."

"Mettiki's Trout Raising Facility is a unique and exciting project and is an ongoing example of how the community can benefit when a Garrett County business and state government work together," said David Moe, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

On behalf of all the Littles at Big Brothers Big Sisters we would like to thank WKHJ for being a corporate sponsor of this year's Bowl For Kids' Sake held on April 24.

Maryland Deer Season Breaks State Records

Hunters took a record number of deer during Maryland's 1998-99 deer season, Department of Natural Resources Secretary John R. Griffin announced recently. The total deer harvest of 73,570 (72,313 white-tailed deer, 1,257 sika deer) was a 12 percent increase over last year's tally of 65,519 deer.

"Changes in deer hunting regulations this year successfully increased deer harvests in areas with high or rapidly growing deer populations," Griffin said. "In addition, we succeeded in increasing the antlerless deer harvest in those areas, which is key to controlling population increases."

Wildlife biologists manage deer numbers through the harvest of antlerless deer. Deer bag limits were changed to encourage hunters to take antlerless deer in central and southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore. The total antlerless deer harvest climbed by almost 25 percent in these areas.

The statewide bow season total of 16,300 deer established a new record. The total bow harvest increased by 26 percent and the antlerless bow harvest climbed by 37 percent. In Garrett County 870 antlered deer were taken by bow and 623 antlerless deer, for a total of 1,493.

The firearms season also set a new state record with 41,037 deer taken. This total was one percent higher than 1991, and the antlerless firearm harvest rose by four percent. A total of 2,826 deer were taken by firearms in Garrett County, 2,113 antlered and 713 antlerless deer.

The muzzleloader season harvest of 16,233 shattered the previous high of 11,808. The total muzzleloader take climbed 37 percent and the antlerless muzzleloader harvest rose 34 percent. In Garrett County 670 antlered and 579 antlerless deer were taken by muzzleloader, for a total of 1,249.

Statewide, the top five counties with the highest total deer harvest were Frederick (6,594), Washington (5,686), Garrett (5,568), Allegany (5,051), and Dorchester (3,976).

In response to hunters' concerns regarding predictability of hunting season dates, and to allow for better data analysis for wildlife management decisions, DNR now sets hunting season dates on a two-year cycle. The 1999-2000 seasons are in the second year of this cycle. Maryland's deer bow season will open on Sept. 15, 1999, and close on Jan. 31, 2000. The deer firearm season will run from Nov. 27 through Dec. 11, 1999. The early segment of the deer muzzleloader season will be Oct. 21, 22, and 23, 1999, while the late segment opens on Dec. 18, 1999, and closes Jan. 1, 2000.

Maryland's 1998-99 deer hunting regulations established four Deer Management regions. Each region has independent deer bag limits to enhance efforts to tailor deer management to the needs of local communities.

Agency To Host Medicare+Choice Provider Training

Community Action Committee's Area Agency on Aging will host a training for providers on Medicare +Choice on Monday, June 7, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. at the Grantsville Senior Center. The presenter will be William F. Benson of the Benson Consulting Group Inc.

The topics to be addressed include: Balanced Budget Act of 1997, Traditional Medicare, New Options, Qualified Medicare Beneficiary Program, and the Managed Care/HMO Market. A spokesperson said the training will be most valuable to individuals working with the elderly, including physician's office staff, home care staff, information specialists, and other similarly employed persons.

Benson has 26 years of leadership and national recognition in various key administrative, policy, and legislative roles at the national, state, and local levels. Until April 1 of 1998, he served as the acting principal deputy assistant secretary for aging at the Administration on Aging (AoA) within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. He was for much of 1997 the acting head of the AoA and was originally appointed in 1993 as deputy assistant secretary of AoA. Benson's responsibilities at AoA included managing the agency's role in Operation Restore Trust, the administration's major Medicare and Medicaid anti-fraud and abuse initiative, the Office of Government Affairs and Elder Rights, long-term care and disability policy, international initiatives, and numerous other agency initiatives.

Prior to joining the administration, Benson had a successful consulting business. Among his clients were the National Association of State Ombudsman Programs, the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys, and the Nutrition Screening Initiative. He spent eight years in various staff capacities in the U.S. Congress, including staff director of the Subcommittee on Aging of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, staff director of Consumer Interests of the House Select Committee on Aging, and with the Senate Special Committee on Aging. The spokesperson said he played a major role in the 1987 and 1992 amendments to the Older Americans Act, the OBRA '87 nursing home reform legislation, numerous Medicare and Medicaid provisions, women's health, pension, and other initiatives.

The training is made possible through the support of the Maryland Department of Aging, in partnership with the Maryland Association of Area Agencies on Aging. Although the training is free to providers, it is limited to 25 individuals, and early registration is suggested. To register, persons may contact the AAA at 301-334-9431. Registration is open until June 1, or until full capacity is reached.

ule their individual collection events with Love's office. All municipalities that presently utilize the county landfill for the disposal of routine curbside refuse are eligible to take part in the bulk collection.

The event will be for one collection per household. Acceptable items include white goods, furniture, and other household items that are not normally accepted in the regular curbside collection programs of the towns. White goods, metal, and construction/demolition debris must be segregated from household refuse in order that all the garbage can be properly disposed of and/or recycled, Love noted.

Unacceptable items are commercial waste, liquid waste such as containers of paint, tires, batteries, large automobile parts, yard waste, stumps, and large quantities of construction/demolition debris (over 100 pounds per household). Also prohibited for the collection will be refrigerators, freezers, air conditioners, dehumidifiers, or any other appliance containing refrigerant.

For more information, persons may contact Love at 301-387-0322.

Boynton Church Of God Sets Welcome For New Pastor

The congregation of the Boynton Church of God in Boynton, Pa. (located along Route 219 between Meyersdale, Pa., and Salisbury, Pa.) has set a Pastor Appreciation Day for Sunday, May 2, to welcome new full-time pastor Robert R. Furr. The event will begin with the 10:30 a.m. worship service featuring a guest speaker and special music, followed by dinner.

Furr, a native of West Virginia and a Morgantown, W.Va., resident, has served as pastor for churches in West Virginia and Pennsylvania. He is the founder and president of Faith Defenders, an evangelistic missionary ministry that reaches throughout the eastern United States and sponsors missionary efforts worldwide.

A 1979 graduate of Bible Trading Institute in Cleveland, Tenn., Furr was awarded a citation of merit from the Pennsylvania House of Representatives in 1983 for his work in ministry and public involvement. He was a volunteer firefighter and ambulance technician for several years, serving several communities in northern West Virginia and western Pennsylvania. During his last pastorate in Kittanning, Pa., he served on the board of directors for the Christian Broadcasting Company.

Persons interested in securing transportation arrangements for the event can call the church at 814-662-4506.

MAY IS MENTAL HEALTH AWARENESS MONTH and the Garrett County Lighthouse Inc. board of directors is participating in the month-long celebration with a variety of activities. The first was to join with the county commissioners this week to publicly proclaim the observance. A proclamation signed by the elected officials states in part that mental illnesses are chronic and disabling brain disorders that affect more than 2 million Americans each year. A mental illness impairs an individual's ability to think clearly, control emotions, make decisions, or relate to people, including family members, the document states. With appropriate medications and support services, persons suffering from mental illnesses can, the document states, "reclaim full and productive lives." The Lighthouse is entering its seventh year, and the local theme for Mental Health Awareness Month is "Get on the Carousel of Life." The board members have planned a host of events, including outreach at all local libraries, mental health videos, a family day picnic, and a mental health carnival. For more information, persons may call 301-334-9126. Pictured seated left to right are Commissioners Wendell Beitzel, Fred Holliday, and Ernest Gregg, chairman. Standing in the same order are Lighthouse board members Bobby Andersen, secretary; Betty Malloy, board member; Donna Gregory, program coordinator; Martha Jachowski, president; Wayne Johnson, vice president; Debbie Jo Noroski, executive director; and Peggy Nelson, board member.

LOST & FOUND

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 1:35

There are some who are referring to Lost & Found as the "sequel" to There's Something About Mary. This is paying it a compliment. Although the film is cute, and SNL-alum David Spade is in good comedic form, it's really just a run-of-the-mill romance that lacks the sheer outrageousness of Mary. For Spade it's a safe move, placing him in his first romantic leading role (and therefore widening his avenues for future projects), but still keeping close ties to his patented ascerbic style. Opposite him is beautiful French actress Sophie Marceau, whose American appearances have mainly been limited to Braveheart and the upcoming star studded event, Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream.

Directed by Jeff Pollack (Booty Call) and written by newcomers James B. Cook and Marc Meeks, this film follows a tried and true formula, and the plot does share some similarities with the aforementioned Mary. Dylan, the funny/nice guy (Spade), who is part-owner of a fledgling L.A. restaurant, falls in love with his drop dead gorgeous next-door neighbor, French cellist Lila Dubois (Marceau), who at first glance seems to be completely out of his league. He must compete for her affections with a handsome, rich (and superficial and nasty) former lover, Rene (Patrick Bruel). Dylan tries to impress her with good deeds and sincerity, but he makes a mistake that causes her grief and Rene exploits the situation.

Central to the story is Lila's Benji-esque dog Jack, a habitual wanderer. In order to get a little quality time with Lila, Dylan kidnaps the pooch and holds him in his apartment while he and Lila search the neighborhood. The plan is to get her alone for a while, sell himself to her with charming repartee, and then "find" the animal, further winning her over. But while they're out walking, Jack eats (or hides, or does something with) the wedding ring entrusted to Dylan by his restaurant partner Mark (Mitchell Whitfield). Until he can determine the whereabouts of the ring, Dylan can't let the dog out of his sight. He enlists the help of one of his emloyees, Wally (Artie Lange, MadTV), but Wally's attempts to help usually just exacerbate the situation.

Meanwhile a few subplots are thrown in: Lila wants to be a professional cellist; she has the talent but not the nerve or connections. Dylan and Mark are trying to get a loan to keep their restaurant afloat; Mark's cooking is excellent but they have no established credit. Bank president Mr. Millstone (Martin Sheen in a very brief performance) tells Dylan he must show he has integrity before he'll give him the money, so in the final reel he's working on two fronts, trying to prove himself both to Lila and to Mr. Millstone.

This movie is the very definition of fluff. It's funny at times, especially when Spade is doing his comedic thing, but overlong for its style. During the plot machinations, when Spade is not on screen, one's mind tends to wander toward more interesting things, like groceries, laundry, and how to deal with that nasty fungal infection. Spade seems uncomfortable in the especially poignant scenes; when he was kissing Lila he looked painfully self-conscious, like a school kid kissing for the first time, about to giggle and spoil the mood. But for a no-risk effort designed to allow him to get his romantic feet wet, Lost & Found adequately fills the bill. ★★★½

GO

Rated R - Running time: 1:43

In the glut of mindless teen films out lately, it's nice to see one that has some intelligence to the script. Go, written by John August (God) and directed by Doug Liman (Swingers) is tense and blackly humorous, but violent and disturbing, too; Liman and August are obviously patterning it after the style of Quentin Tarantino.

The film is divided into three parts, depicting the same timeline as seen from three different characters' viewpoints (a Tarantino trademark). The first act, titled "Ronna," tells the story of Ronna Martin (Sarah Polley), a supermarket clerk in L.A. who gets into trouble when she agrees to supply two guys named Adam and Zack (Scott Wolf & Jay Mohr) with 20 hits of ecstasy. Their normal drug connection is Ronna's co-worker Simon (Desmond Askew), but he's gone to Vegas for the weekend with some friends; Ronna is covering his shift. So, against the advice of her friends Claire (Katie Holmes) and Mannie (Nathan Bexton), Ronna goes directly to Simon's supplier, a very sinister young man named Todd (Timothy Olyphant). But when she goes to make the delivery, she senses a trap set by an undercover cop (William Fichtner). She wastes the drugs, but not before Mannie samples some for himself. Then she's in hot water with Todd, and Mannie is tripping the night away.

Act 2, titled "Simon," begins at the same moment when Simon asked Ronna to work his shift for him so he could go to Vegas. It follows him and his friend Marcus (Taye Diggs) on a wild tour of that glittering city. There, he loses his money, has sex with two wedding guests, starts a fire, steals a car, abuses an exotic dancer, and shoots a man before heading home on the lam from the police and some other angry people.

Act 3, "Adam and Zack," shows us their end of the drug deal: a setup with undercover detective Burke (Fichtner) to catch Simon and Todd. The only reason Adam and Zack, a pair of gay lovers who act professionally on the same soap opera, made the deal with Burke is to clear them of their own drug charges. After the abortive attempt to bust Ronna, they end up at Burke's house in a bizarre digression from the story. Eventually, almost all of the above characters attend the same party and each has his or her own harrowing experience.

The acting is very convincing throughout this highly populated movie, and the script has bite and occasional humor. The cleverest thing is the device of following multiple paths through the same time period, but it's been done in Resorvoir Dogs, Pulp Fiction, Jackie Brown, etc., etc.

Surprisingly, the film does not turn out as badly for its numerous characters as it could (and, in fact, probably would if this were a Tarantino film), but I'm not sure this is such a good thing. The message seems to be that drug abuse, life-threatening behavior, and lawlessness have no serious consequences and merely lead to a weekend of fun and adventure. This attitude is made clear in the final line of the film, after all the events of Christmas weekend have played out: "So, what are we going to do for New Year's?" ★★★★

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER PROCLAIMED — Garrett County will join the country in observing May 6 as the annual National Day of Prayer, and a document stating this was signed Tuesday by the county commissioners. The document states that it is "fitting and proper that we in Garrett County observe a day when all our community may acknowledge our many blessings and express gratitude to God for them," and that the "power of prayer and the power of God through prayer have been the core of shared American experience throughout history." Local participation will include a prayer observance at noon in the courthouse rotunda on May 6, to which the public is invited. An observance will also be held that day 7-7:45 a.m. at the Old Mill Restaurant in Friendsville, and then at noon in the Friendsville Town Hall. Pictured seated left to right are Commissioners Wendell Beitzel, Fred Holliday, and Ernest Gregg, chairman. Standing in the same order are Rev. Mel Menker, Kathy Skipper (event organizer), Rev. Spring Cleaning Items Welcome At Christian Crossing

As local residents work to spring-clean their homes, they are reminded by members of the Garrett Cooperative Ministry Inc. that good used furniture and accessories are welcome at the Christian Crossing Thrift Shop in Loch Lynn.

The shop is a creation of the Garrett Cooperative Ministry as an answer to a county need for a collection/distribution facility to help out residents of limited needs, or to attend to persons in crisis. Volunteers sort through the hundreds of bags and boxes of clothing, household items, linens, dishes, toys, sporting goods, and furniture donated to the thrift shop. The items are then arranged and displayed on shelves, to be sold at nominal prices to persons who, for whatever reason, cannot afford to purchase new things.

Currently the shop is well-stocked with clothing, but good used patio and lawn furniture would be welcomed, as well as other household furniture and appliances. Household items such as lamps, dishes, pots, pans, flatware, glassware, drapes, and other items would also be appreciated.

The shop organizers are also constantly in need of more volunteers to help out at the non-profit establishment. Every church in the county is urged to designate a coordinator and encourage members to volunteer their time to assist with the various duties of the thrift shop. Persons may call the shop at 301-334-6339.

The operating hours of Christian Crossing are as follows: Tuesdays and Thursdays, 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.; Thursdays, 5-7 p.m.; and the first and third Saturdays of each month, 9 a.m. until noon.

NATIONAL CRIME VICTIMS' RIGHTS WEEK is in progress, April 25-May 1, and several victims' advocates met with the Garrett County commissioners to proclaim the county's observance of the designation. The proclamation signed by the three officials states that every individual has the right to live "free from fear and harm" and that while most crimes are on the decrease in the nation, residents still experienced nearly 35 million criminal victimizations (including 9 million violent crimes) in 1997. The proclamation states that during this week, the "powerful voices of victims and those who serve them" are being commemorated with the theme of "Victims' Voices: Silent No More." The document also states that the voices of victims offer "important insights into the personal pain and loss that victims endure, and are voices that deserve our nation's attention and respect." Pictured seated left to right are Commissioners Wendell Beitzel, Fred Holliday, and Ernest Gregg. Standing in the same order are Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney; Maj. Gary Berkebile, Garrett County Sheriff's Office; Sgt. R.C. Resh, Maryland State Police Barrack W; Carolyn Hegeman, victim/witness assistance coordinator with the state's attorney's office; Barbara Smith, domestic violence victim advocate with the Garrett County Division of Parole and Probation; and Brenda LeMay, victim advocate with the sheriff's office.

Oakland Man Sentenced For Nov. Assault

An Oakland man was handed a three-month suspended sentence in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings after he pleaded guilty to second degree assault.

William Eugene Shreck II, 20, had been arrested in November by the Oakland City Police Department after he allegedly forced his way into a female acquaintance's apartment and struck her. District Court Judge Ralph M. Burnett handed Shreck a 90-day suspended sentence, levied a $50 fine, and placed him on one year of supervised probation. Additional charges of trespassing and harassment were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

In other district court news, a charge of possession of a controlled dangerous substance/methamphetamine faced by Robert William Field, 38, Bethesda, was placed onto the stet docket with the stipulation that he complete 50 hours of community service.

Field was arrested in June 1997 after a search by officers of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms and the Maryland State Police. He was taken into custody when he was found inside the mobile home residence, located in the 3500 block of Accident Bittinger Road, where he was reportedly staying as a guest.

Charges of stalking, harassment, and telephone misuse faced by David Scott Meier, 19, Terra Alta, W.Va., were stetted as well. Meier's November arrest by Garrett County sheriff's deputies came after it was alleged that he repeatedly followed a female acquaintance and repeatedly called her Deer Park residence.

Charges faced by Ronald B. Smith, 23, Oakland, who was accused of disturbing the peace and two counts of malicious destruction of property, were stetted. Smith had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in February after he reportedly threatened a female acquaintance and destroyed property in her residence in Deer Park.

Charges of harassment and trespassing faced by Daniel James Meese, 31, Frostburg, were placed onto the stet docket. Meese had been arrested by Allegany County sheriff's deputies in December after he allegedly pounded on the door of a Finzel residence on one occasion and followed the resident in his car on another occasion.

Kenneth George Wiley, 19, Accident, was found in violation of probation that had stemmed from a pair of driving while intoxicated (DWI) convictions. A pair of 15-day sentences were reimposed and ordered to be served concurrently. His probation was revoked as well.

Delmar Elvis Moats, 20, Oakland, was found in violation of probation that had stemmed from convictions of second degree assault, attempting to elude an officer, and "contributing to the condition of a child." Three four-day sentences were reimposed and ordered to be served concurrently.

William Scott McKenzie, 23, McHenry, was found in violation of probation stemming from a disorderly conduct conviction. A two-day sentence was reimposed and his probation was revoked.

A sentence revision was granted to Carl Wesley Tyler, 39, Uniontown, Pa., who had been convicted of second degree assault and malicious destruction of property. His combined sentences were revised a four year sentence, all but 15 months of which were suspended.

Three counts of second degree assault and one count of disorderly conduct faced by Nathan Gene Sisler, 25, McHenry, were not prosecuted. Sisler had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in September for allegedly assaulting two people inside their Friendsville area home.

Michael Sean Ray, 19, Oakland, was not prosecuted on charges of second degree assault and disorderly conduct that stemmed from his March arrest by Oakland City police officers after an alleged fight.

Charles William Eavenson, 45, Camp Hill, Pa., was not prosecuted on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia which had stemmed from his August arrest by Maryland state troopers after a traffic stop on I-68.

John Edward Herman, 32, Washington, D.C., was not prosecuted on possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia charges stemming from his December arrest by Maryland state troopers after an I-68 traffic stop.

Midway Plaza Scene Of Thefts, Trespass Arrests

This week the Midway Shopping Plaza was the scene of a trio of thefts from soda machines and, in an unrelated incident, a pair of trespassing arrests, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Thieves took a large amount of coins from three soda machines at the shopping plaza, located at Weber Road and Maryland Highway, apparently with the use of a pass key. The first thefts occurred between Sunday and Monday from two machines standing in front of Midway Liquors. They appeared to have been entered with a key after a metal bar covering the keyhole had been pried loose, and $125 in coins and $25 in coins were taken from the respective machines.

The third theft, reported yesterday, occurred during an unknown time frame from a machine at the Southern Car Wash on the Oakland Drive side of the plaza. Again, a key appeared to have been used, and approximately $70 was taken from that machine.

The trespassing arrests occurred on Monday when a pair of females who had been previously warned by deputies not to loiter in the parking lot were located there once again. The two 18-year-olds, Shannon Dawn Burnside, Oakland, and Bonnie Michelle Stone, Pittsburgh, Pa., were each charged with trespassing and failure to obey a lawful order. Both subjects were released on their own recognizance.

In other sheriff's news, a Friendsville man was arrested yesterday evening in the 900 block of Old River Road. Carl Burt Sliger, 31, faces a charge of disorderly conduct stemming from an alleged incident where another party harassed one of his family members. Sliger was released on his own recognizance.

Several subjects were arrested by sheriff's deputies for driving while intoxicated.

Jackson Samuel Green, 59, Lonaconing, faces charges of DWI, driving on a revoked license, failure to drive to the right of center, and an alcohol violation. He was released on his own recognizance. Randle Gayle Ashby, 44, Oakland, was charged with DWI and driving on a revoked license, and was released on his own recognizance. Warren Lee Vanculin, 29, Millington, faces a DWI charge.

A stereo amplifier was taken from a car parked in the 1200 block of Hutton Road between Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. Access appeared to have been gained through a previously broken window, and taken was an 18-inch Rockford Punch 40 amplifier, black body with red lettering, valued at $300.

The old IGA store on Maryland Highway was the scene of the theft of three condensing/cooler units sometime earlier this month. The theft was discovered Friday, and no loss estimate was available.

HONORING TOWN EMPLOYEES - In honor of Municipal Government Week, Oakland mayor Asa McCain presented certificates of appreciation and gift certificates to employees with more than 20 years of service to the town. The mayor said that he and the town council recognize that the quality of its employees is vital to the quality of services provided to residents. Pictured from left to right are Roger Thomas, street superintendent, over 30 years of service; Mike Virts, assistant water superintendent, over 20 years of service; Willie Thomas, street department, over 20 years of service; Mayor Asa McCain; Jay Moyer, supervisor of waste water management, over 20 years of service; Albert DeWitt, assistant superintendent of the street department, over 25 years of service; and Randy Sharpless, water superintendent, over 25 years of service. Not pictured was Roger Lewis, Oakland Police Department, over 25 years of service.

eral Highway Administration in regard to a $500,000 funding request for federal help in undertaking a multi-state study to improve north-south interstate highway corridors in Appalachia. The proposed study would examine U.S. Routes 219, 220, and other possible corridors in an area bounded by the Maryland-West Virginia line to the west, Interstate 68 to the north, Interstate 81 at the east, and the proposed Corridor H to the south in West Virginia.

The corridor planning study proposal has been endorsed by Governor Parris Glendening, House Speaker Cas Taylor, and U.S. Senators Paul Sarbanes and Barbara Mikulski, among others, according to published reports. Last summer Taylor reportedly urged the Garrett and Allegany county state delegations to seek state support for the study.

Parker Williams, Maryland SHA administrator, has been quoted as saying the goal is to identify a route for a "well thought-out, coordinated and justifiable highway system of national significance, which will promote economic growth and provide for international and interregional trade."

In a related matter, Taxpayers for Common Sense put West Virginia's Corridor H proposal at the top of its nationwide list of "the Road to Ruin Top 10," citing possible damage to the Monongahela and George Washington national forests, civil war battlefields, and that state's agriculture industry and small towns in the area of the highway. The 100-mile stretch of interstate highway is estimated by the group to have a $1 billion price tag, which calculates out to $10 million per mile.

Wal-Mart Story

formed who their client is. A lot of times companies come to us and we don't know who they represent.

"This is the second time we've read that we're negotiating with a South Carolina development company or Wal-Mart, and that is not true. We are not a negotiating party," he reiterated, "nor have we any knowledge of any Wal-Mart proposal other than what we've read in the paper."

The 65-acre parcel in question that is being advertised by Railey Realty lies on the east side of Garrett Highway, across from Food Lion on the east side of old Route 219. It is owned by First National Bank Trustees, Oakland, in a deed dating back to 1973, and has been for sale "for a number of years," Weissgerber said.

The property has apparently gained the attention of Wal-Mart of late, as a conceptual site plan for a "152,415 square foot Wal-Mart Supercenter" was prepared by Freeland and Kauffman Engineering of Greenville, S.C., last November. When asked in March if his firm was owned by Wyatt Development of Aiken, S.C., and if Wyatt was proposing to put a store on that site, Kim Kauffman, co-owner of Freeland and Kauffman, told The Republican that "although we are not affiliated with Wyatt Development, I believe they are working on that project."

A traffic study conducted in mid-February by Robert Morris, a self-employed traffic consultant based out of Bethesda, has been submitted to the Maryland State Highway Administration for review and comment. Morris, who told The Republican that he has conducted traffic studies for several Wal-Mart proposals in Maryland in the past, said that his study revealed traffic counts that were favorable to other traffic counts he undertook where a Wal-Mart was eventually constructed.

In March, a crew from Freeman Engineering conducted survey work on the parcel for what they called a "retail project," and stated that the survey was being conducted at the request of Wyatt Development.

Over the past several weeks, a crew from S&ME Engineering, headquartered in Raleigh, N.C., with offices in several southern states, has been conducting hydrological and geological testing of the water and soil on the same site. Such testing would be required of any development project to note the potential a site has for supporting man-made structures such as buildings, parking lots, and roadways, as well as expected effects on the environment.

The property is among the parcels that the town of Oakland is seeking to annex. Barring a citizens' petition to force the issue to referundum, the annexation resolution will likely become effective in the first week of June, 45 days after it was passed by the Oakland Town Council on April 19.

HUSKY Notes

by Lester Lewis
NHS Viking reporter

• Josten's will be distributing graduation supplies on May 3 during lunch shifts. All remaining balances must be paid at this time.

• Robert Yunker was recently named Garrett County's Teacher of the Year.

• Northern Garrett High School, a rural high school with a population of 533 students, is concerned with the safety of its students and will do everything possible to ensure that students are safe while at school.

Northern Garrett developed a Building Safety Committee as a result of a string of national school shootings during the 1997-98 school year. The BSC maintains a pro-active approach to school safety instead of a reactive approach. The pro-active approach attempts to prevent violence from occurring.

The BSC has taken steps to improve safety. The major changes include banning backpacks from classrooms, the use of agenda books, and visitors' ID badges to inform school staff concerning who is and who is not cleared to be in our building. Another major change, which took effect last Wednesday in response to the tragic events a Columbine High School in Colorado, is that all exterior doors will be kept locked, except for the doors to the main lobby.

NGHS was recently awarded a $7,500 Safe Schools grant. This money will be used to implement an 800 hotline, similar to what is in place in other school districts across the nation. This hotline is hoped to be in place by the end of the '98-99 school year, and can be used to anonymously report crimes that have occurred or could possibly occur on school property. Student Council members will attend an in-service on the hotline at the Wisp Resort on May 5.

The Safety Committee is always seeking suggestions for safety improvements at NGHS. The committee realizes that school and student safety is the responsibility of everyone. Parents, teachers, and most of all, students must care enough about each other to listen and report any potentially dangeroussituations. Northern Garrett High School is our school and we need to care for everyone in it.

Alex Hill Earns Academy Honor

Alex Hill, a junior at Southern High School, was recently notified that he has been named an award winner by the United States Achievement Academy in the category of band. He was nominated for the honor by Richard Clever, SGHS band director. Hill plays both trumpet and percussion instruments as a member of the band.

The academy selects award winners in a number of categories, based upon a recommendation from a teacher, coach, or other school official, and based upon a variety of criteria, including academic performance, interest and aptitude, dependability, citizenship, and motivation to learn and improve. The biographies of all award winners are included in the academy's yearbook.

Summer Math And Science Center Slots Still Open

The Maryland Summer Center for the Integration of Math and Science, slated for July 4-10 at Garrett Community College, has approximately 20 openings still available. Area students who are entering grades 6 through 10 this coming fall and have an interest in practical applications of math, science, and computers are encouraged to apply, and several levels of scholarship assistance are available for those who qualify.

"We'll have students coming from all over the state," said Dr. Nancy Priselac, GCC math department chairperson and coordinator of the summer center. "They will use the latest high-tech equipment in a hands-on laboratory-base program with the theme 'Earth, you have a problem.' In learning to recognize the potential impacts of natural catastrophes such as hurricanes and volcanic eruptions, they will test their decision-making skills, solve problems, and apply mathematical concepts to scientific images in image processing. Basic statistical analysis, geometric measurements, and displays of 2-D functions will be produced.

"By the end of the week, the goal is for the participants to assume the roles of astronauts and mission controllers in a realistic space mission simulation, flying a simulated mission through the Challenger Space Center in Wheeling, W.Va., via distance learning classrooms. We'll train for the mission using the Internet, fiber optics, compressed video, video conferencing, multimedia, color graphing calculators, and Windows 95 Pentium processor computers, and we'll be connected to additional resources at a science center in Michigan and a library in North Carolina," Priselac said.

Tuition for the residential program is $275. Completed applications are requested by Friday, May 21. For further information or to obtain an application, terested persons may c Priselac at 301-387-3045 contact her via e-mail drp@gcnet.net.

May Bird Count Set May 8 In Garrett County

The annual county-wide May Bird Count, sponsored by the Maryland Ornithological Society, will be held throughout Garrett County on Saturday, May 8, during the entire 24-hour period (midnight to midnight). Birds may be counted during any portion of the count period and in any part of Garrett County.

"Feeder watchers" are welcome, as are others who may wish to count birds at a favorite spot. Volunteers must let the count coordinator know where they will be counting in order to assure the best coverage of the county and avoid duplication of effort.

To receive further information and/or a count form, persons may call the count coordinator, Fran Pope, at 301-334-4908 prior to May 5. Results of the count will appear in Maryland Birdlife, a publication of the Maryland Ornithological Society.

Maryland Victim Services Online Site Unveiled

The Maryland Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services today announced completion of its new "Victim Services in Maryland" web site. Located at www.dpscs.state.md.us/vsm, the site is the latest innovation of the department's federally funded web-based public safety information access project. Availability of the new site coincides with National Crime Victims' Rights Week, April 26 to 30.

Including victim resources at the local, state, and national levels, the site is the culmination of an exhaustive survey by project staff. Highlighted within the site are many victims' services offered by Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services agencies. "Victim services are a primary focus of this department, a shared commitment and operational objective of our many employees," said Secretary Stuart O. Simms.

The new web site follows other recent innovations including comprehensive web sites for state Hotspots, Break the Cycle, and D.A.R.E. initiatives. In addition, the ongoing implementation of a prison industries web commerce operations is unique in the United States. The department's project received recent national attention after it provided an on-line parole hearing schedule and successfully broadcast the nation's first parole hearing over the Internet. A publicly announced parole hearing broadcast will occur soon.

"Assistance to victims not only helps individuals, but is an important part of our effort to create safe communities," said Raymond A. Franklin, project director. "Our support of victims of crime sends a message that we, as a society, do not tolerate criminal behavior and that a crime against one is a crime against all."

"Hey Clyde," whined Jack. "I gotta talk to you."

"Quit horsin' around. I'm not in the mood," snorted Clyde.

"Hey man...I thought you were my friend!" cried Jack.

"Okay Jack, let's have it. How come you're all down in the snout?" Clyde demanded.

"Well, I'm all short and scruffy, Clyde. You're tall and shiny. People respect you, but they just pile stuff on me and kick me around. I just don't get no respect, y'know what I mean?"

"Hey man, get a grip," exclaimed Clyde. "We're all God's children. We got our own thing to do for Him. Whoever heard of Mary riding a horse into Bethlehem? How about when Jesus went to Jerusalem...y'know the palm branches? He was on a donkey, right? Don't tell any of my buddies, but just between you and me, I've always been a little jealous of you guys."

"You really mean it...no horsin' around?" said Jack.

"Yea Jack, just between me and you. Now, git!"

Yes, we're all God's children. Worship at your local church or synagogue this week. God has a purpose for you.

MANY OLD TIMERS ARE STILL AROUND

New and powerful miracle drugs form the basis for most of the news we hear about advances in health care. But, there are still a great many medicines being prescribed that have withstood the passage of time. Penicillin, digitalis, sulfur and ephedrine are just a few that are frequently prescribed by physicians.

These drugs, day in and day out, are saving lives, curing illnesses and alleviating pain. As long as they are considered effective they will continue to occupy a prominent place in our prescription laboratory.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHERE'S THE GLORY?
May 2, 1999

Background Scripture:
John 12:20-50
Devotional Reading:
Romans 5:1-11

When Jesus announced, "The hour has come for the Son of man to be glorified," (12:23). I'm sure the disciples assumed that he meant that the homage paid him by the crowds on Palm Sunday would be capped by some even greater exhibition of God's favor. Isn't that what one would expect if they were to be 'glorified'?

But they must have been puzzled when he replied, "Truly, truly, I say to you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains alone, but if it dies, it bears much fruit." What does being 'glorified' have to do with a seed dying and bearing 'much fruit'? The disciples must have felt euphoric about the great reception along the Palm Sunday road, but now Jesus is sounding doomed!

His next words are even more portentous: "He who loves his life loses it, and he who hates his life in this world will keep it for eternal life. If any one serves me, he must follow me; and where I am, there shall my servant be also." What is Jesus suggesting about the fate of those who follow him? Surely being in the vanguard of the Messiah is not meant to be a hazardous association! Who would join a Messiah who promised, not security, but danger?

DANGER AHEAD?

If they listened carefully to what Jesus said next, they would realize that even the Messiah himself would be endangered: "Now is my soul troubled. And what shall I say? 'Father, save me from this hour'? No, for this purpose I have come to this hour," (12:27).

Is Jesus saying that this dangerous situation which he is anticipating is the way things are supposed to go? Jesus has already said that his disciples "must follow me." That is scary because it is obvious that Jesus is headed in harm's way.

Ironically, their Master's next words are: "Father, glorify thy name." Something very strange follows: there was a great noise, everyone would agree to that. But what made that noise? "The crowd standing by heard it and said that it had thundered. Others said 'An angel has spoken to him.'" So some of them heard the answer to Jesus' prayer: "I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again."

Jesus explains to the disciples that "This voice has come for your sake, not for mine." In other words, the road to the Messiah's glorification ran through the valley of the shadow of death—as must theirs as well. Glorification seems entirely incompatible with danger and death. Where's the glory in death? Jesus has already explained that if something dies it can yet, like a seed buried in the earth, yield "much fruit." Something good can come from this dangerous path he is following: only through death that we can know eternal life.

THE COSMIC CROSS

But this is about more than just one person's death or even that of his followers. The whole universe will be affected. By his death Jesus will utterly defeat Satan, "the ruler of this world" and his death will reconcile all humanity: "...I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all men to myself" (12:32). Read in this light, Jesus' message is not really one of doom and gloom, but of the glory of God in Christ. As horrible as the cross will be, it will form the bridge whereby God is able to unloose his love into the cosmos. "I have come as light into the world," says Jesus, "that whoever believes in me may not remain in darkness" (12:46).

It is interesting, then, that having taught his disciples that he and they must tread a dangerous path to glorification, "...many even of the authorities believed in him, but for fear of the Pharisees they did not confess it, lest they should be put out of the synagogue: for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God" (12:42). They wanted to play it safe, but you can't play it safe and follow Jesus Christ. You can have one or the other, but not both.

Where's the glory in danger and death? Answer: just on the other side. Either way, playing it safe or taking up a cross, it is a gamble. Each of us has to decide on what we will bet our lives.

Let's Get Down To Business!

This is a feature of The Republican to better acquaint our readers with various area business establishments.

Pine Accents

Larry and Kay Byler opened Pine Accents in Grantsville on Labor Day 1994 with a 12'x14' sales room — actually the living room of their home. The shop displayed the hand-crafted wood items made by Larry and other family members, who were also skilled carpenters.

Next month the Bylers, having moved their home from the shop location, will expand the Pine Accents sales area to over 1,000 square feet. The inventory has grown rapidly to include furniture and gift items made by many local crafts-people.

The wooden furniture the Bylers sell is all hand-made by local Amish carpenters. The inventory includes oak drysinks, hickory rocking chairs, pine tables, and more. Pine Accents offers outdoor as well as indoor furniture. One can find gazebos, garden arbors, and bird houses displayed on the lawn around the store. Brightly colored tole painting designs decorate many of the wood pieces.

A staple in the shop's product line is the wooden picture frame. "This is what we started with. We made these picture frames and they were really popular. They are just a little different from what you find other places," Larry said. He pointed out that they sell many different Amish prints that they custom mat and frame at the store.

The variety of items available at Pine Accents includes Amish handcrafted iron ware, which is formed into candle holders, chandeliers, basket hangers, and many other decorative home items. And to go with the candle holders there are, of course, candles. Lots of candles.

"We carry 35 different fragrances of candles. Some of our most popular recently have been the ones with baking smells. We have ones like fudge brownie, grandma's nut bread, pineapple-up-side-down cake, lemon pie, and cherry pie. They've really sold well," Larry said.

Baskets are another item that moves through the Bylers' shop quickly, he said.

As business has flourished, the staff has grown. In addition to Larry and Kay — and of course their young son Zachary — Pine Accents is staffed by Glenda Yoder, whom Larry refers to as the business manager, and Amanda Maust. In the summer when business is the most active, Glenda's son, Craig Yoder, and Kay's nephew, Patrick Yoder, also join the staff.

Customer response to the shop has been very positive. When Grantsville hosted its "Old Fashioned Christmas," visitors to the town were asked to vote for their favorite business for a People's Choice Award. Pine Accents took that honor and the Bylers were presented with a plaque by Trish Morgan, Spruce Forest Artisan Village administrator, during a Greater Grantsville Business Association Meeting,

The Bylers said they are very pleased with the growth of their business. "We've had a lot of support from the community and the local business people here," Larry said.

Pine Accents is located adjacent to Yoder Country Market, along Route 669, Grantsville. The store is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (closed Tuesday, January through April).

PINE ACCENTS is the name of a special business located in Grantsville that offers a variety of items, from handcrafted wooden pieces to picture frames to furniture to candles. The business opened just last Labor Day and was selected by Grantsville area residents to receive the People's Choice Award during Grantsville's Old Fashioned Christmas. Pictured above are the shop's owners, Larry and Kay Byler, and their son Zachary. See story.

Glendening Forms Commission To Study State Parks

Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening announced the appointment of a Special Commission on State Parks recently to examine ways to balance the need for natural resource conservation with cultural enrichment, as well as assess the park system's fiscal well-being. Formed in support of the governor's proclamation of the year 2000 as "the Year of Maryland State Parks," the commission also will identify the primary and secondary benefits of parks and the proper balance of recreational use and resource management.

"The Year of Maryland State Parks will focus our energies and resources on our state's most beloved natural and historic areas," said Glendening. "This commission will complement the year-long celebration by recommending ways to improve our natural public areas, as well as promote and preserve our parks for the benefit of future generations of Marylanders."

"The commission reflects a cross section of park users and citizens representing the diversity of the more than 10 million park visitors annually," a Department of Natural Resources spokesperson said. "It will lay a foundation for the future of Maryland's 47 state parks."

The commission members, including one appointment each from the Maryland House of Delegates and the Maryland Senate, represent the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development, the National Park Service, DNR's Outdoor Caucus, park user groups, environmental organizations, outdoor recreation businesses, and county tourism offices.

The commission includes McHenry resident and businessman Bill Sisler, owner/operator of Bill's Marine at Deep Creek Lake and a member of the Deep Creek Lake Advisory and Review Committee for the past 15 years. He has also served on the Garrett County Zoning Board.

Fellow western Marylander John N. Bambacus, mayor of Frostburg, also has been appointed to the commission.

Maurice "Herb" Schwartz of Silver Spring will serve as chairman of the fifteen-member commission. Involved in parks and environmental affairs for more than 40 years, Schwartz is a current board member of the Friends of Seneca Creek State Park, the Maryland Parks Foundation and the Friends of Maryland State Forests and Parks.

Panelcraft Building Systems

The time to be concerned about how to keep from using so much heating fuel is when you build. Use Panelcraft's Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs).

SIP structures are known for their structural integrity. Nature's storms, earthquakes, tornados, etc., just need a little greater force to do the same amount of damage to SIP structures versus conventional.

Faster - Stronger - Warmer

SIPs consist of Polystyrene laminated between two pieces of structure board, thus creating a very rigid, super insulating panel which is used for Walls, Roofs, Ceilings and Floors, virtually any aspect of your project!

HARRIS LEFEW

Patricia R. "Patsy" Koontz, Keyser, W.Va., has succeeded Harris W. LeFew as public relations manager of Westvaco's Luke mill, according to an announcement by Roger A. Dandridge, vice president and mill manager. LeFew retired April 1 with 40 years of "distinguished service" to the company.

LeFew joined the company in April 1959 as assistant public relations manager. He was appointed to his present position in December 1963. He has been active in community affairs for many years and has received numerous awards for his merits.

A native of Hedgesville, W.Va., and long-time Westernport resident, LeFew received a B.A. degree in economics from Western Maryland College and a master's degree from Frostburg State College.

Koontz joined Westvaco in 1977 in the Production Control Department and then spent the following five years in the Purchasing Department. She joined the Public Relations Department in 1982, and for the past nine years she has been responsible for the Luke mill's customer relations program. She also has handled media relations, as well as a broad area of responsibilities in various segments of the department's efforts.

A native of Burlington, W.Va., Koontz is a graduate of Potomac State College.

As public relations manager, Koontz will be responsible for all public and customer relations, internal and external communications, and media relations, as well as legislative and real estate activities.

SUNBIRDS CAPTURED ON FILM - While the rest of us were digging out from under the snow, a number of Garrett County residents were watching the proceedings on the Weather Channel, surrounded by the sunny blue skies of Florida. A contingent of escapees from the mountaintop's winters, who in all fairness have seen their share of blizzards and ice over days gone by, gather each Monday after the Daytona 500 auto race for a get-together to talk about the weather back home, among other things. In attendance at this year's luncheon were Raymond and Marie Coddington, Freda Denison, Cecil and Wilma Edwards, Dale and Jean Glass, David and Mary Margaret Hachman, Carl and Theresa Haenftling, Earl and Mildred Haenftling, John H. Hamilton, Carroll and Lee Harvey, H. Gurney and Lois Kolb, Edward Hinebaugh, Bob and Annette Lashly, Ron and Violet Lewis, Roger and Alice Lohr, Elmer and Katherine Lytle, John and Lois Matese, Carolyn H. Rayman, Carl and LeEsta Skidmore, Karl Smith, Delbert and Doris Swartzentruber, Mary Thornburg, Herman Thornburg, Lytle and Betty Uphold, Raymond and Dorcas Wampler, Laurence and Janice Wensel, Grace White, and Paul and Doloras Wood. A number of those sunbirds are shown above, although positive identification of each person shown was not available. Photo by Alice Lohr.

Registration forms for the Bible school are available from the offices of the participating St. Paul's, St. Mark's Lutheran, St. Peter's Roman Catholic, and St. Matthew's and St. John's Episcopal churches. New Appalachian Laboratory Opens At FSU Campus

The new Appalachian Laboratory of the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science (UMCES) has officially opened in Frostburg at the south end of the Frostburg State University campus. Casper Taylor, speaker of the House of Delegates, gave the keynote address during the brief opening ceremony on Saturday, which also featured remarks by USM Chancellor Donald Langenberg, UMCES President Donald Boesch, FSU President Catherine Gira, and laboratory director Louis Pitelka.

"This wonderful new building is crucial in enabling us to advance understanding of the region's ecosystems and watersheds," stated Dr. Louis Pitelka, laboratory director. "It offers superb laboratory space for the high-tech instruments used in modern environmental research."

Scientists at Appalachian Laboratory are conducting research projects that address the role of forests, streams, rivers, lakes, and wildlife in the Bay watershed. Current projects include the restoration of streams damaged by acid mine drainage, the impact of gypsy moths on the ability of area forests to store nitrogen, the role of forest soil in retaining nutrients, conservation biology of forest birds, and population genetics of native fish. This research provides information essential to the wise management of the terrestrial and freshwater environment and natural resources of Maryland. Key partners in this effort are Frostburg State University and the University of Maryland College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Appalachian Laboratory also supervises graduate students and teaches courses in cooperative programs with FSU and the Systemwide Marine-Estuarine Environmental Science program. Through these programs the laboratory faculty members have advised 120 graduate students who have received M.S. and Ph.D. degrees. Future plans include an expanded community education effort that reaches out to the region.

"I am proud of the expanded, cutting-edge research programs that are already taking place at Appalachian Laboratory," said UMCES president Dr. Donald Boesch. "This new facility provides the specialized tools needed to advance the state of science in supporting wise environmental stewardship of the landscape and the Chesapeake Bay."

The $20 million, 50,655-square foot laboratory was designed by the architectural firm John A. Ammon and Associates Inc. of Baltimore and J/V Spillis Candela/Warnecke and built by the Gilbane Building Company of Laurel.

UMCES is the lead institution for coastal research within the University of Maryland system. Its three laboratories — Appalachian Laboratory in western Maryland, Chesapeake Biological Laboratory in southern Maryland, and Horn Point Laboratory on Maryland's Eastern Shore — are strategically located to provide access to Maryland's natural environments and resources.

One-Act Operas Slated At FSU

The Opera Workshop of Frostburg State University's Department of Music will present two one-act operas on Friday, May 7, at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theatre of the campus Performing Arts Center. They will also be joined by the University Chorale's performance of opera choruses.

The first one-act is The Impresario by Wolfgang A. Mozart. It has been updated to the 1920s and portrays the rivalry of two prima donnas after the same part. The University Chorale will then be performing choruses from the operas Il Trovatore and Macbeth by Verdi. The last opera is Many Moons by Celius Dougherty, and is based on the children's story by James Thurber. It takes place "once upon a time, in a kingdom by the sea."

The performers include Brenda J. Pease, Jennifer McClellan, Aaron M. Torgerson, Lauren Aycock, Sarah Jester, David McKinley, Debra Capron, Cindy Weisenmiller, and Jim Bowser.

The production is under the direction of Richard Kagey, and the musical direction of Kathryn Sincell-Corwell, with Kim Andrews accompanying. It is suitable for all ages. The University Chorale is under the direction of Dr. Karen Soderberg. For more information, persons may call the FSU Music Department at 301-687-4109.

COVER STORY

Focus is on Messina during ACM Awards

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Shania Twain

A formidable list of performers and nominees has been assembled for the 34th annual Academy of Country Music Awards, airing on CBS Wednesday, May 5. And in a story worthy of a country ballad, many viewers will be watching nominee Jo Dee Messina with special interest during the ceremonies.

Messina has survived what looked like a career catastrophe and come back stronger than ever with I'm Alright, an album that earned her ACM nominations as top new female vocalist and overall best female vocalist, as well as album of the year.

"My first album (Jo Dee Messina) was released in January 1996, and we got a couple of hit singles off it," the Boston-bred singer explains. "But the third single stumbled, so we decided to wait for the second album for our next single."

Unfortunately, that second album, I'm Alright, was a long time in coming – 18 months – and that delay, coupled with a popular but expensive tour, backed the young singer up against a financial wall.

It's not surprising that I'm Alright has a determined I-will-survive attitude about it – one that resonates with old and new fans alike.

"My fans are the best, and they come up and say, 'I want to give a copy of "Lesson in Leavin' " to my boyfriend. If you only knew ... ' and I say, 'I know! I know! Believe me!' "

In fact, Messina says, during her live performances, she asks her audiences how many have been dumped. "And I raise my hand as high as I can."

Messina says her parents split when she was 4, but she remains close to both and probably gets her stubbornness in equal measure from the two of them.

"I think that's who I am. If I see something I want – say a quarter across the yard, but there's an electric fence – I will keep trying to find a way to get there," she says. "And I don't even mean in terms of my career; I mean with life in general. It's never a question of 'Can I have it?' It's 'How can I have it?' "

Messina's competition for album of the year includes releases by such country giants as Garth Brooks, Faith Hill, Dixie Chicks and George Strait, and she admits she'd love to win.

"I probably will be stressed," she says, laughing, "but what I am really looking forward to is performing." She was so nervous singing in front of Brooks, Shania Twain and other superstars on an awards show last year, she says, that she couldn't remember her performance. "All I remember clearly is thinking, 'Oh, my God, I am going to die on national television!' I hope I've gotten up enough nerve this time to just do it, and I look forward to it."

Messina says the past year with its overwhelming public enthusiasm has been like a dream – topped by a surreal encounter with one of her idols.

At home in bed with the flu, she answered the phone. "Hi, Jo Dee! I just looooove 'Bye Bye,' " Messina says, affecting singer Reba McEntire's distinctive drawl. "I'm thinking, 'This is a sick joke,' but I finally realized it really was her. I mean, who else talks like that?"

A Beauty of a cast reunites for Belle

©TVData Features Syndicate

Most of the original voice cast members of the Oscar-winning animated feature Beauty and the Beast reunite for Belle's Magical World, airing Friday, May 7, on the Disney Channel.

The movie, part of a sneak peek at the new Toon Disney all-animated programming service, features the voice talents of Paige O'Hara (Belle), Robby Benson (Beast), Jerry Orbach (Lumiere), David Ogden Stiers (Cogsworth) and Joanne Worley (Wardrobe).

While the big-screen film ended with the Beast and his servants restored to their human form by Belle's love, Belle's Magical World consists of three stories from before that transformation.

In "The Perfect Word," a petty misunderstanding between Belle and Beast escalates after Webster the dictionary masterminds a fake letter of apology.

"Fifi's Folly," the second story, finds Lumiere going to Belle for advice on how to express his feelings for Fifi, the flirtatious feather duster, but Fifi misconstrues Lumiere's interest in Belle and thinks she's been jilted.

Both Beast and Cogsworth are stumped in "Broken Wing," the third story, in which the lord of the castle can't understand why an injured songbird refuses to sing, while the clock faces rebellion among his kitchen staff.

Belle's Magical World has a flatter, less impressive animation than Beauty and the Beast, but that won't bother small fry. Children will take to the thoughtful, quaint stories with delight, and the vivid performances by the voice cast make for a reunion with favorite old friends.

Belle, Webster and the Beast (from left) are reunited with the other denizens of the Beast's castle for Belle's Magical World, airing Friday on the Disney Channel.

Steve Burns and Blue

Q: I recently heard a rumor that Blue's Clues host Steve Burns died of a heroin overdose. Please tell me it's not true! –C.R. in New Hampshire.

A: I am happy to report that Burns is alive and well, but this insidious Internet rumor has become so widely circulated that the 25-year-old actor-host has had to make several public appearances to allay the fears of his young viewers.

Q: Do you have any idea what Gary Burghoff of *M*A*S*H* is doing these days? –Allan K. in Montgomery, Ala.

A: Yes. Burghoff, a devoted animal lover, is host of Pets: Part of the Family, a 13-part series airing in syndication starting in mid-May. It may air later on, or not at all, in your particular market.

Since bidding goodbye to his TV character Walter "Radar" O'Reilly, Burghoff, now 55, has worked in films and theater, but also has become a wildlife artist of growing stature.

Q: What was the name of the Bill Cosby situation comedy in which he played a high-school gym teacher? My mom says all of his sitcoms have had "Cosby" in the title one way or another. –Brenda via e-mail.

A: Your mom is right, as far as his live-action sitcom titles are concerned. You're thinking of – prepare for a shock, now – The Bill Cosby Show, a 1969-71 NBC sitcom in which he played Los Angeles physical education teacher and coach Chet Kincaid.

The sitcoms following this one have been called, in order, The New Bill Cosby Show, Cos, The Cosby Show and Cosby.

Q: When was Hot L Baltimore on TV? I recall it was based on a play. –Marge via e-mail.

A: Norman Lear produced this unsuccessful 1975 ABC adaptation of Lanford Wilson's hit stage comedy set in a seedy hotel. The title alludes to the fact that an E on the hotel sign was burned out.

The ensemble cast included Conchata Ferrell, James Cromwell, Richard Masur and Charlotte Rae.

Q: Why was Encore! Encore! taken off the air? Will they show reruns? –A Michigan reader.

A: Probably not. Encore! was one of the biggest artistic failures in recent years, despite a gifted cast and the Frasier creative team. Christopher Lloyd, one of the executive producers, says they knew early on that the show was in trouble when Nathan Lane's character, a pompous opera singer, never clicked with most viewers or critics.

The program also includes interviews with TV talk show host Larry King and radio personality Michael Reagan.

SUNDAY

The first script for The Mod Squad (1968-73) was written in 1960. The premise was based on a real-life narcotics squad of the 1950s.

Jodie Foster got started in show business at age 3 as the Coppertone girl in a TV ad. By age 8, she had made 40 commercials.

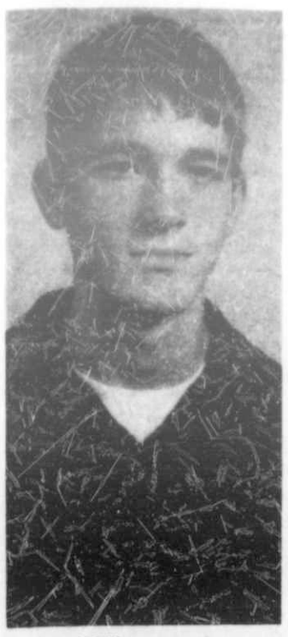
Southern High Sophomore Attends HOBY Seminar



Jared Fike, a sophomore at Southern High School, recently attended the 1999 Maryland Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership (HOBY) Seminar. He joined more than 250 young leaders representing as many high schools throughout Maryland. The four-day seminar was held April 15-18 at the Sheraton Inn in Columbia.

Students are chosen based on demonstrated leadership and potential for continued leadership growth.

HOBY Leadership Seminars bring together a select group of high school sophomores with groups of distinguished leaders in business, government, education, and the media to discuss present and future issues. The goal is to provide the students with a stimulating forum for learning about the American incentive system and democratic process while broadening their understanding of their leadership potential and quest for self-development. HOBY leaders are also challenged to return to their communities to perform at least 100 hours of community service within 12 months following the seminar.

Among the weekend's panelists were the executive director of the Maryland Stadium Authority, Bruce Hoffman, and Kevin Byrne, director of public relations for the Baltimore Ravens. Also participating was columnist Gregory Kane of The Baltimore Sun.

The students joined the community service organization Hands-On Baltimore on April 17 for its annual Serve-a-Thon. HOBY's 300 representatives helped with neighborhood clean-up and other beautification projects in five communities in and around Baltimore.

HOBY was established in 1958 by actor Hugh O'Brian, who portrayed television's Wyatt Earp. After a trip to Africa to meet with Dr. Albert Schweitzer, O'Brian was inspired to found the organization as his contribution to society.

HOBY is the nation's top non-tax supported foundation for youth leadership development, with all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and 30 different countries participating in HOBY programs. The Maryland Leadership Seminar is in its 21st year.

Driver's Licenses Provide Vehicle For Organ Donations

National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week concludes tomorrow, April 23. Since 1977, Maryland drivers have had the opportunity to declare on their driver's licenses whether or not they wish to be organ donors. Of Maryland's 3.4 million licensed drivers, 36 percent are registered organ donors. The Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA) is joined in its effort of organ and tissue awareness by the Transplant Resource Center (TRC).

"We enjoy a successful partnership with the Transplant Resource Center," said MVA Administrator Anne S. Ferro. "We want our customers to know that whenever they come to an MVA office, they can sign up to be an organ donor. They could be the difference in saving a life."

A nonprofit provider which evaluates the medical suitability of potential donors, the TRC participates in the surgical recovery of organs and tissues, and disseminates information about the need for organ and tissue donation.

The TRC provides organ and tissue recovery services to 43 hospitals. In 1998, 387 Maryland residents received life-saving organ transplants at the Johns Hopkins Hospital and the University of Maryland Medical System. Those recipients received 450 organs, many of which came from local donors and some that came from other states.

"The Transplant Resource Center of Maryland is more than pleased to have such great cooperation from the MVA in promoting organ and tissue donation during both National Organ and Tissue Donation Week and throughout the year," said TRC CEO Marion Borowiecki.

Secretary West Will Speak At Scout Dinner

The Honorable Togo D. West Jr., the secretary of veterans affairs, will be the special guest speaker at the 1999 "Friends of Scouting" dinner, to be held Monday, May 24, at the Shrine Club, Ed Hedrick, "Friends of Scouting" campaign chair, has announced.

The Friends of Scouting dinner is an annual event designed to thank the major financial contributors to the Scouting program in the area.

Secretary West, who was appointed by President Clinton to this cabinet position in 1998, previously served four years as the Secretary of the Army, where he was often referred to as the "soldier's secretary," which referred to his affinity for soldiers and concern for their welfare and that of their families.

Mr. West was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Field Artillery Corps upon graduation in 1965. After graduating cum laude from Howard Law School in 1968, West was called to active military duty in the Army's Judge Advocate Corps and served until 1973.

In the private sector, West practiced law and, in 1990, joined the Northrop Corporation as the senior vice president for government relations.

His public service includes positions held as an associate deputy attorney general with the Justice Department; the general counsel of the Navy; the special assistant to the secretary and deputy secretary of defense; the general counsel of the Department of Defense; and the secretary of the Army.

For his military service he was awarded the Legion of Merit and the Meritorious Service Medal. For his public service he was twice awarded the Defense Medal for Distinguished Public Service, as well as the Department of the Army Medal for Distinguished Civilian Service; the Department of the Navy Award for Distinguished Public Service; and the Department of the Air Force Award for Exceptional Civilian Service.

As a young man, Secretary West became an Eagle Scout, and his lifetime support of Scouting was recognized in 1995, when the Boy Scouts of America named him a Distinguished Eagle Scout.

Anyone interested in attending this dinner should contact the Potomac Council Service Center at 301-729-1300.

HotSpot Report Notes Response From Residents

Garrett County's Grantsville HotSpot team report for this month indicates that the second-year crime prevention program has affected the community which it was organized to serve. Several of the team members, representing various county agencies, noted that residents have commented on the effects of the program.

HotSpot projects have increased the presence of law enforcement, enhanced community probation activities, provided recreational activities, expanded access to the state's attorney, and generally focused on preventing crime through heightening community awareness, a program spokesperson explained.

Response to the HotSpot efforts have come, at times, in the form of negative comment. A spokesperson for the group recounted a citizen complaint of "too much police service" in the HotSpot area. Another comment made to a committee member attributed declines in alcohol consumption in the area to the stepped-up law enforcement of HotSpot.

Bill Ferry, representing the state's attorney's office, said that anyone who would like to discuss the effects of the HotSpot campaign would be welcome to call or to stop in and see him at Grantsville town hall Thursdays from 1 to 4 p.m. and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

A spokesperson for the parole and probation office team noted that "things have been very slow and quiet" in Grantsville, recently. "I think it [HotSpot] has had a big effect on the young people," the spokesperson stated.

As part of a statewide project, the HotSpot team in Grantsville was organized in September, 1997. Composing the team are representatives from Garrett County's Department of Social Services, Office of Parole and Probation, Community Action, Sheriff's Office, States Attorney's Office, and Maryland State Police.

Biography®

CHER: UNINHIBITED, UNPREDICTABLE, UNSTOPPABLE

For over 30 years, Cher has balanced precariously between respect and scorn. Currently, she's on top. Her memoir The First Time is a hit. Her album Believe is Top 10 worldwide. In January, she sang the national anthem at the Super Bowl. This month, she co-stars with Judi Dench in Franco Zeffirelli's "Tea with Mussolini." Featured in June's Biography magazine, she was born Cherilyn Sarkisian to a part-Cherokee mother and Armenian father who separated after her birth. At 16, she was in a Hollywood coffee shop when Sonny, dressed in a mustard-colored shirt, mohair pants and Cuban-heeled shoes, walked in. Cher was mesmerized. The two were soon living together. In 1965, when Sonny wrote "I Got You Babe," the world took notice. Soon, however, tastes passed them by. They started playing clubs, perfecting their adversarial repartee, leading to the TV hit, "The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour." Despite the birth of their daughter Chastity, their relationship deteriorated toward divorce.

Cher had an unorthodox relationship with Greg Allman, producing son Elijah. Next she tried acting. Despite skeptics, her breakthrough role came opposite Meryl Streep in "Silkwood." Her performance in "Moonstruck," about an older woman in love with a 20-something baker, earned her an Oscar and accolades. Her real-life relationship with a younger bagel manager led to derision. Chastity confided to Sonny – not Cher – that she was gay, leading to temporary estrangement.

In 1990, she contracted chronic fatigue syndrome. Too sick to work, she did a paid shampoo infomercial for friend Lori Davis. Her credibility plummeted. Not one to be deterred, she tried her hand at directing in HBO's film on abortion, "If These Walls Could Talk."

After Sonny's tragic death, she delivered a heartfelt eulogy and tribute to the Sonny and Cher myth. Through talent and tenacity, Cher has become a myth on her own.

Antiques

Sometimes you can't afford the best if you are a collector with a small budget. But you can usually find the "almost best" at a better price. The furniture made in Eastwood, N.Y., from 1900 to 1915 by Gustav Stickley is considered the best of the American arts and crafts style.

Soon after Gustav's furniture became popular, his brothers George and Albert started making similar furniture. They were making furniture in Grand Rapids, Mich., but switched to the arts and crafts style. Their pieces were mass-produced and not handmade. Theirs resembled the oak pieces by Gustav.

The Stickley Brothers Co. continued working until 1907. Two other brothers, Leopold and George, started making furniture in Fayetteville, N.Y., in 1900. They also copied the styles of Gustav but often used veneers or laminated woods, not solid oak.

Another relative, Charles, made similar furniture in Binghamton, N.Y. It was labeled Stickley-Brandt Furniture Co. You can buy a good old piece of arts and crafts furniture by any of these Stickley companies. The pieces by Gustav could be from two to 10 times more expensive.

Q. What is a half-tester bed?

A. The word "tester" refers to the frame that holds the canopy over a bed. A half-tester bed has a partial frame extending from the headboard over the bed frame. Some half-testers held a small canopy. Half-testers were made as early as the 15th century. They came into style in the United States in the mid-1800s. Bed styles changed by the turn of the century, but a few reproduction tester or half-tester beds are made today.

COVER IT – I have found disposable shower caps to be very handy in the kitchen. They will cover large fruit or fresh vegetable platters, cakes, salads, or even large cuts of meat after cooked and cooled.

I found them very useful also when taking foods to a park for reunions or to have handy to protect leftover foods. The elastic edge is so much easier to handle than fighting with plastic wrap, and they can also be thrown away after they have been used. Rita K., Dearborn, Mich.

CHEESE CONTAINERS – Parmesan cheese now comes in a plastic shaker jar. After the cheese is gone, I remove the label and wash out the jar and the shaker top. I have found a variety of uses for these jars. I keep one full of flour to shake on the dough board when making pie crusts and biscuits. I keep another one full of sugar and cinnamon for instant cinnamon toast in the morning. I have several extras on hand just waiting for a new use. Toni C., Fort Myers, Fla.

COOL IT – Recently, when going to a picnic on a warm evening, I planned to take deviled eggs but didn't know how to keep them cool and covered.

I got out a cake pan with its own plastic cover, saturated a heavy-duty kitchen towel with water and laid it in the pan. Then I put the pan in the freezer.

When I was ready to go to the picnic, I placed wax paper on top of the frozen towel and added the deviled eggs. It kept the eggs cool till they were eaten! Betty L., Farmington, Ark.

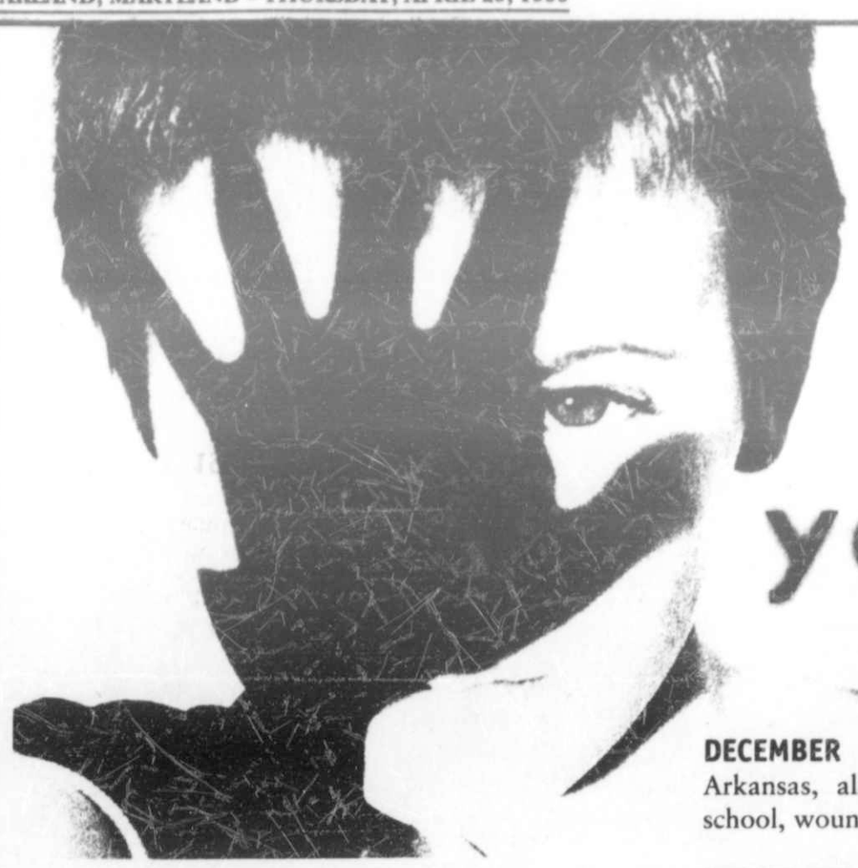
Schaefer Urges Gov. Glendening To Sign Tax Bill

Maryland State Comptroller William Donald Schaefer has urged Governor Parris N. Glendening to sign House Bill 1149, which will simplify next year's Maryland income tax returns and bring back the short form which was eliminated this year. The 1997 Tax Reduction Act, though it reduced the state income tax, did not affect the local income tax and required additional calculations — eliminating the popular short form, Form 503.

"Passage of this legislation helps fulfill a promise I made when I became comptroller: to make tax filing easier for Marylanders," said Comptroller Schaefer. "The extra local tax calculations made this year's forms too complicated. I knew there had to be an easier way, and this legislation does it. Thanks to the leadership shown by Delegate Sheila Hixson and Senator Barbara Hoffman, Maryland taxpayers will find their tax forms easier to complete in the years to come." Delegate Hixson, chair of the House Ways and Means Committee, was the principal sponsor of the legislation. Senator Hoffman, chair of the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee, sponsored simplification legislation in the Senate.

Schaefer says House Bill 1149 will make calculation of the local tax simpler by making it a percentage of the taxpayer's income rather than a percentage of the state tax liability. This will eliminate the need to make the two separate computations of Maryland taxable income that have made this year's tax forms more complicated. Beginning with next year's tax returns, Maryland taxpayers will be able to figure their local tax by looking at a chart, identifying the tax rate associated with their county of residence and simply multiplying their Maryland taxable income by that rate.

"Another major consideration was making sure that any changes in the tax forms did not hurt the local subdivisions in any way," said Schaefer. "House Bill 1149 meets the goal of making sure that the simplification of the tax returns will be revenue-neutral for the counties and Baltimore City. Local revenues are virtually unaffected by the changes proposed in this legislation."



"They only know what you teach 'em."

The sound of gun shots in a small Arkansas town continue to ring like a bell—a bell that tolls for four little girls and a dedicated teacher who put herself in mortal danger to shield a fifth child from a hail of bullets, unleashed, God help us, by a 13-year-old boy and his 11-year-old pal.

But the bell sounds not only for the innocent dead in Jonesboro. It also tolls for a nation that is turning its back on the moral law it once cherished—a law written on every human heart, yet unrecognized by many members of the younger generation who have never heard about it from their elders.

Are we surprised at the spectacle of children killing children? Are we shocked to open our newspapers, turn on our TVs and look into the faces of a couple of Opie and Beaver look-alikes charged with five counts of capital murder? Didn't we see it coming?

Are we surprised at the spectacle of children killing children?

We should have known . . . should have anticipated . . . that children who have watched thousands of murders on prime-time television, followed the deadly exploits of Dr. Kevorkian and been taught that there are no moral absolutes, might come to see little harm in gunning down their classmates.

Jonesboro marks a point of crisis, but one that is hardly new or unique. What happened in this small town in Arkansas symbolizes America in moral free fall, America on a rapidly descending spiral, America without God—an America that has forgotten what her founding fathers meant when they warned that only a virtuous people could remain free. If that statement is accurate, and history has consistently validated it, then we are living in the twilight of our liberty.

As always when a culture begins to unravel, it is the youngest members who are most wounded and disturbed. Consider the following reports of unspeakable crimes committed not by hardened thugs, but by lost children:

SEPTEMBER 1995: A family made a wrong turn down a street in Los Angeles and was subjected to a hail of gunfire that killed their little girl. Gang members poured bullets into the car for the sheer fun of it.[1]

NOVEMBER 1996: A teenage girl delivered a child in a Delaware motel, then she and her boyfriend allegedly beat the child to death, placed it in a plastic bag and dropped it in a dumpster.[2]

JUNE 1997: A New Jersey teenager gave birth to her baby in a bathroom stall at her high school prom. She dropped the baby in the trash, then returned to the dance floor, where she asked the band to play her favorite song, "The Unforgiven."[3]

OCTOBER 1997: A 16-year-old boy in Pearl, Mississippi, allegedly slayed his mother, then went to school and shot nine students, killing two, including his former girlfriend.[4]

DECEMBER 1997: A young boy opened fire on a prayer meeting at Heath High School in West Paducah, Kentucky, killing three and wounding five of his classmates.[5]

DECEMBER 1997: A 14-year-old boy in Stamps, Arkansas, allegedly fired sniper rounds outside his school, wounding two students.[6]

MARCH 1998: In Dallas, Texas, four teenagers claiming to be vampires went on a drug-crazed destruction spree, vandalizing dozens of cars and homes, spray-painting racial slurs and burning down the office and fellowship hall of Bethany Lutheran Church.[7]

APRIL 1998: In Yonkers, New York, a 15-year-old girl, upset that her teacher called her parents about her poor academic performance, attacked the pregnant instructor with a hammer. The teacher suffered multiple skull fractures.[8]

APRIL 1998: In Indianapolis, Indiana, police have begun random searches for weapons on school buses and in elementary schools after an 8-year-old boy allegedly pointed a gun at a female classmate who was teasing him about his ears.[9]

APRIL 1998: Four teenagers in Santa Cruz, California, were arrested on charges of drugging an 11-year-old girl and raping her. The teens allegedly raped her in a parking lot, and then drove 10 miles to a wooded area where they smoked heroin and raped her again for several hours. The police said that the girl was so drugged that she could not fend off their attack. Assistant District Attorney Bob Lee said, "They took the child and did about everything . . . they could. It's as egregious as it could possibly [be]."[10]

This chronicle of children who have committed horrible crimes is symptomatic of a culture in chaos. John Hazlewood, whose 14-year-old son Brandon attends the Westside Middle School in Jonesboro, Arkansas, said it best: "This is not the kids' problem, it's the way we're raising them today. They only know what you teach 'em."[11]

Where did we go wrong? At least some of the answers can be found in the radical notions that have emerged in the last 30 years. Judges, with the acquiescence of our legislators, have made it illegal for our schools to post the Ten Commandments. It is becoming increasingly difficult—and dangerous—for students to pray together on school campuses; meanwhile, it's easier for a man or woman to obtain a divorce than to escape from an automobile lease agreement. The President of the United States embraces the radical homosexual movement which opposes the legal basis of marriage as a lifelong commitment between one man and one woman. States are prohibited from protecting innocent children, in the process of being born, from those who would puncture their skulls and suck out their brains. Those who oppose this infanticide are called "extremists" by our political leaders. Federal authorities decline to prosecute hard-core pornographers. The government spends billions to promote "safe sex" ideology in our schools, and officials hand out condoms and pills to kids who assume they're expected to use them. Laws protecting children from indecent material on the Internet are struck down by justices to protect the right of adults to market pornography. Video poker machines dot the landscape of a nation that was built on the principles of thrift and deferred gratification. The "entertainment" industry glorifies violence and sexual exploitation, while pop music pays tribute to the killing of police and the raping of women. And the list goes on. How much carnage must we witness at our feet before we will raise our eyes to Heaven?

To surrender to evil is to yield to the despair that leads to death.

The American people know we are in a moral crisis. According to a poll conducted by Luntz Research, 80 percent believe immorality is our greatest problem as a nation.[12] But our leaders don't seem to comprehend what is happening. It's time we all pulled together—Americans of every political party and religious faith—to recover a sense of what God wants us to do for our nation.

Let's begin by giving priority to our children. In days gone by, the culture acted to shield them from harmful images and exploitation. Now it's open season for even the youngest among us. Let's put the welfare of our boys and girls ahead of our own convenience and teach them the difference between right and wrong. They need to hear that God is the author of their rights and liberties. Let's teach them that He loves them and holds them to a high level of moral accountability.

Let's do everything in our power to reverse the blight of violence and lust that has become so pervasive across this land. Let's demand that the entertainment moguls stop producing moral pollutants. Let's recapture from the courts that system of self-rule that traditionally allowed Americans to debate their deepest differences openly and reach workable solutions together. Radical individualism is destroying us! The creed that proclaims, "If it feels good, do it!" has filled too many hospitals with drug overdosed teenagers, too many prison cells with fatherless youth, too many caskets with slain young people and caused too many tears for bewildered parents.

Let's vow together today to set for our children the highest standards of ethics and morality and to protect them, as much as possible, from evil and death. America can't be perfect, but it can be better—much better. To surrender to evil is to yield to the despair that leads to death. We must be bold enough to draw a line in the sand. We may have to endure some name-calling, harassment and lawsuits for it, but as the good people of Jonesboro know, that isn't the worst thing that can happen.

On May 7, America observed what the Congress of the United States has designated as the National Day of Prayer. That emphasis should occur not just once each spring, but throughout the year, as we ask the Father to intervene on our behalf. We must also pledge ourselves anew to the principles that have made this nation great: hard work, sexual restraint, a commitment to family, a rejection of violence and reliance upon the hand of Divine Providence.

By this effort we can begin to atone for the blood of the innocents that stains our streets and neighborhoods. We can start to restore the qualities that prompted Abraham Lincoln to call us an "almost chosen people."[13] We can approach again the throne of our Father, seek His face, humble ourselves and pray, and know that He will hear from Heaven and heal our land.

Let's make America a "shining city upon a hill" once more. If we fail, we need not ask for whom the bell tolls. It tolls for our beloved nation.

Private Landowners Seek Compensation, Equality

Farmers and ranchers are more than willing to help preserve habitat for endangered species, so long as private landowners are treated no different than federal agencies when it comes to compensation for losses.

This is the message Farm Bureau brought to lawmakers last week during a House Resources Committee hearing on legislation that would ensure fair treatment for private property owners who are adversely affected by enforcement of the Endangered Species Act.

"Farmers, ranchers, and small landowners across the country are restricted from using their property in ways that have traditionally been used because of the alleged presence of a listed species or because it might someday be habitat for a listed species that is not presently there," said American Farm Bureau Federation vice president Carl Loop.

Loop told lawmakers that farmers and ranchers, as stewards of the land, "understand and appreciate the need for biodiversity and the protection of plant and animal species." But too often they are "made to bear the entire cost for protecting listed species that occur on their property."

The Fifth Amendment requires that when private property is taken for public purposes, costs must be borne by the public through just compensation to the private landowner.

"Farm Bureau has for many years led the fight in Congress and the courts to have the government recognize its responsibilities under the Fifth Amendment," said Loop.

Loop, who also is president of the Florida Farm Bureau, said that in his home state there have been countless instances where the federal government restricted the use of land while giving little or no regard to the loss of use or value of property. Florida is home to the second largest number of listed species in the continental United States.

Farm Bureau supports the Landowners Equal Treatment Act (H.R. 1142), a bill that would reinforce the constitutional guarantees to just compensation. The legislation also would ensure that private landowners would be treated no differently than federal agencies that receive compensation when constructive use of the property they manage is adversely affected. And the bill would establish a "fair and uncomplicated" procedure to allow private landowner claims to be processed as easily as government claims.

Loop said the bill does not add any new rights not already provided by the Constitution, nor does it "do for private landowners anything that the federal government is not already doing for itself."

"It merely puts all parties on equal footing with respect to compensation for regulatory takings," said Loop.

Loop told the panel that more than 78 percent of listed species are found on privately owned land, and more than 34 percent of listed species are found exclusively on privately owned land.

Farming In Maryland.....

Grain Producers Offer Students Ag Scholarship

The May 1st deadline for grant applications for the Maryland Grain Producers Scholarships is fast approaching. For the second year the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board has allocated $5,000 of grain check-off funds to support the annual scholarship program. The program will be administered by the Maryland Grain Producers Association, which will be awarding two deserving students with scholarships in the amount of $2,500 each ($1,250 for each semester) enrolled in a Maryland or an out-of-state institution.

The purpose of the scholarship is to provide financial support to students interested in pursuing an agriculture-related career. Given the dynamic changes in agriculture today, the advances in biotechnology, global positioning systems, environmental protection, and crop and live stock production, Maryland's grain farmers believe it is very important to encourage students to consider careers in agriculture by enhancing their educational development through the use of scholarships.

Jana Lynn Edwards, Ridgely, Md., and Patrick Goode, Maddox, Md., were the lucky candidates in 1998, each receiving $2,500 towards the cost of obtaining a strong agricultural education.

"Agriculture is undoubtedly not the same as it was with all of the technology available today," said Breck Debnam, president of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board. "The agricultural community needs a strong educational foundation if we are going to be successful in the future. The scholarship program will perhaps encourage students to take a second look at a career in agriculture."

The scholarships will be awarded to full-time students attending a four-year institution or students enrolled in a two-year agricultural program. The selections will be based on agricultural background, family farm involvement, financial need, grade point average, agriculture related studies, career goals, and extra-curricular activities.

For an application those interested may contact the Maryland Grain Producers Association, 53 Slama Road, Edgewater, MD 21037-1423.

Veggie Planting In Full Swing Downstate

Vegetable planting came into full swing this previous week, as sweet corn, cantaloupes, and watermelons made major advances. Sweet corn improved by 12 points from last week's report and was ahead of the previous year of 23. Cantaloupes and watermelons made their first appearance in the Maryland Agriculture Statistics Service's crop progress table this week. Cantaloupes stood at 20% planted, well ahead of the previous year and five-year averages. Watermelons followed the same pattern as cantaloupes and were at 16% planted.

Tomato and snap bean plantings both improved three points from the previous week as reports from the Eastern Shore showing tomato planting activities were picking up. Potato planting appears almost complete for the state, as it was at 95%. Cucumber planting started up this previous week. Field corn planting picked up five points and was reported at 12%. Corn planting on the Eastern Shore was in full swing.

Barley's heading stage development was at 50% complete, a major jump from the previous week's tally of 30%. Barley was rated 19% excellent, 59% good, 19% fair, and 3% poor. Wheat heading stands at 8%, a 5-point increase from last week's report of 3%. Wheat condition was 17% excellent, 62% good, 17% fair, 3% poor, and 1% very poor. Rye condition was 20% excellent, 62% good, 16% fair, and 2% poor. Rye was 28% headed, well below last year's level, but close to its five-year average.

Apples were 40% bloomed, below the previous year and five-year averages. Strawberries were 40% bloomed and peaches were almost finished with the blooming stage, as 90% was reported. In western Maryland, three mornings of light frost were reported with little or no damage to fruit crops. Frost on the Eastern Shore also has had no effect on fruit crop as of now.

Topsoil moisture was 1% very short, 3% short, 86% adequate, and 10% surplus. Subsoil moisture was 2% very short, 2% short, 90% adequate, and 6% surplus. There were 5.2 days suitable for fieldwork for the week which ended April 25. Acreage that has been prepared for planting of spring crops stands at 44%.

Maryland's crop progress for the week which ended April 25, listing the item and percentages for this week, last week, last year, and the five-year average, follows.

Small grain development: barley, headed 50, 30, 75, 33; rye, headed 28, 12, 46, 24; winter wheat, headed 8, 3, 15, 5.

College Students Celebrate Ag Day

Every year, on the fourth Saturday in April, students in the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources alert the academic community and Washington, D.C., area commuters to the fact that farm animals still are part of the scene on their urban-oriented campus.

As it has for nearly three-fourths of a century, Maryland's 74th annual Student Ag Day on April 24 attempted to convey the atmosphere and traditions of a small-scale country fair in an urban setting. This year's theme was "Agriculture — More Than Cows and Plows."

In 1971, Ag Day was the only fourth-Saturday-in-April event not shut down by the National Guard, which was occupying the campus to control anti-Vietnam War protest activities. This year, Ag Day was but one example of "Explore Our World" open houses held across the campus following the inauguration of a new University of Maryland president on Friday (April 23).

Most Ag Day activities centered in the livestock barns area, and typical of country fairs, featured student competition in fitting and showing farm animals — dairy cattle, beef cattle, swine, and sheep. The day also featured a performance by the University of Maryland Equestrian Team.

As in the past, there was a farm animal petting zoo for children and a dog-and-pony animal circus, along with a demonstration by "Fidos for Freedom" dogs for handicapped persons. New features this year included "Cow Chip Bingo" and a display of modern and antique farm machinery.

Richard A. Ahrens of Berwyn Heights, professor of nutrition and food science, is in his third year as faculty advisor to the Ag Student Council. Scheduled to retire later this year, the 1999 official Ag Day program book was dedicated to Ahrens.

We Share This Earth; Soil And Water Stewardship Week Celebrated

For 45 years local soil and water conservation districts have celebrated Soil and Water Stewardship Week. Each year the National Association of Conservation Districts selects a theme, prepares materials, and distributes them through the nation's 3,000 local conservation districts to educators and church leaders. Soil and Water Stewardship Week is officially observed between the last Sunday in April and the first Sunday in May (April 25-May 2, 1999). However, the observance may be celebrated at any time during the year.

This year's theme focuses on the need for future generations to consider the legacy that is being left to them and what they will do with it. The most important concept is the need for everyone, no matter where they live, to practice good soil and water stewardship.

As the 20th century comes to a close, many people are stopping to think about what has been accomplished during the past 100 years, and what the future may bring in the upcoming century and millennium. While it may be true that December 31, 1999, will be a day like any other day, it is also true that it provides an opportunity for this type of long-range "taking stock" about the past, the present, and the future.

For people interested in natural resources and their importance, the 20th century contains a rich history of conservation action. The action began in the latter years of the 19th century, when the public awareness of natural resource limits began to influence American actions. Establishing the first national parks in 1872 and national forests in 1891, the federal government launched what was to become a national conservation program that would, in many regards, become a model for other nations to follow.

The issues of concern have shifted during the past 100 years. The language of conservation and environmental science has changed significantly, and the need for an effective and responsive national conservation effort in the future remains high. Meeting that need will require not just farmers, ranchers, and scientists skilled in natural resource conservation, but an entire public whose education has equipped them to understand the important public issues that will shape future efforts.

For many people of retirement age today, the conservation history of past decades is a personal experience. Their parents and grandparents possibly told them stories that span the entire century, bringing it to life in real terms. But for today's youth, most of the 20th century is a subject in history books, and the Dust Bowl may seem as remote and abstract as the Revolutionary War.

Helping young people understand the conservation heritage of the 20th century is essential in equipping them to meet the challenges of the 21st century. Americans have avoided almost all of the dire predictions of resource shortages, economic dislocations, and civil strife that seemed reasonable to many people in 1900 and at other critical times during the century. Because responsible people and leaders recognized the problems, actions were taken that changed the way natural resources were being used (or abused). As leaders addressed these concerns, they established federal, state, and local agencies that are still in existence today and continue to address tomorrow's resource concerns.

In addition to public conservation programs, the 20th century saw revolutionary changes in science, technology, and transportation that dramatically affected the way in which natural resources were used. Early settlers rode into the century still using the kind of animal power, horses, mules, and oxen that had been common for many centuries. Trains became increasingly common, ships and boats became steam-powered instead of depending on the wind, and the new automobile was beginning to stir imaginations as well as scare horses on city streets.

Today, jet aircraft are common, space travel is over 30 years old, and much of the food consumed has traveled hundreds or even thousands of miles to reach a table. The corn or wheat grown on a farm is more likely to feed a Polish chicken or pig than the farmer or the farmer's family. The grapes in the grocery store or on a kitchen table may come from Chile or California, and it does not matter whether the store or table is in Illinois, Maine, or Alaska. The tomato in a salad may have been genetically altered to resist disease or to increase stability during storage and travel that is often required after being harvested thousands of miles away.

Out on America's lands, people are studying maps developed from satellite images to help them understand large land areas. Computers can draw two different pictures of a future forest, allowing individuals to determine which action to select when managing this resource. Farmers use the Internet to check commodity prices around the world and decide when and where to sell their crops. Using these kinds of tools indicates that the farmers, ranchers, foresters, and wildlife managers of the 21st century need to be highly educated in science and technology.

In spite of all these changes, the American people should still be concerned about the soil, water, and other natural resources that make up the environment. Fertile soil is still the key to producing food and fiber. Today, people ask, "What does it take to assure that our agriculture is sustainable — that it can continue to produce plentiful food for our children's grandchildren?" That is the right question, one that should concern every citizen, no matter where they live and work. To fully understand the issues that surround such a debate, one must have a broad education in how natural resource systems work and how people's actions have affected them in the past.

"Tell your children of it, and let your children tell their children, and their children another generation." —Joel 1:3

Reforestation Provides Growth For Future Use

In 1900 the future of America's forests looked bleak. Harvest totals were greatly exceeding annual growth, there were no provisions for reforestation in connection with most timber harvests, and 80 million acres of "cut-over land" lay idle or overgrown with brush. Wildfires, often starting in the deep slash piles left behind by early logging, burned millions of acres each year.

Improved conservation programs, fire protection, reforestation, and other efforts combined with the reduced use of wood for energy and more efficient wood processing began to turn the situation around dramatically. An example of such efforts was the application of a preservative treatment that retarded rot in railroad cross-ties, thus reducing the demand for wood dramatically. The amount of wood needed to replace rotted railroad ties in 1960 was only one-fifth what was used in 1900. Total timber harvests remained virtually unchanged from 1900 until 1965, except for a sharp decline during the Depression, but the use of that wood shifted sharply from fuel for cooking and heating to lumber and building materials such as plywood.

Improvements in forest protection, such as reducing wildfire damage, encouraged private landowners to invest in timber crops and forest management. Today, about 72 percent of America's timber land is privately owned, and the forest products industry, through its Sustainable Forestry Initiative, is leading the way as private owners seek to assure that their forests will remain healthy and productive indefinitely.

The fact that America's forests are better in many ways than in 1900 does not obscure the fact that there are problems to be solved in the future. By 2010, 150 million acres of our most productive private timber land will be in parcels smaller than 100 acres and in the hands of 12 million owners. Fragmentation of small tracts of land, often interspersed with houses and other developments, affects wildlife and the forest industry. Wildlife habitat is lost through fragmentation, so small tract land managers must learn to manage these lands for wildlife. In order for the needed timber to be harvested, the forest industry must also learn good management on small tracts, develop cooperation between ownerships, and use new technologies which can gently remove surplus trees from small plots without damaging the land or its appearance.

I've been hearing a lot of concern and apprehension about the 17-year locust that is to appear over large regions of Preston County this summer. To help provide some accurate information about this appearance I've adopted an information sheet by Dr. John F. Baniecki, Extension specialist, plant pathology/entomology, West Virginia University Extension Service.

Much of West Virginia will receive a regular but none-too-welcome visitor this spring. Brood V of the periodical cicada, the so-called 17-year locust, will appear in large numbers in West Virginia in 1999.

Counties that will be affected are: Barbour, Boone, Braxton, Brooke, Calhoun, Clay, Doddridge, Fayette, Gilmer, Grant, Greenbrier, Hancock, Hardy, Harrison, Jackson, Kanawha, Lewis, Marion, Marshall, Mason, Mineral, Monongalia, Nicholas, Ohio, Pleasants, Pocohontas, Preston, Putnam, Randolph, Ritchie, Roane, Taylor, Tucker, Tyler, Upshur, Wayne, Webster, Wetzel, Wirt, and Wood.

The appearance of this well known insect always arouses popular interest because of its tremendous numbers, its incessant high-pitched sounds, and the loss of countless numbers of damaged twigs and small branches. During its short aerial existence, it leaves very decisive signs of its presence in slits, which thickly fill the smaller twigs and branches of trees.

Growers fear that crops will be destroyed. However, the cicada does not feed on foliage of any kind. If the adult feeds at all, it does so by inserting its beak into bark and sucking juices. Besides making a lot of noise, about the only thing cicadas do in most places is prune the tips of branches and shrubs. It's their cousins — the likes of aphids, scale insects, and greenbugs — that cause broad crop damage regionally and nationally.

The periodical cicada is a stout-bodied, black insect 1.5 to 2.0 inches long. There are orange or orange-brown stripes and spots on the body. The wings are membranous, and the eyes and legs are red. It closely resembles the common "jar" or "dog-day" fly seen every year, except for its somewhat smaller size and darker color. In addition, the "jar" fly appears after the first of July and it does not produce the "f-a-r-r-o" sound.

Many stories are told of the sting of the cicada. All are false. The insect has no stinger. Young children might mistake the vibrations of the wings or the sharpness of the feet as a sting, but the cicada is not considered harmful. Some stories are told that fruit is poisoned if stung by a cicada. This is also a myth.

After 17 years of living in underground tunnels, millions of cicadas will emerge from the earth as if by a predetermined signal, undergo startling transformation, and fly to nearby trees and shrubs.

From morning to night they will fill the air with their monotonous droning songs. In a few weeks, after mating and laying their eggs, they will die, leaving behind a multitude of injured twigs on the trees which they have visited.

At its immature stage, the periodical cicada feeds on tree and shrub roots in the soil. During the spring of the last year, feeding is completed, and the young cicada is ready to leave its underground world. It burrows its way to the surface, emerges from the soil, and crawls onto tree trunks, posts, small plants, or other upright structures. It then sheds its skin, which may be seen clinging to the object.

The adult is about 1.5 to 2.0 inches long and has a black body with reddish eyes, legs, and wing veins. Toward the outer edge of the front wings, there is a "W" marking. About a week after becoming an adult, the female has mated, and a few days later she begins laying eggs, causing damaging slits or punctures. The adults die a few weeks later, ending the swarm. The eggs hatch in about six weeks and the young cicadas drop to the ground, burrow into the soil, and attach to a suitable root. Here they remain, sucking sap from roots of trees and shrubs for the next 17 years. Because the young cicadas feed slowly, most trees survive.

The adult cicadas cause no visible feeding injury to plants. The damage associated with this insect is caused by the egg-laying slits or punctures of the female. Twigs in which many egg slits have been made are often broken or partially broken from the branches. On young fruit trees this injury, if extensive, can set back the normal growth of the trees. Wounds allow diseases to enter and provide shelter and feeding locations for other insects, such as scales and wooly apple aphid.

Over 250 species of trees and shrubs are subject to attack by the egg-laying female. However, she seems to show a preference for oak, maple, apple, dogwood, and nut trees. Mature forest trees can usually withstand this temporary harm because the cicada finds many twigs in forests in which to deposit eggs. Most at risk to damage is the lone fruit tree or seedlings less than a foot tall. Commercial fruit growers, nursery operators, and homeowners in the area of cicada emergence should plan to protect their plants from this insect. Cicadas could disfigure young orchard or nursery trees and make them less saleable. Most damage will be at the branch tips and will not affect fruit production.

By not planting small trees, shrubs, and ornamentals in the spring of 1999 you can avoid damage caused by the female periodical cicada. You can protect small trees, shrubs, and ornamentals by covering them with open weave cloth such as cheesecloth, mosquito netting, or tobacco shade cloth. Put the cloth in place as soon as the adult cicadas begin to appear, and keep the tree or shrub covered until most of them have died. Leave the cloth protection loose enough to allow for plant growth and sunlight. Be sure to tie the bottom closed or the rascals will crawl up the inside and lay eggs. If you do not plan to use cloth, delay pruning until the cicadas have disappeared. Then most of the injured branches can be removed.

While some insecticides have made some control possible, they cannot be relied upon to completely protect the trees we want to keep from being damaged. Follow the necessary precautions when using insecticides. Insecticides used improperly can be injurious to people, animals, and plants. Check the label on the container for a list of plants on which the insecticides can be used. Follow the directions, and heed all precautions on the labels. Apply insecticides so that they do not endanger humans, livestock, crops, beneficial insects, fish, and wildlife. Do not apply insecticides when there is a danger of drift, when honey bees or other pollinating insects are visiting plants, or in ways that may contaminate water or leave illegal residues. The insecticide Sevin may be sprayed on the trees at about the time the cicada begins laying eggs. Sevin must be applied about every three to five days for best results.

The exit holes of the periodical cicada, often incorrectly called the 17-year locust, have already been spotted in many parts of the Mountain State. The insect has begun to prepare exit tunnels from which it will emerge the latter part of May. The tunnel, about 3/4-inch in size, is often capped with mud. The mud is smooth, often the color of the subsoil from which it is made. The cicada is in the hole waiting to debut.

In some areas of the state emergence will occur as early as mid-May. It will take place in the late evening. Nymphs will come out by the thousands and crawl slowly and methodically to the nearest perpendicular object. They claw and fight their way up to a suitable position where they can settle comfortably. Here they cast the nymphal skin and emerge into the adult cicada.

Prune very lightly or not at all during the 1998-1999 winter or spring 1999. The female periodical cicada and her egg-laying habits will damage twigs, weakening them so that many will break and fall from the tree. Later pruning (late June) will enable the grower to cut out, as far as practical, the remaining badly stung twigs and branches and, by fertilization, stimulate the trees to a rapid, vigorous growth, so that the wounded places remaining may heal more rapidly. Delayed pruning is especially important for fruit trees less than three years old.

For the curious features of its live history, this cicada is one of the most exceptional and interesting of all the insects on the American continent. The most remarkable of these peculiarities is its long period of underground existence — ranging from 13 to 17 years. West Virginia broods are all of the 17-year strain. The last appearance of this brood was in 1982.

The adult cicada is sluggish in movement, seldom takes food, and only occasionally resorts to flight. At the close of its short aerial life, the insect falls to the ground again and dies, perhaps within a few feet from the point where it emerged. This, however, is not until ample provision has been made for the appearance of the next generation 17 years hence.

In addition to the information provided in this article, a slide presentation is available from the Extension office. Any group or organization that would like to have the slides presented at one of their meetings should call the Preston County Extension Office at 304-329-1391 for scheduling.

Wool Production Remains The Same Across Maryland

Wool production for Maryland during 1998 totaled 104,000 lbs., the same as 1997 production. An increase of 1,000 head shorn was offset by the 0.4 pound reduction in fleece weight. Sheep shorn for wool at 16,000 head increased 1,000 head and the average fleece weight was 6.5 lbs. The 1998 wool price decreased 18 cents from last year's 68 cents per lb. The value of Maryland's 1998 wool production was $52,000 a decrease of 19% from the $71,000 for the 1997 wool value.

Shorn wool production in the United States during 1998 was 49.2 million pounds, down 8% from 1997. Sheep and lambs shorn totaled 6.43 million head, a decrease of 8% from 1997. The average price paid for wool sold in 1998 was $0.60 per pound for a total value of $29.4 million, down 35% from $44.9 million in 1997.

Md. Ag Statistics Serv. Reports On Chicken & Eggs

Maryland laying flocks produced 77 million eggs during February 1999, of which 71 million were table eggs and 7 million were hatching eggs. The average rate of lay was 69.5%. The average number of layers on hand during February was 3,580,000. On March 1, 2.0% of layers in Maryland were being molted and 36.5% of all layers had been through a molt.

United States egg production totaled 6.29 billion during February 1999, up 3% from the 6.11 billion produced in 1998. Production included 5.30 billion table eggs and 987 million hatching eggs, of which 927 million were broiler-type and 60.0 million were egg-type. The total number of layers during February averaged 323 million, up 3% from the total average number of layers during February 1998.

Number of Md. Farms Continues To Decline

The number of Maryland farms in 1998 was estimated at 12,500, down almost 4% from the 1997 estimate of 13,000 and 9% from 1996. Land in farms has decreased by 100,000 acres for 1998. This was a 4½% drop from 1997. Land in farms had pretty much remained constant from 1994 to 1997.

The number of farms in the United States in 1998 was estimated at 2.19 million, up fractionally from 1997. Total land in farms was 953.8 million acres, down 2.2 million acres from last year. The decline in land in farms continues to follow historical trends. The average farm size decreased 1 acre from 1997 to 435 acres. The west region showed the largest increase in number of farms, up 4,500 farms, or 1.5%.

CHURCH SERVICE

A joint Parish Service will be held at Emmanuel Lutheran Church on Sunday, May 2, at 10 a.m. The Rev. Alex Black will administer holy communion. Fellowship will follow in the Educational Building. There will be no Sunday School.

VISITING

Ruth Beachy, Hesston, Pa., was a visitor of Ferne Beachy and Cindy and Sam Stanton over the weekend. Ferne and Ruth were Monday luncheon guests of Sally Poholsky.

Recent visitors of Ralph and Ethel Buckel were Bob and Pauline Eaton, Bloomington, Beulah Moon, Burton Lytle, Sally Poholsky, Bill Buckel, and Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Buckel Jr., Chestertown.

APPRECIATION DINNER

The Bittinger Fire Department held its annual Appreciation Dinner at Avilton Community Building on Saturday night. Many members of the department were awarded special recognition. Bill Buckel was chosen Fireman of the Year. The department is planning to purchase a new truck in the near future. Kathryn Bowser presented the fire department a check for $8,000 from the Women's Auxiliary.

MY NOTES

Young families in Bittinger don't have much time for a social life, as our lives revolve around our children's lives and trying to fit everything into their needs: Riding to sport practice, helping with homework, enabling them to have a semblance of a social life, and then on to birthday parties and playing with their friends. The Sussman household last weekend was typical of a lot of other families that have a bunch of kids. Lloyd was part of a complex shuttle system to transport Claire and her friends, Angie Camp and Darcy Branthoover, to and from a movie. Meredith and Caitlin had a Red Cross swimming lesson. It is amazing how much Caitlin and Kelsey have progressed in their swimming in the short time they have been involved. Then Saturday morning, Lloyd, Claire, Caitlin and Mere hit the road to Alpine Lake pool for swimming team practice.

Saturday evening my three girls, plus "my little brown eyed girl, Kelsey" decided it was time to sleep out in a tent in our yard. It was pretty cold (20°), but they did just fine. In fact, all four spent the entire night outside and winning a five dollar bet from Lloyd that they wouldn't make it through the night outside.

Our whole family dreads the time when Kelsey will move with her family, the Morrisons, to Delaware when Kyle is transferred to his new job there with the Boy Scout organization. We won't know what to do without Kelsey, as she is almost like one of our own.

With the sunny weather now at hand, families with boys are now deep into the Little League games.

The weekend was busy with 4-H activities. Friday night the Bittinger 4-H Club served its delicious buckwheat and pancake dinner with sausage. They had a nice turnout and the food was so good. On Sunday afternoon a Safety Safari was held and sponsored by the 4-H Club. Unfortunately, my girls were unable to attend, as they had a clarinet tutoring session. We are lucky to have a neighbor, Gino Maracusi, who is a first-class clarinet player and teacher. They were putting some finishing touches on their playing Monday night at Northern Middle School. Others playing in the concert besides Caitlin and Claire on the clarinets were: Robbie Glotfelty, baritone; Blakely Glotfelty and Mathew Bass, trumpet; Torrey Poholsky, saxophone; Landon Southerly, trombone; and Heidi Hare on the piccolo. We could put together a great junior band in Bittinger.

As the world turns its attention to Colorado and the sight of the mourning families and friends, I saw a similar scene along the Peat Bog where a family of Canada geese where staying near the dead body of one of them who was apparently hit by a car. The great nature writer, Aldo Leopold is the author of The Sand County Almanac, a book everyone should read. He writes about this family bond in geese: "In spring you notice the prevalence of single geese, who do not fly about much and do little talking. One is apt to notice a disconsolate tone of their honking, one reaches the conclusion they are a broken-hearted widower or mother hunting for her lost children."

The Peat Bog lake is filled with all kinds of water birds now. They are so beautiful to watch.

Read. Then Recycle.

GIVING NEW MEANING TO "HOMEWORK" - Carpentry students at Northern High School have completed a home building project and are holding an open house for potential buyers. The stick-built three-bedroom house boasts special custom interior features like ceramic tile and hardwood flooring. The house-hunting public is invited to visit this home weekdays during school hours and submit a bid. Proceeds from the sale of the house will go into funding the next home-building project undertaken by the NHS classes. The senior building trades class members who contributed their skills to this enterprise are pictured above. From left to right they are Jason Gordon, Floyd Bolyard, Brian Savage, Pete Brosnihan, Mike Garlitz, Craig Miller, Jon Garlitz, Patrick Frazee, John Carey, Seth Huber, and Mike Dawson.

Home Built By NHS Students Now On Market

Students in the carpentry classes at Northern High School have completed a home that will be auctioned to the public during the month of May. The home features high-energy-saving doors, Lowen casement windows, and many "easy maintenance" features on the exterior. It is also "super insulated" and meets the requirement standards set by Allegheny Power for energy conservation.

The interior of the 1400 sq. ft. home offers three bedrooms, two full baths, a living room, dining room, kitchen, and laundry room. Ceilings throughout the home are spray-textured, and ceiling light/fan combination fixtures hang in the dining and master bedroom areas.

Hardwood flooring enhances the dining room and hallway, while ceramic tile covers the floors of the foyer, kitchen and bath areas. Faux painting decorates the baths and bedrooms, complementing the wallpaper borders and paneling. Quality decorator lighting accents each room.

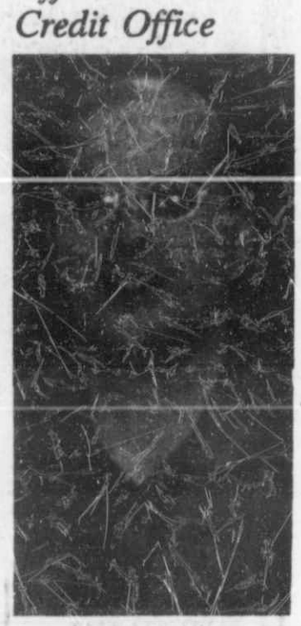
Both bathrooms feature one-piece tub/showers with dome tops and oak cabinetry. The kitchen includes an almond-color dishwasher and electric range and custom oak cabinetry. The laundry area has been separated from the kitchen with custom made café doors. Electric baseboard heating units with individual thermostat controls are installed in each room.

Provision has been made for basement access, should the new owner desire additional living space.

"This home deserves your inspection, if you are in the market for a new home at an affordable price," said a spokesman for the project.

The house, currently located at Northern High School, is open for interested persons to view Monday through Friday from 8:15 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. Bid sheets will be available in the main office at NHS or in the office of JoAnn Vent at the Garrett County Board of Education, Oakland.

Grady New Loan Officer At Farm Credit Office



The board of directors and employees of West Virginia Farm Credit announce the selection of F.J. Grady as the loan officer for the Oakland branch office.

Grady began his Farm Credit career in the finance department in 1992 and, for the last several years, has held the position of association controller. In that position, he was in charge of the daily financial operations of loan accounting, payroll, and fixed assets, and supervised the general ledger accounts.

Grady, his wife Janet, and their children, Tyler and Carly, plan to relocate closer to the Oakland area in the near future.

Youghiogheny Glades Chapter Of DAR Meets

The Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met recently at the American Legion Post 71 in Oakland, with June Thomas, regent, presiding.

The guest presenter for the evening was Debbie Jo Adams-Noroski, executive director of the Garrett County Lighthouse Inc., a local agency which provides services to the mentally ill. Ms. Adams-Noroski, who has 25 years of administrative experience, said that the Lighthouse was privatized in 1992. The 10,000-square-foot facility in Oakland has grown from initially serving 15 individuals to serving 91.

Regent Thomas announced that a copy of Jo Elizabeth Gergoff's poetry book has been added to the DAR Library in Washington, D.C.

Mary Jones introduced two new members of the chapter: Rosetta Rodeheaver, Oakland, and Virginia Martin, Aurora, W.Va.

Plans are being made for a chapter trip to the Maryland State House and U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis. The annual DAR chapter dinner will be served in May at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

Kennel Club Slates Program At Area Mall

In an effort to promote responsible dog ownership in this area, the Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club is presenting "Dogs on Parade" on Sunday, May 2, at the Country Club Mall from noon to 4 p.m. This event will highlight National Pet Week and Be Kind to Animals Week.

Kennel Club members will introduce the public to different breeds of dogs to help future owners select the breed of dog that is best suited for their lifestyle. Agility, dog dancing, and obedience demonstrations will also be held that afternoon to show different ways that owners can enjoy life with their dogs.

Local veterinarians will be on hand to inform the public about health care and answer questions. Other pet professionals will include groomers, pet sitters, dog trainers, and a pet-loss counselor.

The entries that have been submitted for the photography contest will be on display, with six winners each receiving a gift certificate good in any participating Country Club Mall store.

It does everything but gather dust

The Steiner turf tractor is always doing something. Mowing. Moving dirt and snow. Aerating lawns. Sweeping. Chipping branches. Edging. Blowing and more. All it takes is a few minutes to change attachments and off you go doing what needs to be done.

It's a hard-working machine with an articulating frame. A well-crafted machine that simply doesn't like to sit around the garage. Test drive one for yourself at your local Steiner dealer.

Financing available through Dealers Credit, Inc. (800) 735-1903.

TRAILBLAZERS
By Emily Cosner

The April meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club was held April 17 at Hubert Custer's farm. We discussed Achievement Night. G.W. Beckman reported on the Rotary dinner he attended and the award he received from the Rotary Club. Susan Mayfield reminded us of 4-H Camp, the Livestock Association meeting, and the Montadale Lamb Essay Contest that is due May 1. Everyone was asked to think of a community service activity for our club. Debbie Barnard from the Livestock Association spoke to the club about changes for this year and answered any questions we had.

After the meeting, Annette and Jason Knotts from Hidden View Farm in Millersburg, Pa., gave a demonstration on how to get a steer ready for show. They used Jenna Rush's steer. Also attending were members from the Country Kids 4-H Club and Southern FFA. After the demonstration they drew names and gave away shirts and hats. Receiving a hat or shirt were Erick DeWitt, Diana Mayfield, Arthur Pysell, Emily Cosner, Jenna Rush, Sarah Pysell, and Erica Green. Everyone received a pen.

Our next meeting will be May 20 beginning at 7:30 p.m. at Yough Glades Elementary.

Maryland 2000 Project Grants Now Available

Officials for Maryland 2000, the state's year-long millennium celebration, announced its environmental project this week, titled MaryLandscapes, a Bay-friendly gardening program. Based on the successful Bay Scapes program of the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the program is designed to celebrate the state's natural history and encourage landscaping techniques benefiting streams, rivers, and the Chesapeake Bay.

From now until July 14, 1999, Maryland 2000 will accept grant applications and proposals from organizations interested in planting and maintaining Bay-friendly, native species gardens.

"MaryLandscapes gardens will help educate Marylanders of all ages about the important role of native plants in preserving the environment," said Comptroller William Donald Schaefer, who serves as chair of Maryland 2000.

Volunteers from public, private, and non-profit organizations can apply for funds to plant MaryLandscapes gardens in highly visible public places, where visitors can come to enjoy and learn about native plants. These gardens will demonstrate landscaping with native trees and plants that minimize the use of water, fertilizers, pesticides, herbicides, and gas-powered maintenance.

"We are very excited to support a project that encourages statewide participation in environmental awareness for the future," said Dave Minges, executive director for the Chesapeake Bay Trust, which serves as Maryland 2000's environmental partner and an additional source of funding for MaryLandscapes projects.

With grants up to $10,000 per garden, volunteers will perform all labor for the creation and maintenance of gardens with the cooperation of any regular grounds-keeping staff. Eligible projects include decorative gardens, reforestation projects connecting forest fragments, and other innovative native plant projects.

Selected projects will be announced August 2, 1999, and should be planted by November 2000. Events and activities may be planned around the planting of these gardens, including the installation of permanent markers identifying them as official Maryland 2000 projects.

The Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 is also planning events and activities in the arts, education, historic preservation, human services, and philanthropy. To receive a MaryLandscapes grant application, persons may visit the Maryland 2000 web site at www.maryland2000.org or contact Christine Duray at 410-260-6346.

RECOGNIZING A GOOD CITIZEN - Brian Glotfelty, co-owner of High Mountain Sports in McHenry, was paid a visit by officers of the Maryland State Police from Barrack W. The reason for the call was to thank Glotfelty for the business's support of the Maryland Special Olympics held at the Wisp Resort in February. High Mountain Sports provided equipment to be used by the athletes competing in the special winter events. Maryland State Police have "adopted" Maryland Special Olympics as the organization that troopers across the state support. In the photo from left are Sgt. Wayne Paugh, Glotfelty, and Lt. William Lucas.

Disco Returns In JWCC Fund-Raiser Event

A charity dance event with a 1970s theme has been slated by the Junior Woman's Civic Club of Oakland for the night Saturday, May 8, at the Wisp McHenry House. The doors will open at 8 p.m., music provided by disc jockey Jonny Rock starts at 9 p.m., and the dancing will continue until 1 a.m. All proceeds from the event, titled "Do the Hustle," will benefit local charities.

A "best dressed" prize of $100 will be awarded to a participant with the best 70s-theme clothing. Attire from that era is optional but not required. Hors d'oeuvres, soft drinks, and draft beer are included in the price of a ticket, and a cash bar will also be available.

Persons interested in attending must be at least 21 years of age, and the cost of admission is $30 per couple and $15 for singles. Tickets are available at the Point View Inn Restaurant, Arrowhead Market, Madigan's Auto Sales, and the Oakland Country Club, or may also be purchased by calling Kimberly Bevan at 301-334-5117.
